China Spurns Japan Order; England Sees Conflict Near

New Demands Stir Threat of Revolt

Removal of Officials Called Challenge to Sovereignty.

Sino-Japanese Crisis.

At Nanking, the National Government's political council, highest Chinese executive body, rejected part of the Japanese army's sweeping North China demands.

At London, press dispatches reported a fear of hostilities; British officials voiced grave anxiety.

At Washington, the Government kept official silence, but the State Department was watching developments closely.

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Nanking, (Thursday) June 13.—China "can not" accept Japan's North China demands, National government officials said early today, because they would reduce China to the status of a "Japanese protectorate."

The statement—the first open defiance of Japan's aggressive military leaders—was made shortly after the National government's central political council, China's highest executive body, met in secret "urgent session" and reportedly decided to reject some, at least, of the Japanese demands.

While 800 more Japanese troops moved into Tientsin, seat of the Sino-Japanese trouble, the political council was said to have telegraphed Gen. Ho Ying-Chin, minister of war, at Peiping:

"Prepare for eventualities should the Japanese carry out threats to advance upon Peiping and Tientsin."

New Demands Voiced.

Reports from Peiping, meanwhile, said Japanese authorities were pressing new demands upon Gen. Ho, among them the ousting of all Chinese officials in Hopei Province hostile to Japan and their replacement by persons pro-Japanese.

This confirmed reports current here that the Japanese military authorities, whose demands May 29 constituted virtually an ultimatum, had still more sweeping plans in mind.

Authoritative Chinese quarters here said Japan had requested, and been refused, acceptance in writing of the following demands:

The National government must immediately make provision for settlement of all Japanese loans to China.

Nanking must revise its newly-established tariff schedule insofar as it unfavorably affects Japan's trade with China.

China must cease looking to Western powers to offset Japan's position in China.

Japan must be invited to participate in any future international loan to China.

China must settle the North China crisis in fashion satisfactory to the Japanese Kwantung army for the sake of peaceful Sino-Japanese relatons in Northeastern China.

Council Extends Session.

The political council which began its extraordinary session yesterday afternoon, met far into this morning and adjourned without disclosing the issues discussed or decisions taken.

It was learned authoritatively, however, that the council had decided to refuse any written assur-

Waleys Under $100,000 Bail In Kidnap Case

Plead Not Guilty to Mail Fraud Charges Brought at Tacoma.

By the Associated Press.

Tacoma, Wash., June 12.—Mr. and Mrs. Harmon M. Waley pleaded not guilty here tonight to mail fraud conspiracy charges growing out of the George Weyerhaeuser kidnaping and their bail was set at $100,000 each. They had been brought here by airplane from Salt Lake City, scene of their arrest and alleged confession.

Meanwhile, the drive for a clean-up of the $200,000 abduction case was pressed on many fronts. The reported appearance of two of the ransom bills in Kelowna, British Columbia, started a hunt there for possible confederates.

William Mahan, slippery former convict implicated by the Waleys, was hunted northward from Butte, Mont., after an acquaintance reported he once lived in Saskatchewan, Canada, and might have gone there to hide. Officers also searched there for $89,000 in ransom money, possibly hidden by Mahan.

Taken Without Hearing.

The strapping Waley, also a former convict, and his fair-haired wife were taken away without benefit of court hearing, avowedly a mystery to United States Commissioner Edward D. Dunn. It was not disclosed whether the couple might have signed a waiver of removal proceedings.

More indications that the Waleys were cooperating at least to some extent with Federal agents appeared before their surprise departure in a chartered plane.

Besides their confession and disclosure of the hiding place of more than $90,000 of the 200,000 ransom money here, there was evidence they were helping in other ways.

William Reger, an attorney retained to represent 19-year-old Mrs. Waley, said she was "voluntarily" in custody of Federal agents and was assisting them in the hun for ransom money and a solution of the case.

Reger disclosed he had been per-

Shriners Halt Night Parade After 3d of Units Braves Rain

By Gerald G. Gross.

The "burning sands of the desert" became a flowing stream last night as rain turned what was to have been an eye-filling Shriners' parade reviewed by President Roosevelt into an abortive demonstration which was over before it really got started.

President Roosevelt was in the reviewing stand and so was Mrs. Roosevelt, but their heartiest applause and the cheers of 60,000 other spectators spread along Pennsylvania avenue could not stop the rain, which prevented all except one-third of the colorful display from being shown.

Nineteen temples sent their blaring bands, picturesque Arab patrols and smart legions of honor through the Pavilion of Omar before the procession broke up. Fifty-four were to have participated, making the march a three-hour aair, instead of the 55-minute exhibition it was.

Rain had begun falling lightly about an hour before the parade was ready to get under way at 8 o'clock. A conference of convention committeemen was called hurriedly at the Willard Hotel, but it was decided to go on with the show, since the fine, light drizzle showed signs of letting up by post time.

Strange Sight for Capital.

The decision provided the crowds—some in grandstands, others in bleacher seats, others standing on the sidewalk or in doorways—along Pennsylvania avenue's "burning sands" with a sight such as the Capital never has seen before.

True, Presidents and Presidents-elect have ridden to the Capitol in inaugural ceremonies which suffered the wrath of rain-laden clouds. Too, in 1923, when the Shriners last convened here, there was a drizzle during one of the night parades. But never until last night has the fantastic sight of men from Los Angeles, Wheeling and Toronto clad in purple bloomers and bands sporting saber-swinging drum majors—all sloshing up a festooned, illuminated avenue in a driving rain—been offered the people of Washington.

The rain began falling in earnest a few minutes past 8 o'clock.

Bill Providing P.U.C. Control Of Cabs Sought

Nichols to Call Upon D. C. Officials for Measure to Set Up Rule.

District officials will be called upon today to draft a bill which clearly gives the Public Utilities Commission authority to regulate local taxicab rates, Representative Jack Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, said late yesterday.

The request is an outgrowth of congressional dissatisfaction over the taxicab strike early this week and was decided upon after Nichols was informed that a resolution demanding prosecution of the strikers for ousting patrons would be subject to a point of order.

Cites Lack of Authority.

"I'm going to tell the District officials that if they'll send me a bill up here clearly giving the Public Utilities Commission authority over taxi rates, I'll put it through the House District Committee and get it passed by the House," the Oklahoman said.

He said he would address the letter to the District Commissioners, the Public Utilities Commission, and the corporation counsel's office.

"They say they haven't got authority to force the cabs to lower their rates when they are arbitrarily raised," he added. "Well, if they've got any lawyers down there worth their salt they can draft a bill which will give them the authority."

Richmond B. Keech, vice chairman of the commission, said, when informed of Nichols' statement, that

2 Badly Hurt as D. C. Plane Takes Drop in Air Pocket

Three persons were injured, two seriously, when a Chicago-bound Pennsylvania airliner, 75 miles out of Washington, hit an air "pocket" over Virginia early last night and narrowly averted a crash.

George P. Kimmel, a patent lawyer, of 3118 Sixteenth street northwest, was reported to be in a critical condition by doctors at Emergency Hospital, where he and the others injured were rushed after the plane returned to Hoover Airport.

Kimmel is said to have suffered skull injuries, body bruises and possible internal injuries. He was admitted to the hospital with Homer Byrd, 37, of Arlington Heights, Ill. Byrd is believed to have suffered a serious spine injury. The other injured person is W. S. Stern, 45, of Chicago. He was released by hospital officials after an examination revealed he was not seriously hurt.

The accident was described as a "freak" by J. J. O'Donovan, assistant traffic manager of the Pennsylvania lines. According to O'Donovan, the three passengers had released their safety belts and were jolted against the roof of the cabin when the plane dipped in the pocket.

"It is the first time any such accident has happened in the history of my company," he added.

The plane left Washington for Chicago shortly after 5 o'clock with nine passengers aboard. The pilots were Merl Estes and F. J. Uttenweiler, both of Cleveland.

Lyddane Jury To Hear Story Of Love Link

Counsel for Clerk Says Indiscretions Won't Be Denied.

4 Newspapermen Cited For Centempt For Boland Story.

By Karl Schriftgiesser.
A Staff Correspondent.

Rockville Courthouse, June 12.—Anne Lyddane, accused of plotting the murder of her husband, will make no attempt to hide "certain indiscretions" with another man, defense counsel announced late today as the conspiracy trial of the fair bank clerk got under way.

It was with the greatest difficulty that a jury was selected for the trial. Not until deputy sheriffs had swept the farmlands of Montgomery County, seeking talesmen who had formed no opinion on the bizarre case, were 12 middle-aged men given the assignment.

That accomplished and with the opening statements of the prosecutor and the chief defense attorney on the record, the three judges sitting in the case held a conference in their chamber.

Newspapermen Cited.

An hour later the judges issued a citation for contempt against two editors and two reporters of the Washington Herald. Those named were Michael W. Flynn, managing editor; Ray Halgesen, city editor; Pat Frank and Davis Lee, reporters, and the American Newspapers, Inc.

They were ordered to show cause on or before Monday why they should not be adjudged in contempt of court as a result of a story appearing in the Herald this morning which purported to give in advance the verdict in the case of John Martin Boland, a co-defendant with Mrs. Lyddane, "thus embarrassing and obstructing the Administration of justice."

Little evidence that has not been already brought out was promised in the opening statements of the opposing counsel. In straightforward matter of fact words, State's Attorney Pugh said he would prove that Mrs. Lyddane had plotted with underworld characters to have the murder committed for a double motive—the love of a married man and $30,000 insurance which her husband had. Pugh's harsh voice grated across the jury box as he made these charges, Mrs. Lyddane sitting calmly in the midst of counsel nearby.

After the youtful State's attorney had outlined his evidence, paralleling that offered in the separate trial of "Gambler Jack" Boland yesterday—a case in which the court has reserved announcement of its verdict—suave, well-dressed Stedman Prescott, a predecessor of Pugh and a State senator, turned his powers of oratory full upon the jury, mainly made up of farmers.

But his oratorical efforts were frequently punctured by sharp objections from Special Prosecutor John Moxley, who pleaded with the three judges hearing the case that Prescott be compelled to confine himself to the case in hand. Twice the bench, through Chief Judge Hammond Urner, rebuked Prescott. Outstanding in his summary was his declaration that the defense would make no attempt to hide the love affair of Anne Lyddane.

Anticipates State Move.

"The State will be able to prove and we will not deny certain indiscretions," he said with a sweep of his finely manicured hands. Having made this declaration, he went on to paint an innocent picture of Anne Lyddane, going night after night to parties with her husband—who has said he no longer lives with her as man and wife—and in whose interests she worked, traveling several times to Annapolis in the interest of legislation which would have kept him in employment.

Prescott ridiculed the character of the State's witnesses, recalling their prison records, contrasting them with the woman whose bank accounts, he said, had been audited and found perfect, whose own accounts showed, so he said, that she could never have paid "Googy" Carnell the $200 he says he received from her to start the ball rolling in the murder plot.

Frequent clashes between counsel marked the late afternoon session as Prescott pounded the table in front of him. Pugh and Oxley were constantly on their feet hurling objections, indicative of future clashes which are expected to lend vigor to the third recounting of a twice-told tale.

Listening to the excoriation and defense of Anne Lyddane was her

An Appreciation

Two years ago the old Washington Post became the new Washington Post.

The first issue of the paper under its new management on June 13, 1933, carried a statement which said, in part, that it would be the aim and purpose of the publisher steadily to improve The Post, to make it an even better newspaper than it had been in the past.

It is with deep appreciation that The new Post celebrates its second birthday . . . appreciation of the fine support that the members of the community have accorded its efforts to serve them.

Perhaps the most tangible evidence of this support and interest is the fact that the number of readers has nearly doubled in the past 24 months. Such support deserves redoubled effort on the part of this newspaper. And, it is with this obligation and responsibility in mind that The Post again pledges its aim and purpose to the constant improvement of the paper.

Long Halts NRA Vote, Filibusters Into Night; Governors in Session

Johnston, McNutt Take Lead Looking to Interstate Action

By Raymond Clapper.
A Staff Correspondent.

Biloxi, Miss., June 12.—An effort to preserve the wage and hours advantages of NRA by unified action will be considered at the twenty-seventh annual conference of State governors opening here tomorrow.

Early arrivals among the governors revealed opposition toward further expansion of Federal power by constitutional amendment, forecasting difficulty for the Administration should President Roosevelt ultimately decide to challenge the Supreme Court by proposing a change in the Federal Constitution. This opposition was voiced among others by two Southern Democrats, Gov. M. S. Conner of Mississippi and Gov. Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina.

Instead of this method of dealing with maximum hour and minimum wage control, the governors prefer to co-operate among themselves, possibly developing interstate compacts.

Gov. Johnston, from a Southern textile State, said he would be willing to join with New England textile States in such co-operative effort.

This question of salvaging the desirable features of NRA will occupy a prominent place in the opening sessions of the Governor's conference, to be held on a pier extending into the breeze-cooled waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

Gov. Johnston and Gov. Paul McNutt of Indiana, both Democrats, will lead tomorrow's NRA discussions.

'Break Kingfish,' Leaders Whisper

Louisianian Talks on as Time on Feet Passes 10-Hour Mark.

By Robert C. Albright.

A lone wolf filibuster against the abridged NRA extension bill last night stretched taut Senate nerves near to the breaking point as Huey P. Long forced another day's delay in the Administration's clipped Blue Eagle plans.

At 10:20 p. m. Long had been speaking continuously for ten hours. The record for long distance Senate oratory was held by the late Senator Robert M. LaFollette, of Wisconsin. He once spoke for 18.

The Senate became seriously tangled up in its own rules as the debate stretched into the night and the early humorous exchanges were turned to sharp personal clashes.

Set to "Break" Long.

Leaders said they were determined to "break" Long if it took all night.

Long and Acting Senate Majority Leader Barkley appeared near blows at one time, and it took all of the wiles and parliamentary lore of Vice President Garner to straighten out a strained situation.

Garner ruled Long still had the floor at 9:15 p. m. despite a conflicting ruling by Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, a previous occupant of the chair. Garner seized the gavel in the midst of a din of appeals and points of order.

Barkley's refusal to be stilled, despite Garner's ruling, brought an angry exchange between the leader and the Louisianan.

"Sit down, or get out!" shouted Long.

"Nobody but the chair can make me sit down," retorted Barkley.

Again Garner ruled in Long's favor.

The oratorical marathon started when the Senate, by a vote of 44 to 36, refused to table Long's motion to reconsider the vote by which the Gore amendment, requiring Senate confirmation of all Federal officials drawing $4,000 or more a year, was made a part of the NRA bill.

Fights Own Motion.

That vote indicated that the Senate overnight had changed its mind about the Gore amendment—and would reconsider its action. Long, who had moved to reconsider merely to gain a tactical parliamentary advantage, found himself filibustering against his own motion, in order to forestall action on the NRA resolution.

At 6:20 p. m. Long had been talking exactly six hours. Leaders, who have but four days more to extend NRA or watch the skeletonized setup expire altogether, at first showed a disposition to let him talk it out. Despite refreshments served at his desk, consisting mostly of milk and coffee in paper cups, they figured Long could not keep the pace he set for himself.

Discussing everything from what he called the "blue buzzard" to "Harold the first and the last Ickes," and "Franklin D-e-l-a-n-o Roosevelt," Long received little aid from other NRA opponents and was target for a running fire of jibes from unsympathetic leaders.

Galleries Hilarious.

The galleries were hilariously responsive, then attentively silent, after repeated warnings from the chair that any demonstration would be punished by clearing all spectators from the chamber.

At 5:20 p. m., when Long had been speaking continuously for five hours, he gratefully grabbed at an opportunity for a brief rest afforded by a quorum call. The call was demanded by Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, friend of the Louisianan.

There is a Senate rule that Senators may speak only twice on the same subject in one day. Chairman Pat Harrison, Senate Finance Committee, anxious to break through the filibuster to rescue his NRA resolution from its tangle, sought a ruling from the chair whether this interruption would carry Long into his second speech. Vice President Garner was forced to rule in the Louisianan's favor.

Long Refuses to Sing.

"They are trying to bring back this blue buzzard, cooked up in a different way," the Kingfish ranted. "It reminds me of boarding-house hash—when they served you something you wouldn't eat they'd bring it back the next day in the form of hash, so you wouldn't know what was in it."

There were frequent humorous interludes. Once Long touched off the subject of music.

"Has the Senator studied music?" asked Senator Alben Barkley, of Kentucky, acting majority leader.

"Yes, a little," replied Long.

"I just wondered if the Senator wouldn't sing for us," said Barkley.

"When I sing," came back Long, "it will be for somebody who is

West Pointers Told to Work Toward Peace

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.
A Staff Correspondent.

West Point, June 12.—Admonishing officers of the country's armed forces to oppose intolerance and decry aggression, President Roosevelt today presided over the graduation of 276 cadets of the Military Academy here at annual commencement exercises.

Although the President addressed himself directly to the fledgling officers, who in September will take their places in the Nation's Army, his words also held a meaning for all officers of the Army and Navy, several of whom recently have been charged with talking too losely and belligerently.

Suspicion Rapped.

Mr. Roosevelt asserted that the "greatest need of the world today is the assurance of permanent peace—an assurance based on mutual understanding and mutual regard." Earlier in his address he held that recent reductions in the Army had been "unjustified by a due regard to our own safety" and for that reason he had approved increasing both the enlisted and officer personnel.

Swinging into the peace theme of his address, the President urged those to whom were handed commissions as second lieutenants a few minutes later "to promote friendships and to discourage suspicion, to teach respect for the rights of others and to decry aggression, to oppose intolerance with a spirit of mutual helpfulness."

In such manner, he added, could the young men who today went forth from historic West Point serve with full value to their Gov-

Farley Renews Mail Row; Hits Pan-American

No Real Bidding for Routes He Avers; Sees Saving of $2,000,000.

By Felix Bruner.

New charges of collusion and favoritism in letting of air-mail contracts were revealed yesterday as a special Senate committee made public a report by Postmaster General Farley on ocean-mail contracts.

Farley charged that under administrations of Harry S. New and Walter Brown as Postmasters General Pan-American Airways had been shown favoritism in award of contracts.

He declared that in several instances contracts were awarded to Pan-American although the company was high bidder; that financial transactions were entered into with knowledge of the Postoffice Department to give Pan-American a monopoly, and that routes were lengthened deliberately by the department to increase mileage payments.

The Postmaster General recommended that overcharges be recovered, that rates be cut 25 per cent and that routes be revised. He estimated that the proposed reduction and revision would save the Government more than $2,000,000 a year on payments to the one company.

Incidentally, Farley pointed out that the Government had authority to cancel ocean-mail contracts, as it canceled domestic contracts, but he advised against this course because of necessity for the service and desirability of maintaining quick communication and preserving friendly relations with Latin-American countries.

After pointing out that Pan-American has a monopoly on Latin-American mail contracts, Farley said:

"It is clearly evident that the

Air Clipper Hops for Midway In 'Obstacle Race' With Storms

By the United Press.

Alameda, Calif., June 12.—Prepared for an "obstacle race," Pan-American Airways' four-motored clipper plane roared away from its Alameda base for a 3,800-mile flight to tiny Midway Islands at 3 p. m. (Pacific standard time) today.

Take-off of the huge ship purposely had been delayed until today to permit it to make its third flight over the Pacific in weather conditions which will test its flying capacities and the powerful radio directional beam used to guide it.

The huge plane will fly directly into a forbidding stretch of clouds, rain squalls and fog. It is expected to encounter low-lying clouds and rain when 200 miles out, and at 250 miles will speed into a "cold front" or cyclone area moving across its path from Vancouver Island, northwest of Seattle, Wash.

The broken weather, offering anything but "ideal" conditions, will continue to Honolulu, first stop for the plane in its boundary-smashing flight.

Capt. Edwin C. Musick, commander of the plane in its round-trip flight to Honolulu April 17-23, again was directing the clipper. With him were the five men who have shared his pioneering work in exploring the first portions of Pan American's projected transpacific air route.

Leaders Beaten Trying to Force Holding Report

House Committee Still Delays Bill Passed by Senate.

By the Associated Press.

A White House contact man, the speaker of the House and a committee chairman strove yesterday without apparent success to break up the jam which has kept locked in a House committee for nearly four months the Administration bill to abolish utility holding companies.

The bill was passed Tuesday by the Senate.

Significant among the day's developments were these:

1. Speaker Byrns talked with some members of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, to which the Senate-approved bill abolishing holding companies by January 1, 1942, was referred. He said he expected the committee to report out something "soon."

2. Charles H. West, former House member and the President's personal "contact" man, went into huddles over the situation with members.

Rayburn Says "Soon."

3. Chairman Rayburn (Democrat), Texas, of the House Interstate commerce Committee predicted that "we'll get the bill out sometime soon."

4. Representative Pettengill (Democrat), Indiana, issued a final statement expressing hope the Senate bill would be rewritten.

When a sub-committee was named to handle the abolition section of the bill, the first thing it did was adopt a resolution not to talk about its work.

Pettengill is a member of that six-man sub-committee, which is divided three-three on abolition, the opponents of that idea favoring heavy taxes to force utility holding companies out of business.

In his formal statement Pettengill said:

"The death sentence in the Senate bill is unnecessary. It is unconstitutional, it is deflationary of values. It is destructive of recovery. It will freeze uncertainty.

Predicts Court Veto.

"If the Senate bill becomes law it will receive another devastating rebuke from the Supreme Court. As one interested in the prestige and major objectives of the party in power I do not want that to happen."

Meanwhile, the opinion that the Borah amendment prescribing death to any public utility holding company beyond the second degree would serve to "defeat the purposes" of the Senate bill, was expressed by Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland.

The Borah provision, Tydings told the Senate, would prevent an operating company from owning an appliance company if the operating company happened at the same time to be controlled by a holding company. To do so, he said, would require permission for a holding company in the second degree.

The result will be, he added, that the one holding company allowed in each regional set-up will have to take direct control of the appliance company away from the operating company.

He said it would have been better to permit holding companies in the "second degree" so that such a condition could have been averted.

Hamilton Dead Month, U. S. Drops Charges

Dallas, Tex., June 12 (AP).—The law called it "quits" today with Raymond Hamilton—33 days after he was executed for murder.

The only remaining Federal charge against the late Southwest desperado was dismissed by Judge William H. Atwell. In it, Hamilton was accused of harboring his one-time confederates in crime, the late Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker, slain in Louisiana by officers. State Governors Meet With New Sense of Importance; Experience of Conner.

By Raymond Clapper

BILOXI, Miss., June 12.—State Governors are beginning to be seen on the map again. For some years their prestige has steadily declined. Every Governor has been largely a doormat to political advancement. Every Governor, before the echo of his oath of office has died away, is busy trying to be nominated for President or elected to the United States Senate. This has tended steadily to reduce the importance of the office and subordinate it to presidential or senatorial politics.

One of the few exceptions is the case of former Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, who, although a repeated candidate for the presidential nomination, elevated the office of Governor in his State to a place of great dignity and prestige in itself.

The downward curve of gubernatorial prestige generally has increased rapidly under the vast extension of Federal power during the depression. States looked to Washington to feed their unemployed and were compelled to accept terms imposed by the Federal Government. Washington tells them sometimes what officials to appoint, and even what taxes to impose. This—not to mention the invasions of NRA and AAA and other New Deal agencies—struck at the heart of a State Governor's power. He became a public mendicant, dependent upon the favor of Washington to feed his people.

But the process has been pushed so far that when the issue of States' rights was precipitated by the Supreme Court's NRA decision and President Roosevelt's dissent from it, the Governors were given a sharp jolt, and they are gathering here at Biloxi, Miss., for their annual conference with a new sense of importance and group consciousness.

This is their twenty-seventh annual conference, but it is the first one in which they have been stirred to discuss fundamental questions of national importance.

* * * *

You can better understand how a State Governor feels just now from the recent experience of Gov. Conner of Mississippi. He is a unique person in a State typified in the popular mind by the man Bilbo.

Conner does his best to conceal it by going under the name of "Mike," but his official name is M. Sennett Conner. Similarly Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, does not parade the fact that his name is Byron Patton Harrison.

Gov. Conner has had to live down the fact that he is a Yale man and a Columbia law graduate. He wears monogrammed shirts and wine-colored neckties and is subjected to considerable political criticism in the State because he is regarded by the informed as the best Governor Mississippi has had in years. Being a good Governor and being a popular hero often do not go together.

Well, it was Conner's bad luck that in 1932 he was in favor of the nomination of Newton D. Baker instead of Roosevelt. That fact is causing him some little trouble now. Washington is taking his relief organization out of his hands—because, so his friends here say, Senator Harrison has to be re-elected next year and Senator Bilbo is helping, now that he has been cut in on the Federal patronage through Pat's influence.

Whether that is the fact or not, several curious things have happened. Conner's first State relief man was Aubrey Williams, whom he obtained by applying to the American Public Welfare Association for the best man they could send him. Williams was so good that Harry Hopkins later took him into FERA headquarters as one of his chief assistants, where Williams still is.

Conner put in a successor, who resigned after a few months, whereupon he asked Hopkins to recommend a man for the job. Hopkins recommended Charles B. Braun, who is still State relief administrator.

But along comes the works program, and it becomes necessary to have a director of the works progress division for each State. In most States the Relief Administration has been made works progress director also. But not here. Gov. Conner has heard nothing except what he read in the newspapers—that the Rev. Wayne Alliston, a Baptist preacher, had been named. Gov. Conner also noticed that the Rev. Mr. Alliston was on the job at Jackson, the State capital, apparently, so the Governor's friends say. It was all fixed up at Washington by Harrison and Bilbo.

The works division will be run in Mississippi apparently without seeking the aid and counsel of the State Governor.

* * * *

Missouri's story has a slightly different twist. There, when a works director was to be selected, Hopkins asked the two Missouri Senators, Clark and Truman, for a recommendation. They consulted the State boss, Tom Pendergast. He had just the man for the job and the Hopkins' okay came through within an hour. When Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, chairman of the NRA Consumers Advisory Board and former Democratic national committee woman for Missouri, for years opposed to the Pendergast machine, protested, she was reminded that the Administration had to depend on the Pendergast machine to carry the State for Roosevelt next year.

Those instances are just samples of what ordinarily happens all of the time in politics. Such practices become of exceptional significance now only because they are tangled up with the $4,880,000,000 works relief fund which the Administration said would have no politics in it and which the Republicans said would be a political war chest for 1936.

* * * *

Such instances as these—almost every State can furnish examples—are causing increasing irritation among State governors and help explain the sudden solidarity now developing among them.

Because there was so much underying gubernatorial resentment, the governors froze up instantly when Mr. Roosevelt suggested that the Federal Government's power must in some way be broadened. The governors have been exchanging letters among themselves about the threat of a constitutional amendment. Most of them take the same position as Gov. Olin Johnston of South Carolina—opposition to amendment.

* * * *

On the other hand, governors quite generally realize that an increasing number of social and economic problems can not be handled without joint action. They see the impossibility of going back to a strict States' rights position with 48 water-tight compartments.

Sentiment is rapidly developing among them for a compromise—the State compact idea. Discussions during the Governors' conference here will bring the idea into more prominence.

One governor suggests that out of the compact idea may come a tendency toward regional subdivision of the country, something like the Canadian provinces, whereby groups of States with common economic and social problems will band for common action on problems falling midway between strictly State and Federal jurisdiction.

* * * *

If they do that, then it won't be necessary for Gov. Futrell of Arkansas to telephone a neighboring governor, as he did recently, and ask permission to enter his State with an armed escort. The Governor was going somewhere by automobile and was taking a motorcycle escort along, but he had to get permission from his neighbor governor before he could do it.

Railroad Faces Extinction If Trolley Line Ends Service

Sandy Spring and Kensington Route Fights for Its Life.

One of the world's shortest railroads, the Sandy Spring and Kensington Railway, is fighting these days to avoid extinction, which will be the price it must pay if it becomes a carrier without connecting lines anywhere.

The road operates by trolley over a route of three-and-a-half miles from Chevy Chase, Md., northward, crossing Rock Creek Park. It extends from Chevy Chase Lake through Kensington, and has been in operation for 35 years.

Meeting in Baltimore June 25, the Maryland Public Utilities Commission will hold a hearing on the Capital Transit Co.'s application to abandon its lines in Maryland around Chevy Chase circle and along Connecticut avenue, between Chevy Chase Circle and Chevy Chase Lake, substituting bus service instead.

If these lines are abandoned, the little Sandy Spring line, its secretary, R. H. Phillips, alleges, must be abandoned, and fall into decay, along with wood-burning locomotives and stage coaches.

In a petition to the Maryland P. U. C., the line contends that it has furnished transportation to hundreds of residents in the section served by its tracks for 35 years, and that a bus must necessarily traverse a route less safe than their tracks.

Judge Feeds 2 Boys; Each Snatches Cash

Dallas, Tex., June 12 (AP).—After T. W. McWater, of Greenville, had ordered a meal here today for two youths who said they were hungry, one of them snatched his purse as he started to pay the bill and fled.

McWater pulled two $1 bills from his pocket, looked at them and remarked he probably was lucky he didn't lose all his money. The other guest, who had remained with him, grabbed at the bills, obtained one and fled behind his companion.

President Back; Plans Message On FACA, Hint

Talk With Choate Aboard Train Is Believed to Point Subject.

Revealing he proposed to send a message to Congress next week, but declining to divulge its nature, President Roosevelt late yesterday returned to Washington after an absence of five days.

Mr. Roosevelt disclosed his plan to send a message to Congress at a press conference aboard his special train en route from West Point. He said he had worked on the message while at Hyde Park, but he laughingly declined to indicate what subject it treated.

Asked whether the message had to do with taxation—there has been some talk of increasing the Federal inheritance taxes—the President suggested that his budget message to Congress last January be examined. He evaded further questions about the proposed message.

FACA Action Indicated.

The President had a lengthy conference aboard his train with Joseph H. Choate, jr., administrator of the defunct FACA. It was thought the message may urge Congress to establish a new Federal system for control of alcoholic beverage industries. Control exercised through the FACA was wiped out when the Supreme Court declared unconstitutional the NRA act.

Choate boarded the President's train at Weehawken, N. J., where a special stop was made to pick him up. Extraordinary circumstances of his meeting with the President were taken as an indication that their conversation was not casual or routine.

The President also conferred for several hours on his trip from West Point with Postmaster General James A. Farley, who attended the graduation exercises at the Military Academy. Mr. Roosevelt described the conversation as a bi-weekly routine one, dealing with various matters on which Mr. Farley, also chairman of the Democratic national committee, wished the President's advice.

Silent on "Grass Roots."

The President said he would send no messages to Congress this week and he appeared satisfied with developments on Capitol Hill in his absence. He declined to comment on the Republican "grass roots" convention at Springfield, Ill., but showed no disturbance over that meeting of his Midwestern political opponents.

Mr. Roosevelt will follow a routine schedule at the White House today and tomorrow except that he will review the Shrine pageant tonight. Saturday he will motor to Annapolis and, aboard the yacht Sequoia, will go for the week-end to the Jefferson Island Rod and Gun Club in Chesapeake Bay, off the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

This club was established several years ago by a group of Senate Democrats and others of that party interested in fishing and duck shooting. The President was one of the charter members, but Saturday will be his first visit to the club. He will return to the White House Sunday night.

Mr. Roosevelt hopes to be able to attend the Harvard-Yale boat races at New London, Conn., June 21. If he can make the trip he will leave Washington next Thursday midnight for New London and on the following Saturday will again go to his Hyde Park home to spend the night, leaving there the next day for the Capital.

Luke Lea Seeks Pardon in South

Ex-Tennessee Senator's Attorney Makes Plea.

By the Associated Press.

Raleigh, N. C., June 12.—A pardon for Luke Lea, former Tennessee Senator serving a six to ten year sentence in the North Carolina prison for bank law violations, was asked today at a hearng before Edwin Gill, State parole commissioner.

Claiming documentary evidence he submitted showed Lea was innocent of the charges brought against him in the collapse of the Central Bank & Trust Co. of Asheville, J. M. Broughton, Raleigh attorney, asked a full pardon for his client.

He also presented letters from Gen. John J. Pershing, Speaker Joe Byrnes, Senators J. W. Bailey and Robert R. Reynolds and others asking clemency for the Tennesseean, who was a World War colonel.

House Passes Bill to Revise Ship Profit Act

Navy Scientific Equipment Would Be Exempted From Limit.

By the Associated Press.

A bill to liberalize a 10 per cent restriction on profits on naval construction contracts, imposed by the Vinson treaty Navy act, yesterday was passed by the House and sent to the Senate.

Opposition Representatives kept the measure before the chamber for three hours, but after a motion to send it back to the Naval Committee lost, 209 to 130, it was passed without a record vote.

Proponents of the bill contended that by permitting profits to be calculated on a yearly rather than the present individual contract basis, the measure would permit shipbuilders to recoup on one order a loss sustained on another.

Under the measure contracts and subcontracts for specialized scientific equipment would be exempted from the 10 per cent profit limit.

Chairman Vinson (Democrat), Georgia, of the Naval Committee said the bill would put contracts on a true business basis, permit savings of $500,000 to $1,000,000 annually by a reduction in rates of surety companies and allow compensation for much of the experimental work that goes into development of scientific instruments for naval use.

Representative Tobey (Republican), New Hampshire, author of the original 10 per cent profit clause, contended the treaty navy act should be allowed to "stand as it is."

"The law is fair and just and contractors can look out for themselves," he argued.

Exemption of scientific equipment manufacturers, he said, would allow them to "charge up to the blue sky, make 2,000 per cent profit if they chose, and charge the entire burden of experimental work to the Government."

Slum Program Awaits Action Of President

Housing Chiefs Fear That Executive Will Hold Up Full Allocation.

By the Associated Press.

Concern over whether President Roosevelt will set aside all the $225,000,000 wanted by the Public Works Administration for slum clearance projects was manifested yesterday by housing division officials.

The allocation was recommended by the Works Allotment Board May 7. But presidential approval has not been forthcoming. At PWA it was said no information could be obtained on what was to be done.

However, a hint was given in an official quarter that the allocation would be slashed. Two possible reasons were given: First, because of slow progress in the slum-clearance program in the past two years; second, because the new projects would not provide as much direct labor as desired under the $4,000,000,000 relief program.

Program Delayed.

Meanwhile, a housing division official said the slum-clearance program was being delayed pending action by the President on the allotment. Condemnation proceedings on lands for certain sites have been suspended in several cases, it was said authoritatively.

Simultaneously, A. R. Clas, new director of the housing division, announced that of 18 projects, costing $65,073,380, contracts had been let on but 5.

These 18 projects, he said, would release $27,609,000 for direct labor and $37,463,000 for materials and equipment, not including land cost.

The question worrying housing officials about the future, one explained, was whether the remainder of 74 low-rent projects would furnish sufficient direct labor to meet the President's relief program.

Obstacles Overcome.

At the PWA it was conceded that the program had not progressed as rapidly as desired. In a report to Secretary Ickes, Director Clas said, however, "after overcoming a series of obstacles which handicapped operations at the start," it was now ready to go forward.

At the outset, Mr. Roosevelt gave $150,000,000 for slum clearance, but recalled $110,000,000 to be used for direct relief by Relief Director Harry L. Hopkins. This sum has not yet been returned to the division.

Canada Unaware U. S. Plans Base Near Line

Ottawa, June 12 (AP).—The Canadian government has no information that the United States contemplates establishing an air base at Lake Champlain, near the Quebec boundary, Arthur Meighen, senate leader, today told the upper house.

If such a step were proposed by the United States Government, Canadian authorities believe the proposal would be a "domestic matter" of that country, it was asserted.

The question was raised by Senator Rodolphe Lemieux (Quebec Liberal).

Patman Loses Move to Ditch Crime Report

Brewster, Lone Majority Member at Session, Defeats Coup.

By James D. Secrest.

The fate of the District crime report hung in the balance last night after an attempted coup had been temporarily frustrated and as reports spread that political pressure from high sources had been exerted in behalf of United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett.

The attempt to overturn the indorsement of the report by the House District Committee came abruptly and unheralded at the weekly committee meeting. It was forestalled by a parliamentary technicality and the absence of all but one of the majority members of the sub-committee on crime.

Randolph Absent.

With one of the nine members who voted approval of the crime report last week wavering, the opponents, led by Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas, sponsored a surprise motion to reconsider last week's action.

The motion, offered by Representative Jack Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, who did not vote last Wednesday, was still pending when the committee took a two-weeks' recess. A point of order had been raised against it by Representative Ralph D. Brewster (Republican), of Maine, a member of the sub-committee.

Neither Chairman Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, nor any of the other majority members of the sub-committee were present, besides Brewster, although a series of a half dozen conferences in which they figured preceded the executive meeting of the committee.

Last night an informal poll of the full committee indicated that the sub-committee still has 10 of the 21 votes and that the best the opposition can do is to get a tie vote, as the eleventh member will not vote with either group. A tie would mean that the former approval would stand.

The member who was reported to have promised to switch his vote to the opposition is Representative Henry Ellenbogen (Democrat), of Pennsylvania.

Fenerty Holds Balance.

Ellenbogen denied he had made any definite commitment to anyone, but he likewise would not state that he would stand by his original affirmative vote, which was cast by proxy.

The member who apparently holds the balance of power is Representative Clare G. Fenerty (Republican), of Pennsylvania, a member of the sub-committee on crime. Because he was unable to attend the hearings, however, he has refused to vote on the report, and he is expected to maintain this position.

The sub-committee is assured of five votes from its own ranks, with two dissenting, and so far has the support of Representative Dewey Short (Republican), of Missouri; Reuben Wood (Democrat), of Missouri; W. Sterling Cole (Republican), of New York, and Merlin Hull (Progressive), of Wisconsin.

Chairman Mary T. Norton is expected to cast her vote with the sub-committee if necessary, although she did not vote in the 9-to-6 ballot for approval last week.

Early reports that Mrs. Norton and Wood had switched over to the minority group were quickly and indignantly denied.

Political Pressure Seen.

The move to get the District committee to reconsider and kill the crime report is understood to have originated in a telephone call from a high Administration office Tuesday afternoon. The call was at first directed to Mrs. Norton, who was out of the city, and then to Patman. The purport of the communication was that the report must be killed.

Patman immediately got in communication with several members and, it is understood, was given assurance of at least one switched vote and two votes from members who were absent from last week's meeting. These members, Representative Ambrose J. Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, and Nichols, were present yesterday.

Twelve members were at the meeting. Not only were the majority sub-committee members absent, but Hull left before the committee convened. A vote of the 12 present undoubtedly would have been for reconsideration and rejection of the former affirmative action.

After Nichols had moved for reconsideration, Patman began a long discourse under the House rule that each member be allowed an hour for debate. While he was talking, Brewster appeared and raised the point of order that the motion for reconsideration could be made only by a member who voted in the affirmative.

Point Doubtful.

A parliamentary discussion followed and a book of rules was sent for. The House bell rang before the question was settled, and it was decided to recess for two weeks as some of the members said they could not be present next Wednesday.

Lewis Deschler, House parliamentarian, said later that under the rules of the House Brewster's point of order would have been sustained had it been made immediately after Nichols made his motion, but the chairman would have ruled it came too late because Patman had begun discussing the motion.

The telephone call which revived the committee fight over the crime report was said by one committee member to be only the climax to a series of incidents indicating the strong political pressure which is being exerted in behalf of Garnett.

The Virginia delegation has been active, and friends of the United States attorney have called on committee members who voted for the report in an effort to persuade them to change their minds.

father, who sat patiently and with folded hands throughout the long and tedious picking of a jury. Tanned by years of working in gardens, hair gray with age, old James McLaughlin was a contrast of the young and middle-aged lawyers who crowd the inclosure and his daughter of 29 years, who was dressed today in a light blue silk dress. She made a pretty picture, but the hard-handed jury which was finally chosen turned their eyes from her for the most part.

Nearly 70 talesmen were called before a jury could be selected. Of these the majority were excused because they said they had formed unalterable ideas about the case. The State used all of its ten challenges, the defense used all but one of its 20. When the original panel of 20 had been exhausted, others were called and then deputy sheriffs were sent about the countryside. They brought in farmers still in their work clothes, clerks from their midday luncheons.

As finally chosen, the jury is as follows:

William O'Keefe, farmer.
John T. Culver, coal company employe.
Harry V. Embrey, house painter.
Arthur S. Beall (no relation of Mrs. Josephine Beall or husband), farmer.
Arthur B. Shreve, farmer.
William D. Clark, hardware dealer.
William E. Brackett, chair maker.
Howard W. Bosley, farmer.
Orra A. Mills, truckman.
Isaac Fyffe, retired farmer.
William E. Smith, insurance man.
Samuel S. Welsh, dairyman.

Practically all are middle-aged men, solemn visaged Montgomery County men, with justice written on their tanned faces. They will be locked up for the duration of the trial, and were forbidden to read newspaper accounts of the case.

At the opening of court this morning, Chief Judge Hammond Urner made the following announcement regarding a story appearing in the Washington Herald:

"The attention of the court has been called to a wholly unjustifiable publication in the Washington Herald of the conclusion of the court in the case of the State against John Martin Boland."

He paused, conferred with Judge Arthur D. Willard, elderly gray-haired Maryland justice, and tall, black-haired, grim-faced Judge Charles W. Woodward.

"The court will simply add," he went on, "that it wishes it understood that the incident is not closed."

The Herald story stated in detail what purported to be the finding of the judges, who met alone in their chambers and who reached but refrained from announcing their verdict. Qualified jurors were later told to ignore the reputed finding if they had read it.

Judge Urner said: "No verdict has been rendered and no statement as to its nature or effect has been announced."

The order which the three judges issued tonight in connection with the Herald story follows:

"Ordered by the circuit court for Montgomery County, this 12th day of June, 1935, that a citation issue to Pat Frank and Davis Lee and the American Newspapers, Inc., and Michael W. Flynn, its managing editor, and Ray Helgeseon, its night city editor, requiring them and each of them to show cause on or before June 17, 1935, why they should not be adjudged in contempt of this court for making and publishing reports purporting to make disclosures as to a private conference of the judges of this court in chambers upon an issue to be determined by their verdict and stating a conclusion alleged to have been reached in such conference, and for thus embarrassing and obstructing the administration of justice."

Deputy Sheriff Charles Orme served the order on Frank and Lee, placing them under arrest. Immediately, however, they were released in the custody of their attorney, Miss Vivian Simpson, of the law firm of Peter & Simpson.

When Anne Lyddane's trial got under way the room was again cleared of all witnesses. Stedman Prescott asked that Mrs. Lyddane's husband, Francis, whose strange nickname is "Slom," be allowed to remain. He was ordered to leave, however, after Pugh had voiced objection.

Toronto Shriner Loses Prized Watch Chain

Daniel F. Pierce, of Toronto, Canada, a member of Rameses Temple, Toronto, yesterday asked police to help him find his watch chain, a family heirloom which Mr. Pierce's father wore throughout the Civil War.

Wearied after Tuesday's parade, Mr. Pierce retired to his hotel room to sleep. When he awakened the watch chain, his watch, a valuable Shrine pin and $95 in cash were missing.

More than anything else, Mr. Pierce wants his chain back. He may be reached at No. 35 Tyndall street, Toronto, after the convention ends.

New Deal Alphabet Tangles Even Byrns

The New Deal alphabet causes trouble even for Speaker Byrns.

At his press conference, he was talking about legislation to replace the Federal Alcohol Control Administration, put out of existence by the Supreme Court NRA decision.

"The FCA—the FAC—," he stumbled.

"The FACA," a newspaperman prompted, and the Speaker agreed.

Both were wrong, for the proposal is to replace the FACA with the FACC—the Federal Alcohol Control Commission.

Revolt Flares; Greece Arrests 3 Archbishops

Acceptance of Gregorian Calendar Called Betrayal of Church Interests.

By the Associated Press.

Athens, June 12.—A religious revolt stirred Greece today with the arrest of three archbishops of the Greek Church as a precaution, authorities said, against possible violence.

The archbishops had severed their connection with the church and urged the clergy to follow them, accusing Archbishop Chrysostomos of betraying the church's interests by accpeting the Gregorian calendar.

A statement by the three described the Gregorian calendar as "a sacriligious Western invention" and also accused the archbishop of tolerating Roman Catholic, Protestant and Communist propaganda. They will be placed on trial Friday.

Greece as early as May, 1923, abandoned the Julian calendar, but an opposing faction has been celebrating church feasts by that calendar since.

Pope Gregory XIII, in 1582, ordered abolishment of the ancient Julian calendar because of its errors in intercalation and its substitution by one received in almost all Christian countries under the name of the Gregorian calendar.

Farley Renews Mail Row; Hits Pan-American

No Real Bidding on Routes He Avers; Sees Saving of $2,000,000.

Pan-American Airways has been shown favoritism by former officials of the Postoffice Department. Probably their contracts were not obtained as a result of genuine, open competitive bidding.

Restricted Bidding Charged.

"The advertisements were drawn with such restrictive limitations as to prevent real, open competitive bidding. In every instance the time allowed for bidding was entirely too limited and prospective bidders were not given proper opportunity to survey the route, negotiate with the countries over which the route passes for the necessary concessions and agreements, and make the proper financial arrangements."

Before giving his general conclusions Farley recited the history of each of the contracts awarded to Pan-American.

"The Pan-American Airways was the first American company to receive a United States air mail contract on a mileage basis in the Latin-American field, and it seemed to be the policy of former officials of the Postoffice Department to thereafter favor this company and its affiliates and subsidiaries to the exclusion of all others," he said.

Deal for Cuba Cited.

Farley recalled that the first ocean mail contract was awarded Pan American in 1927. It called for carrying mail between Key West and Havana, at 40½ cents per pound.

"Correspondence in the files of the department indicates," Farley said, "that the advertisement for bids on this contract was not published until the Pan American Airways had completed arrangements with the Cuban government to carry its mail from Havana to Key West. The Pan American Airways advised the Postmaster General that it had a contract with the Cuban government and would like to have the Postoffice Department advertise for bids for carrying air mail between Key West and Havana. A few days after receipt of this advice the Postoffice Department advertised the route for bids."

A year later, Farley recalled, the route was again advertised for bids and a contract awarded to Pan American for $2 a mile. He added that a few months later the line was lengthened by making Miami instead of Key West its terminus, thus adding 147 miles to the route.

All Bids at Maximum.

"This change was unnecessary for air-mail purposes and resulted in a greater cost to the department in operation of air-mail service to Havana," Farley said.

In connection with another contract, Farley charged that the route was lengthened 937 miles, making an additional cost to the Government of $1,874 per trip. All but one of the contracts, he pointed out, was let at the legal maximum of $2 a mile.

In his recommendations Farley suggested that the line from Miami to Nassau be discontinued.

"It is believed," Farley said, "that this service was inaugurated primarily for the convenience of tourists going from Miami to Nassau. There is a very small amount of air mail carried from Miami to Nassau and the cost per pound for mail carried is very high."

Other Instances Related.

Farley cited an instance in which a contract was awarded Pan-American for carrying mail to Mexico. The Mexican government requires that mail planes must be owned by Mexicans. He said Pan-American obtained financial control of the only Mexican company carrying mail and then bid the maximum amount for the service and was awarded the contract.

He declared that only 21 days was allowed to submit bids and that no other company had time to negotiate an arrangement.

"It is clear," Farley said, "that the Pan-American Airways knew it was the only company that could meet the requirements of the Mexican government and for that reason bid the maximum of $2 a mile."

In another instance Farley charged that a contract had been let by prearrangement and cited as evidence the fact that Pan-American started service on the day the contract was awarded.

Farley, in conclusion, recommended that the Postmaster General be given authority to review rates at least once a year and that contractors be required to permit examination of their books by the Postoffice Department.

Some friends of Representative Ralph O. Brewster (Republican), former Governor of Maine, was robbed Tuesday night of most of their personal belongings, the Representative revealed yesterday in a statement to the press.

"It is hoped that this does not indicate the revenge of the gang for the exposure of crime on the floor of the House Monday afternoon."

Labor Invited To Join Move For 3d Party

Farmer-Labor Leader Calls Organization Meeting in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

St. Paul, Minn., June 12.—Plans to seek a crystallization of trade union sentiment behind a third-party movement in the 1936 presidential race were outlined today by Howard Y. Williams, national organizer of the Farmer-Labor Party, and other leaders, who have called a meeting for Chicago.

"We are not going to disclose the time or the exact place of the meeting," said Williams. "We don't want to frighten away the delegates with a lot of publicity."

Other sponsors of the projected conference, however, said the meeting would take place in Chicago June 29 and 30.

About 300 delegates are expected by Williams, who said invitations had been sent to Gov. Floyd B. Olson, Farmer-Labor Governor of Minnesota, and leaders of Upton Sinclair's EPIC plan in California.

In addition, representatives from "powerful trade unions, the railroad brotherhoods and some large farm groups" will sit in at the conference, Williams said.

"We can't build a national third party unless we can get the backing of powerful labor and farm groups," he said.

Predicting success in this undertaking, Williams said a national conference of third party adherents probably would be held later in the year at which candidates for national office would be named and an utra-Liberal platform antagonistic to the capitalistic system probably would be adopted.

34 Jews Face Treason Trial in Smuggling

Jerusalem, June 12 (Palcor Agency).—Thirty-four Jews arrested by the government of Turkey will be tried for treason to the state on charges of smuggling from Turkey to Palestine, the Istanbul correspondent of the Palcor News Agency reported today.

A wave of anti-Zionist activity has swept over the country, the report said. In Istanbul and Smyrna the police raided several Zionist youth clubs, confiscating documents which are alleged to show complicity in enabling Jews to leave for Palestine through Syria.

The Palestine press today strongly protested against the anti-Zionist actions of the Turkish government.

California Senator Calls Reno a City of Fiends

Sacramento, Calif., June 12 (AP).—Repeal of the California three-day marriage law was voted today by the State Senate amid denunciations of Reno, Nev., as a city of "fiends and narcotics."

"I live in Red Bluff and I often see couples headed for Reno," said State Senator Jack Metzger. "They return within 48 hours, broke financially because of Reno. That city has a higher percentage of fiends and narcotics and other vices than any other place. We should not offer an incentive to send our young people there."

Hearing Set on Petition To Reconstruct Bridge

Application for a permit to reconstruct the highway bridge over Rock Creek at K street northwest has been received from the District Engineer Commissioner.

A public hearing on the application will be held in Room 1516, Navy Building, at 10 a. m., tomorrow. The public is invited to submit data on the suitability of the location and adequacy of clearances.

Parties interested, but unable to attend, may submit their views in writing.

Curtis Increases to 20 List to Beat President

Topeka, Kans., June 12 (AP).—Charles Curtis, former Vice President, said today there are "at least 20 Republicans" who could defeat President Roosevelt for reelection in 1936.

"Recently I said there were 12," he recalled. "Now I say 20." His optimistic outlook was linked significantly with praise for the party's recent "Grass Roots" convention at Springfield, Ill.

Hoover on Way Home, Still a Silent Man

New York, June 12 (AP).—Former President Hoover, clinging to the role of silent man, left by train tonight for Palo Alto, Calif., after attending a directors' meeting of the New York Life Insurance Company.

"I won't talk politics," he insisted. The board meeting also was attended by Alfred E. Smith.

Hoover expects to arrive home in time Sunday to address the graduating class of Stanford University.

GOSSIPERS PEEVED WHEN WOMAN REDUCED 21 LBS.

Never Felt So Good In 20 Years.

Gossipers who tell you reducing is harmful or that you don't need to reduce (when your mirror tells you differently) probably wouldn't want to see you the slender woman you can be if you'll take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a cup of hot water every morning—tastes fine with juice of half lemon added.

Kruschen can't harm you—it's a health treatment—physicians prescribe it. If one jar (lasts 4 weeks and costs but a trifle) doesn't make you feel years younger and healthier—money back.

Mrs. J. C. Beaham, of Callaway, Va., writes: "I was too fat to have good health. I weighed 228 and after taking Kruschen for a month I lost 21 lbs., and feel better than I have for 20 yrs.—Advt.

President Congratulates Outstanding Cadet

Roosevelt's Speech to West Point Cadets

By the Associated Press.

West Point, N. Y., June 12.—The text of President Roosevelt's speech to the graduating class of the United States Military Academy today follows:

As one who was born and reared within a few miles of West Point, I have always been familiar with the long and glorious record of the United States Military Academy; and I have always thought of the officers and cadets stationed here as my friends and neighbors. I wish I could have been here to attend in person the brilliant ceremonies, reviews and the entertainments of the past few days.

At this moment, we come to the culmination—an event which marks not only the close of four years of preparation for a great career, but also the induction into the Army of the United States of its annual infusion of new blood whereby our military leadership is kept young, forward-looking, and virile.

Sees Democracy Personified.

This academy, with its sister school of Annapolis, are the personification of democracy in the equality of opportunity they afford, uninfluenced by prior social position or economic standing. They nurture patriotism and devotion to country. They teach that honor, integrity and the faithful performance of duty are to be valued above all personal advantage or advancement. Their success is written in the long and brilliant record of service which their graduates rendered to the Nation. It is true that in your curriculum you have been studying a profession—one in which the need of specialization has greatly increased in recent years. But this is true of many other professions. The development of modern civilization calls for specialization.

Yet, with specialization it is essential that those who enter upon a profession, civilian or military, must eternally keep before their eyes the practical relationship of their own profession to the rights, the hopes and the needs of the whole body of citizens who make up the Nation. One of the most difficult tasks of government today is to avoid the aggrandizement of any one group and to keep the main objective of the general good clear and unimpaired.

Stresses Co-operation.

The captain of a company will fail if in thinking only of his company he forgets the relationship of his company to the company on his right and the company on his left—the relationship of his company to the regiment as a whole. The successful commander of an army must give consideration to all of the units which make up his army and in addition must of necessity remember the existence, the condition and the ultimate strength of his reserves and of the civilian population which is serving the same cause behind the lines.

A sense of proportion is essential to the effective attainment of any great objective. I shall always remember a day in the summer of 1918 when I visited the headquarters of Gen. Foch, the commander-in-chief of the Allied and associated armies. With a single aide I motored from Paris and came to a delightful old chateau far behind the lines and lying within its little walled park in the most peaceful, bucolic surroundings you can imagine. One sentry at the gate. Within the park a few chickens and a couple of cows. At the door, nobody. In answer to our ring, the door was opened by a captain and in a moment we found ourselves in the presence of Gen. Foch, who was reading a French novel. I spent an hour with the general and discovered that his entire staff consisted of half a dozen officers and a dozen privates.

Dispatch From Haig.

While I was there a young British dispatch rider came in bearing the daily report from Marshal Haig. That report was written in longhand on one sheet of paper. It said in effect: "My dear general: No advances or retirements of major importance today. Reserves increased 1,500 men since yesterday. They now total 275,000. Very sincerely yours."

A few minutes later a similar note was brought in by an aid of Gen. Pershing.

I marveled at the simplicity of the general's headquarters and at the apparent lack of detail which he received from the generals in command of the various armies. Foch said to me, "If I concerned myself with details, I could not win the war. I can consider only major advances or major retirements. The knowledge of movements of two or three kilometers here or there would confuse me by diverting my attention from the great objective. Only major results and major strategy concern the commander in chief. Most especially am I concerned with the reserve power of men, of guns, of ammunition and of supplies. That includes of necessity consideration of what the people of France, the people of England and the people of the United States are doing and can do to keep the allied armies in a position to make victory a certainty."

You who are about to become officers of the highly efficient Regular Army of the United States will recognize that you are an integral part not only of that army but also of the citizenship of the United States. As a Nation we have been fortunate in a geographic isolation which in itself partially protected our boundless resources. To that happy circumstances has been added the priceless blessing of friendship with our near neighbors.

It is in full appreciation of our advantageous position and of our own devotion to the cause of peace that our Nation's defensive system has always reflected the single purpose that that name implies. We maintain an army to promote tranquillity and to secure us from aggression, but it is so created and so modest in proportion as to furnish proof that no threat or menace to the rights of others is even remotely intended. On some occasions in our history we have reduced our army to a level unjustified by a due regard to our own safety. It was in the conviction that we had again drifted too far in that direction that I have recently approved acts of the Congress to accomplish a partial restoration of the Army's enlisted strength and increasing the enrollment of cadets in the United States Military Academy.

Urges Friendly Attitude.

The greatest need of the world today is the assurance of permanent peace—an assurance based on mutual understanding and mutual regard. During your careers you will go to many stations at home and abroad, enjoying unusual opportunities to mingle with our own and other people, to learn their points of view and to appreciate their aspirations. If you strive at all times to promote friendship and to discourage suspicion, to teach respect for the rights of others and to decry aggression, to oppose intolerance with a spirit of mutual helpfulness—then, indeed, your services will be of full value to your Government and a source of satisfaction to yourselves. Sympathetic understanding of fellowmen has ever been the hallmark of the leader. Last, but by no means least, you will be worthy of the illustrious traditions of West Point.

Personally I extend to each and every one of you who graduate today my congratulations and best wishes. As Commander in Chief of the Army of the United States, I tell you that I am proud of you and wish you Godspeed.

ernment and satisfaction to themselves, for, Mr. Roosevelt pointed out, "sympathetic understanding of fellowmen has ever been the hallmark of the leader."

The President declared that "we maintain an army to promote tranquility and to secure us from aggression, but it is so created and so modest in proportion as to furnish proof that no threat or menace to the rights of others is even remotely intended."

Mr. Roosevelt recited a story of his meeting with Gen. Foch, supreme commander of the Allied Armies during the World War, to illustrate the importance of not being diverted from main objectives by details. Some read into that part of his address an expression of the President's determination not to be turned away from the objectives of his New Deal by passing events.

These declarations of policy and attitude were made in the presence not only of the full Cadet Corps at West Point and a gayly dressed audience of proud mothers and fathers, admiring sisters and sweethearts, but also of high ranking Government and Army officials, including Secretary of War George H. Dern, Postmaster General James A. Farley and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff of the Army.

On Scene Early.

Ending a five-day visit to his Hyde Park home, 33 miles up the Hudson River from the Military Academy, President Roosevelt was at the breakfast table before the morning sun had a chance to dry the dew on the flowers outside. He was joined by his military and naval aids, Col. Edwin M. Watson and Capt. Wilson Brown, respectively.

Accompanied by his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, and with the presidential insignia flying from staffs on the front of his automobile, the President left his estate at 7:55 a. m., Washington time, for West Point. The motorcade swept through the Hudson River Valley, escorted by a squadron of New York State police.

Entering the Military Academy grounds, the President was welcomed by Maj. Gen. Frank W. Connor, superintendent of the school, and his staff. The driveway through the grounds was lined with noncommissioned officers and enlisted men, standing at rigid attention.

As a colored squadron of black horse cavalry wheeled into position ahead of the President's automobile to escort him, an artillery field piece commenced firing a salute of 21 guns, which boomed and echoed through the Catskill Mountains.

The graduation ceremonies were held on an improvised pavilion at the base of the monument erected to those who died "in the war of rebellion." They were brief and simple. Mr. Roosevelt did not sit down during the event, but stood leaning on the arm of his youthful son, John, except when he was speaking.

Diplomas Awarded.

The Rev. F. E. Foust, chaplain at West Point, pronounced a brief invocation and Gen. Connor presented the President. Following Mr. Roosevelt's address the graduating class, in short-tailed gray coats, gleaming white trousers, gloves and caps, marched one by one to the platform to receive degrees of bachelor of science and commissions as second lieutenants.

The President shook hands with each cadet and expressed "congratulations." Each of the new officers snappily saluted both before and after shaking hands with the President. A rousing cheer was given for John Drake Bristor, the honor man of the class, who later posed with the President for the cameramen.

Uproarious cheers also came from the regiment of cadets whenever a football player stepped forward for his diploma, while mothers, some with tear-dimmed eyes, and laughing sweethearts, waved their handkerchiefs. The spring frocks of the hundreds of women present were as varied as the colors of a rainbow, set off by the greensward and the foliage of the trees.

Mrs. Roosevelt, after an all-night ride from Chapel Hill, N. C., joined the President at the Military Academy. She sat during the ceremonies with the President's mother, the wives of some of the high-ranking officials and officers and the girls of the White House secretariat.

Following the ceremonies, the presidential group and the West Point faculty were entertained at a garden party by Gen. and Mrs. Connor. The President, sitting under a lattice arbor in the superintendent's garden, held an impromptu reception.

With all the ceremony and pomp specified in the Army manual for the Commander in Chief of the Army, the President boarded his train and was on his way to Washington shortly before noon.

Finland Pays Again As Others Default

Little Finland has made good again on her debt to this country.

While other countries were notifying the State Department that they again would default, the Helsingfors government sent official word that it would pay the installment due June 15, amounting to $165,433.

Rumania yesterday joined the nations that have decided to default again. Rumania already is $2,348,250 in arrears. The installment due on Saturday amounts to $2,200,000.

Great Britain, Italy and Czechoslovakia previously have sent word they would not pay the June 15 installments.

Death Threat By Lawyer Told In Urschel Case

Kidnaper's Wife Testifies Counsel, on Trial, Sought to Handle Ransom.

By the Associated Press.

Oklahoma City, June 12.—A kidnaper's wife told a Federal court jury today that Attorney Ben B. Laska, of Denver, threatened to have her throat cut if she did not carry out his orders in disposing of ransom money.

The testimony of Mrs. Clara Feldman, a Government witness, was repeated during her cross-examination by Laska, one of two attorneys charged with conspiracy in the $200,000 ransom kidnaping July 22, 1933, of Charles F. Urschel, oil millionaire.

"I didn't say to you that I'd cut your throat, as the Government has tried to show, did I?" Laska asked.

"Yes, you did," Mrs. Feldman insisted in a low voice. "You said to me that if I didn't take your instructions you'd have my throat cut."

Laska, counsel for Albert Bates, who is Mrs. Feldman's husband, and James C. Mathers, of Oklahoma City, counsel for Harvey Bailey, are accused of accepting ransom money as attorney fees. Both Bailey and Bates are serving life prison terms.

Tells of Fear.

"You were afraid of me?" Laska asked.

"Yes," said Mrs. Feldman.

The Government contends that her son, Edward Feldman, gave $10,000 in ransom money to Laska and that Laska gave $1,000 of it to Mathers.

Mrs. Molly Edison, of Denver, who is to be Laska's "surprise" witness, was excluded from the courtroom today at the request of United States District Attorney W. C. Lewis. She is expected to testify that she witnessed the payment by Edward Feldman to Laska and that no mention was made of ransom.

Mrs. Feldman, who uses the name of her son's father, said she married Bates three months before he was arrested.

Had $2,000 in Bank.

She testified she hid part of the ransom between Laramie and Cheyenne, Wyo., and had $2,000 in a bank.

"He (Laska) then said he wanted that, but I didn't have my certificate with me and couldn't get it," she said.

Mrs. Feldman said Laska told her when she and her son were settled "in some big city we should get the money and put it in the sink . . . under the drain pipe. . . . in a container so it wouldn't get wet.

"He said that's where he kept his," she added.

Tax Unit Worker Denies Plot Roll

White Says Work Caused Contact With Accused.

By the Associated Press.

Roanoke, Va., June 12.—Attributing his association with admitted liquor runners and others, including defendants to the duties his undercover work entailed, Samuel O. White, indicted acting assistant of the West Virginia alcohol tax unit, this afternoon denied any of his acts were in the furtherance of a conspiracy. He was suspended early in February pending the outcome of the trial of alleged Franklin County liquor plotters.

The small, dapper agent, who worked in several States, but spent a third of his time in Franklin County, admitted that he had accepted half of $50 Charles Carter Lee, indicted Commonwealth's attorney, offered for the arrest of Mrs. Willie Carter (Sharpe), "pilot" car driver, but denied, in a brief cross-examination that it was a violation of Federal laws to accept such a "gratuity."

First Pictures of Kidnapers Since Capture

Fate a Question.

To what extent the Waleys would be punishable in the event of conviction or a plea of guilty on kidnaping charges remained to be determined.

There were unverified reports they had decided to accept a life sentence rather than face the possibility of trial under the drastic Washington State law, which permits the death penalty even though the victim may not have been hurt, said that under the Lindbergh law the penalty was possible only where a victim is bodily injured or is not returned. They said that law can be invoked in the Weyerhaeuser case because of evidence the vicitm had been carried across a State line.

The man-hunt out of Butte for Mahan embraced an array of determined Justice Department and customs officers as well as local authorities.

Detention of a transient at Mobridge, S. D., as a possible suspect caused a flurry of excitement. His description did not tally with that of the fugitive former convict, but he was held for investigation.

Officers said Mahan had companions when here. They were overlooking no chances.

Canadian Angle.

The Canadian angle bobbed up first when William Mahon, Great Falls, Mont., transportation executive, reported Mahan had lived in Saskatchewan and might be in hiding there.

Mahan barely escaped capture by police here Sunday when he abandoned an automobile containing more than $15,000 of the ransom money.

George Weyerhaeuser and his father, J. P. Weyerhaeuser, jr., returned from a mysterious trip today, but the home at Tacoma refused to respond to telephone calls and there was no way of determining where they had been.

The boy previously had visited the abductors' hide-out house in Spokane and identified it. Justice Department agents examined the place closely but revealed nothing of their findings.

Cumberland Suits Fight Meter Tax

Writ Against Enforcement in Cumberland Sought.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 12.—Three separate suits for injunctions against the mayor and city council, Harry H. Thayer, city clerk, and Oscar A. Eyerman, chief of police, as defendants, were docketed yesterday in the circuit court by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., Cumberland & Allegheny Gas Co., and Potomac Edison Co., asking that the defendants be enjoined from enjorcing the privilege or meter tax, which will go into effect July 1.

Judge David A. Robb signed an order for the defendants to show cause on or before June 17 why the injunction should not be issued.

The bills for injunction are based on the contention that the city charter of Cumberland does not give the council power to impose license fees on utility company meters. Answer will be filed by Lewis M. Wilson, city solicitor.

Rev. Miller Named Conference Head

Brethren Church Delegates Meet in Winchester.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., June 12.—The Rev. E. L. Miller, of Maurertown, has been elected moderator of the forty-eighth annual conference of the Southeastern District of the Brethren Churches, including the States of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Tennessee and the District of Columbia, which is in session here.

He succeeds the Rev. Homer A. Kent, of Washington. Other officers elected include the Rev. Herman Koontz, Roanoke, vice moderator; the Rev. John F. Locks, Maurertown, secretary statistician; Maurice Stillwell, Washington, treasurer, and Floyd Hartman, Washington, music director.

The Maurertown Church will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary Sunday as a part of the conference program. It is the mother church of the Southeastern District.

3-Year Conflict In Chaco Ends With Armistice

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Buenos Aires, June 12.—The "cease firing" order will resound all along the Chaco's blood-drenched battle lines Friday at noon, and three years of unbroken warfare that took an estimated 100,000 Paraguayan and Bolivian lives will end.

A peace protocol worked out by American neutrals during two weeks of negotiations here was signed formally by representatives of the two belligerents at 12:30 p. m. today. It set in motion machinery the neutrals hoped would bring definite settlement of the 50-year-old Chaco controversy.

Under its terms, hostilities will halt Friday at midday, to remain suspended until the neutral military commission which was to leave Buenos Aires by airplane this afternoon fixes the lines for the formal 12-day truce agreed upon.

Tonight virtually every South American capital was "en fiesta" at the end of the long, bitter, bloody war, with celebrations approaching the peak of delirium in Asuncion and La Paz, capitals of Paraguay and Bolivia.

The glad news was flashed to the weary troops in the Chaco, who face only 48 more hours peril of death from bullets, hunger and thirst.

Tomas M. Elio and Luis Riart, foreign ministers of Bolivia and Paraguay, respectively, signed for their countries in the ceremony at the Casa Rosada, presidential mansion, over which President Augustin P. Justo of Argentina presided. The ceremonies were broadcast by radio to the warring nations.

Representatives of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru, the United States States and Uruguay witnessed the crowning of their fortnight's peace endeavors, which succeeded where previous mediation and conciliation efforts had failed. Members of the diplomatic corps also were present.

In the course of the 12-day truce, armies of the belligerents will be demobilized. A peace conference at Buenos Aires, expected to be summoned immediately thereafter, will discuss terms of permanent settlement of the controversy.

Too Late.

Sixteen months have passed since the President launched his short-lived campaign against political fixers and party chieftains holding Government positions. The heat which momentarily scorched Democratic National committeemen enjoying the spoils of the New Deal victory has long since been turned off. Bills designed to give legal effect to the President's fleeting wishes are gathering dust in their pigeonholes. In fact, the brief purge of January, 1934, has been forgotten, except by the few who were most impressed.

The Administration's movement against political influence in high places, or rather the appearance of such influence, arose like a whirlwind at a press conference. It subsided just as quickly when the White House recognized the absurdity of separating minor officials from their party jobs while the Postmaster General continued serving as chairman of the Democratic National committee and as national committeeman from New York. Since that time the fight to divorce the Government service from the spoils system has centered upon Postmaster General Farley.

Retirement of Mr. Farley along with the other national committeemen who were forced out of Federal jobs in the winter of 1934 might have changed the character of the New Deal so far as personnel matters are concerned. But the recent announcement that he will withdraw from the Cabinet to his proper sphere of politics seems to carry little significance. More than a shift of the Postmaster Generalship will be required.

Mr. Farley is planning to leave the Postoffice Department simply because the President thinks he should spend his full time on the political firing line. There is no indication that Farleyism is in disrepute at the White House. It is not a case of loving political job hunters less, but of loving a second political victory more. Friends of the merit system will find little satisfaction, therefore, in the prospective accomplishment for political purposes of an objective which they have sought on grounds of principle.

Heredity And Nutrition.

The perennial controversy of evolution, whether the development of a stock can be controlled by diet or any other environmental factors, has been reopened by Dr. James S. McLester, speaking at his inaugural as president of the American Medical Association. In sum, Dr. McLester declared that the science of nutrition now makes it possible for man to control his own destiny and to evolve himself into a race of supermen.

Geneticists have argued the question of "nature versus nurture" as evolutionary determinants for years. One school points to the vast swarms of fruit flies that have been exposed to X-rays, radium, heat and similar influences. Alterations in the color of eyes, shape of head, wings and bodies have thus been induced and—most significant—have ultimately become racial traits capable of transmission from generation to generation.

However, science is not ready to confirm Kipling's story of the baby elephant whose nose was yanked by an alligator thus starting the line of trunk-nosed beasts. Investigators have found that a mother subjected to food deficiencies passes the effect to her offspring and they are born in a subnormal condition. Yet neither the parents' genes, those units of the chromosomes which determine structural formations of the embryo, nor the child's genes are affected. A later child born under more auspicious conditions of the same mother will not be affected though it is subjected to the same inherited factors.

The facts of heredity probably lie somewhere between the two arguments. Both heredity and environment are potent factors in the development of a race. Having no law save that of natural selection to control the hereditary factors, it remains for an upward-striving people to turn to intelligent manipulation of its environment.

How poorly this country is succeeding in such endeavors is intimated by Dr. McLester, who estimates that 30,000,000 Americans today are "living near or below the threshold of nutritive safety." This does not mean that one-sixth (and probably more if low-income bracket birth statistics are to be trusted) of the next generation will necessarily be mentally and physically handicapped. But it does emphasize the urgent necessity of extending the much discussed high standard of living in this country to that large group which is still suffering from insufficient food.

A Destructive Measure.

Defeat by a single vote of Senator Dieterich's proposed amendment to the public utility bill is encouraging evidence of growing opposition to a measure that in the name of regulation is designed to destroy the regulated. Under Section XI of the bill as passed, all public utility holding companies with certain specified exemptions would cease to exist within a period of seven years. The Securities and Exchange Commission may, however, permit a holding company to continue, if that is necessary under the applicable State or foreign law, for the operation of a geographically and economically integrated public utility system serving an economic region in a single State or extending into two or more contiguous States.

Senator Dieterich explained that his proposal, while intended to give full control and absolute power of regulation, was designed to lift this death sentence passed upon the utility holding companies. It was intended, he said, simply to eliminate the arbitrary power to strike down an industry, whether legitimate or illegitimate, honest or dishonest. Nevertheless, after rejecting another amendment of somewhat the same tenor by a narrow margin of two votes, the Senate approved one introduced by Senator Borah which actually strengthens Section XI The Borah amendment is, however, not of great practical significance, since its ban against all but first-degree holding companies would with limited exceptions be assured in any case under the provisions of Section XI.

By virtually decreeing the destruction of most of the country's utility holding companies and making the SEC a receiver for them, a tremendous power is vested in this Federal bureaucratic agency. No matter how capable or disinterested the commission members may be, there is no guarantee that the SEC will be able to preserve its independence of political domination. Furthermore, the responsibility placed upon an organization without special knowledge or training in the management problems that confront the utility industry is extraordinarily heavy.

Apart from the grave misgivings aroused by the drastic provisions of Section XI, there are other objections of a serious nature. For instance, the bill would authorize Federal regulation of the generation as well as transmission of power across State lines. Thus it will precipitate court battles over its constitutionality which will produce a condition of uncertainty extremely detrimental to the future expansion of the private power industry.

There is no questioning the need for elimination of abuses that have grown up under a system of imperfect regulation of this industry. Giant holding companies superimposed upon holding companies have made it easy for dishonest or ignorant managements to deceive and defraud millions of Americans who have invested their savings in utility securities. However, the extensive powers conferred upon the SEC under recent regulatory legislation provide much greater safeguards against repetition of such abuses. And better protection against consumer exploitation could be afforded by a coordinated program of State and Federal regulation which would avoid constitutional obstacles, while filling in the gaps that now exist in the regulatory structure.

In this holding company bill the country has been given another unhappy illustration of that type of reforming zeal that seems eager to overthrow existing institutions instead of retaining what is good and extirpating what is bad. There is much that is both good and bad in our holding companies and it would seem to be the part of wisdom to salvage the socially beneficial features of these organizations. They have invested capital in parts of the country deficient in funds. They have in many cases provided advice and management which have benefited those local communities. Yet the bill ignores claims to consideration based on efficient performance.

Both opponents and advocates of the Wheeler bill have indulged in exaggerated statements of its devastating effects upon the interests of the holders of utility securities. The widows and orphans whose savings have gone into unsound ventures will not be helped by legislation of any sort. It can not re-create non-existent values. On the other hand, dissolution of holding companies would certainly entail losses for owners of securities, especially if liquidation were forced within a definite time limit. The emphasis placed upon these matters has, however, distracted attention from another extremely important aspect of the proposed legislation—that is, its tendency to discourage investment in an industry which in the years prior to 1929 disbursed hundreds of millions of dollars in expanding its activities.

Hopes for a reasonable revision of the measure are fortunately not yet dead. The House bill is still in process of being rewritten and possibly the House will prove more open minded and constructive than the Senate.

Good-bye To Glamour.

In 1895, Oscar Hammerstein constructed what was destined for many years to be one of the gayest spots in New York City. Rendezvous for Diamond Jim Brady and his ilk—with their satin-lined capes, boutonnieres, and crescent-shaped moustaches—the old New York Theater on Seventh avenue is passing into legend this week as its walls go down before a wrecking crew.

It was in this ancient landmark that the late Florenz Ziegfeld first glorified the American girl in the Follies of 1911. Four years later, the warmth of these flesh-and-blood performances gave way to the colder medium of motion pictures, and stage-door Johnnies no longer waited in an adjacent alley to whisk leading ladies away to champagne and lobster suppers. Equally gay was the roof of the playhouse, where tulle-bosomed beauties with diamond-studded pompadours shed their slippers night after night so that gay young blades might imbibe wine from them.

Monday morning a "wake" was held in the doomed theater by old troupers who were "big time" at the turn of the century. Daniel Frohman, Joe Weber and Gus Edwards were among those who reminisced over the days when Marie Dressler was the toast of a comedy-loving Broadway that arrived in droves of hansom cabs to see her.

There is always a certain nostalgic regret at the changes made necessary by progress. But the memory of a theatre enriched by the glamorous traditions of a cake-walk era will not soon die. And it is better that such a landmark of gayety should fall under the workman's hammer than that it should stand as a skeleton—with rows of empty seats, silent orchestra pit and darkened stage.

Unfair Legislative Practices.

Unfair practices in business have been the subject of extensive debate in Congress and of considerable legislation. The Senate especially is inclined to become wrought up over chiseling, discrimination, monopoly and so-called racketeering in the business world. But apparently little thought is given to curbing unfair legislative practices.

In considering the revised NRA bill the Senate is pressed for time. Unless the measure can be enacted this week NRA will expire, thus magnifying the confusion of business and industries that hope to maintain basic code standards on a voluntary basis. Under these circumstances expeditious debate on the merits of the bill and an early vote in the Senate ought to be considered a matter of course. Instead, the Senate is bedeviled by extraneous amendments and a one-man filibuster.

Administration leaders in the Senate agreed to far-reaching restrictions upon the already emasculated NRA in a futile attempt to appease its foes. The Harrison amendment would limit the scope of voluntary codes to collective bargaining, minimum wages, maximum hours, prohibition of child labor and unfair trade practices forbidden by existing law. In the opinion of some legislators this means virtual restoration of the anti-trust laws. Still the obstructionists are not satisfied.

It is especially unfortunate that Senator Gore's opposition to NRA led him into the position of a cat's-paw for Huey Long. His amendment requiring senatorial confirmation of all Federal employes drawing more than $4,000 per year has no bearing upon the extension of NRA. It was used merely for obstructive purposes, thereby falling into the same category as Senator Long's filibuster. Such an absence of fair play not only frustrates—temporarily at least—the legislative will of the majority but it subjects Congress to ridicule.

Experienced correspondents report that during the tangle over NRA the Senate galleries were filled with Shriners and other visitors to the Capital who were so delighted with the antics of some Senators that they refused to return to their own carnival on Pennsylvania avenue. Unwittingly the Senate put on a burlesque show. Members of Congress frequently complain that the newspapers belittle their activities in the public eye. But the performances of Tuesday and Wednesday speak for themselves. The press has simply recounted the grossly unfair legislative practices used by some members of the Senate to promote their own ideas on fair business practices.

Consider The Lilies.

For all the color and fragrance he wins, there is something that the gardener misses. He generally fails to obtain what can only be vaguely described as the spirit of a flower, especially those which are essentially creatures of the wild.

This, for instance, is the time of year when horticultural experts are extolling the merits of the water lily. To believe their words, the water lily is "becoming extremely popular"—becoming, forsooth! They may be placed, it appears, in tubs and sunk in cement pools. Inasmuch as they are heavy feeders, an abundance of fertilizer is said to be required. To anyone who knows anything of water lilies, this in all its dispassion is sickening talk.

The water lily is a queen. She holds her court on sunny summer days far up the river. Usually, one decides to go swimming or sometimes it's to go after a perch or two that bathing trunks are ordered and the canoe trundled down to the water's edge. May flies dimple the glassy surface as shoulders are bent against the thick current. Turtles, interrupted in their sunbaths, flop off their rocks and under the lee of a sand bank a kingfisher swoops along. The warm water sucks and gurgles beneath the paddle. Two cows, standing hock-deep in black mud, look up with dripping jowls at the passing scene. Darning needles clatter past on wings of cellophane and a deer-fly delights itself in pestering a sweaty forehead.

Then, quietly, around a bend there are the water lilies. Beyond that rotted post where the rusty barbed wire straggles down from some forgotten fence the water is completely covered over with flat waxen pads. And through and between rise the lilies—white and fresh and gleaming.

He who would transplant them would cage a wood thrush or embalm a dog.

It might be well to reflect now and then upon the fact that it is possible to reach a point where the country would be sunk by its floating debt.

Hasten the day when nations can depend upon heads, instead of arms, to safeguard their interests.

A Change Of Mind.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now that my memory has been refreshed through the columns of The Post on several speeches made by Mr. Roosevelt while Governor of New York on the subject of States' rights which he defended to the uttermost limit in its narrowest construction, I can better appreciate his charge that the Republican Party had "complete control" of all branches of the Federal Government, to which he added, "and to make it complete, the United States Supreme Court as well."

But this understanding becomes confused when I recall that, after he became President, he asked for the resignation of Judge Humphrey, a member of the Federal Trade Commission, only because he suspected the judge was not a New Dealer.

If the Supreme Court had not held the discharge of Humphrey illegal, it is fair to presume the President would have asked for the resignation of other judges, until perhaps, the New Dealers would have "complete control" of all branches of the Federal Government, "and to make it complete, the United States Supreme Court as well."

But on March 2, 1930, Gov. Roosevelt opposed "Federal oligarchy" when he said in a radio address from the Governor's mansion:

> Thus already it was clear to the framers of our Constitution that the greatest possible liberty of self-government must be given to each State, and that any national administration attempting to make all laws for the whole Nation, such as was wholly practical in Great Britain, would inevitably result at some future time in a dissolution of the Union itself . . .

The doctrine of regulation and legislation by "master minds" . . . has been too glaringly apparent at Washington during these last ten years . . . Thus it will be seen that this home-rule is a most important thing if we are to continue along the course on which we have so far progressed with such unprecedented success . . . We are safe from the danger of any such departure from the principles on which this Government was founded just so long as the individual home-rule of the States is scrupulously preserved and fought for whenever they seem in danger . . .

But President Roosevelt has changed his mind radically since 1930. GROVER AYERS.

Honor Due.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Washington newspapers erroneously stated that the recent beautiful service in memory of peace-time heroes was "sponsored by the National Council for Prevention of War."

This honor belongs, not to us, but to a group of 50 or more Washington citizens whose interest was secured by an organizing committee headed by the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, FREDERICK J. LIBBY.
Executive Secretary, National Council for Prevention of War.
Washington, June 10.

The Small Farmer Speaks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want to speak a word for the "under dog," meaning the small farmer. Many of them are on relief because they are not allowed to plant enough to clothe and feed their families.

To cite one instance of thousands: A hard-working farmer, with a wife and children, was allowed to plant three acres of cotton last year and he made a 500-pound bale. His allotment was 150 pounds of lint, so he had to pay the Government $14 before he could sell it. He had about $46 left to pay for his fertilizer and clothe and feed his family for a year.

The "big farmer" are paid $18 an acre for the rented cotton land, which is more than any small farmer has made on any acre in many years. The county committees are composed of "big farmers," and when appealed to for help say, "You ought to have been planting more before the Government took charge." No doubt some who read this will think of the farmers who went to Washington recently to ask the Government to retain control of cotton.

I would like to ask the readers if they saw in that crowd or the pictures of that crowd a single poor farmer? They did not, for all of them were "big farmers." The small farmer did not have the money for the trip, and, being ignorant of Government ways, did not know how to get it.

Impatient For Ballot.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now that over one-half this Presidential term is over, it seems bad taste for the Administration's spokesmen to continue referring to Hoover's regime and to the fateful days of March, 1933. Some other alibi will have to be found, as the allusions are beginning to call attention to the consistent and monumental failure of this Administration.

I suggest further that the voluble spokesmen get a new line of enemy slogans, as the people are getting weary of such overused slogans as "Tool of Wall Street," Chiseler" and "Vested Interests." An administration can not justify itself by repeating old chestnuts over and over. These references have lost all weight and are beginning to act as boomerangs.

People are beginning to see that the real vested interests of these times are the job-holding bureaucrats and that they are not devoid of the very natural tendency to look after their own interests. People are awfully tired of negatives and will soon give up looking for anything positive from this Administration. Many of us have already given up and await patiently the next chance to express ourselves through the ballot.

Approves Credit Unions.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: I couldn't help writing to tell you how glad I was to see an article in your Federal Diary section on June 8 about credit unions. There is one in my department and I realize more and more how much it means to the employes.

In my opinion these organizations should exist in all Government departments and all business firms as well.

I hope also that there will be more articles about them in your paper. WIMBISH HANCOCK.

Proposal For A Langton Memorial.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Perhaps no keener clash of mighty minds has ever occurred in this troubled and troublous world than that which took place at Runnymede between King John and Stephen Langton, Archbishop of Canterbury, leader of the embattled nobles against this cunning, ruthless and unscrupulous monarch.

John Richard Greene, in his history of England, called John "the ablest of the Angevins;" that is, the Plantagenets. When one reflects that this statement takes in Richard the Lion Hearted and that superb statesman and legislator, Henry II, it is a tribute or a concession not lightly to be passed over.

John fought every attempted limitation of his power with a skill and an adroitness that might have deceived a lesser man than Langton. In the first place, he insisted that the Great Charter (Magna Charta) should be addressed "To all our faithful subjects," enumerating in extenso all people whom he would have a right to call to the assistance of the King. We can readily imagine the intellectual scorn with which Langton noted the evasion, but he let John "get away with it," well knowing that he would meet that point later on in the rescript of the charter; John's purpose, of course, was to leave to his own decision who his faithful subjects were. In the fortieth paragraph, however, consisting of a single line, Langton met him with these words, "We shall neither deny, nor delay, nor sell justice to any man." The King's last hope of nullifying the Great Charter was to sign it not as King of England (Rex Angliae) but "Dux Normanniae;" that is, Duke of Normandy.

To no man in all Anglo-Saxon history is more honor due than to the wise, heroic and absolutely immovable Archbishop of Canterbury. For once John met his match. That royal scoundrel had betrayed over 12 years his immortal brother, Richard the Lion Hearted, and for over even a longer period had deceived so acute an intellect as Henry II. The debt all civilization owes to Stephen Langton will only be computed in the mountainous benefits of his courage and character as the centuries roll on.

May I make a suggestion to The Post? Why not erect a monument in this Capital City, which exists in liberty under law as a result of Langton's life? Why not have every school child in the United States contribute 1 penny to the Langton memorial, and when sufficient funds have been collected to assure the memorial, see to it that every child in the United States, whether in the primary, preparatory or high school grades, be given a copy of Magna Charta in the English tongue?

The Constitution of the United States fundamentally depends upon the propulsive forces of liberty sent forth from Runnymede on June 19, 1215. The voice of Runnymede was again heard in England in 1688 when the great Somers wrung from King James II the bill of rights. The rest of liberty's onward and upward influence is to be found in our Constitution, which reiterates and in its originality of phraseology redeclares the principles of 1215 and 1688. ROWLAND B. MAHANY.

The Post Impressionist

From Thompson To Gilbert.

Post Office, Thursday.

WAS there not a real "Alice of Old Vincennes?" Our columnar version of Grover Des Jeans' Alice anecdote draws from Arch A. Mercy what seems a doubting letter. He writes: "In Vincennes there lives to this day, or did when last I heard from there, a man said to be directly responsible for that novel.

"Years ago, one Benoit Fritsch left France and settled at this town on the Wabash, there to make his name in the adumbrative background of American letters. College-trained, he opened a saloon—but a saloon which soon became a rendezvous for the intelligentsia who happened through Vincennes.

"He was an erudite soul, a connoisseur of literature as well as wines. One day a writer came along and to him, Benny himself has often told me, he related the story of 'Alice'—even to its heroine's name—pointing out the old house where he asserted that Alice had lived: a place near that where now stands the $2,000,000 memorial to George Rogers Clark.

"The last time I was in Vincennes I saw a short, bandy-legged Benny walk leisurely toward the village postoffice. The local library has a copy of his 'memoirs,' which librarian Jane Kitchell is glad to show the traveler. But these memoirs are an inadequte heritage from the memory of a mellowed old man whose lips can spin many a yarn of more than passing interest about Vincennes' colorful past."

There is no doubt, anyway concerning the animus of another of the Column's friends who writes us today. He timidly signs his verses "JUST 1-125,000,000th." But in those verses themselves he speaks right out:

"Since Gilbert wrote 'Mikado'
There's a much extended list
Of ginks who get your goat, and so
Would never more be missed:

"The radio-bug whose 9-tube set
Is always on the air—
He never tunes it off a bit,
But lets it blare and blare.

"The hyena at the movies
Who guffaws at the first jest
So long and loud and raucously
You never hear the rest.

"The cougher in the seat behind
(We're after him, by heck!)
He never brings his handkerchief;
He whoops right down your neck.

"Your next hotel-room neighbor
Who sneezes, hawks, then snores
Till he makes the ceiling shiver,
Unhinges all the doors.

"Sight-seeing blimps and airplanes
From the airport 'cross the way
Whose racket rips the shingles off
For twenty hours a day.

"Another ruddy nuisance is
The funny-story man
Whose every second sentence
Is the query 'Ynnerstan'?'

"As worrisome, annoying
And maddening as he,
The lad who ends each sentence
With the useless question 'See?'"

"The hog who crowds mid-highway
With a 1920 crate
And never yields an inch to let
You pass him when you're late.

In their ancient 'Model T'
Who hog the road and leave you
To choose 'twixt ditch and tree . . .

"A despot is this Nation's
Very first and direst need—
With a snickersnee that chops 'em
(All the lot) to chicken-feed!"

It has taken us rather a time to get around to another correspondent, Mr. D. J. Meade. But (begging his pardon) we are there at last.

Quite a while ago this Column spoke of Lycurgus, the Spartan lawgiver, as adorning the ninth century, B. C.

"When," says Mr. Meade, "gross errors, such as no eighth-grade pupil would make, are flouted before our eyes, they can not be charged to carelessness, but just plain ignorance . . . Lycurgus . . . came into the picture about 1,800 years later, in the ninth century, A. D."

"About Lycurgus," remarked Plutarch, "it is not possible to make a single statement that is not called in question."

Of course, besides his and ours, there were other Lycurgi: There was the Attic orator, son of Lycophron, but his date was about 396-325 B. C. There was Lycurgus the Logothete, but he was born in 1772, A. D., died in 1851.

"It would seem to me," concludes Mr. Meade, "that, in the personnel of a great paper like yours, there would be someone who would know better and save you from appearing ridiculous."

Mr. Meade, there is. He is here, vicariously, in several forms, to assist our feeble memories and enlighten our "plain ignorance." For the present case, we refer you to him in the form of the editor of Webster's Biographical Dictionary:

"Lycurgus, Spartan lawgiver . . . B. C., 9th c.?"

Carlisle Bargeron

Aw, Hush Yuh Mouf, Little Boy!

OF all the problems with which Mr. Roosevelt is confronted it is becoming apparent that not the least is his boy, Jimmie, little Jimmie. Or at lease Jimmie should be a problem. Of course, it may be that he is the apple of his daddy's eye. But he would worry most any other parent.

Jimmie was going like wild-fire in the politico-insurance business until his father heard of the political fire that was brewing around him. So he had him down to Washington for a while and then it was announced that he wasn't to be so active in the insurance business in the future, but instead was to manage Mr. Roosevelt's farm in New York State. Friends passed around the word also that Jimmie's health wasn't the best in the world.

But it seems that Jimmie hasn't retired to the farm at all. If Mr. Roosevelt waits for the research on his farm that it was announced he wanted Jimmie to make and the reason he was withdrawing from active insurance work, it is apparent Mr. Roosevelt will have to wait a long time.

• • • •

It seems that what happened is that while Jimmie was here he became contaminated by the Brain Trust and got it into his head that h ewanted to go into the thinking business. At any rate the thinking business is what Jimmie is now engaged in. Jimmie is barnstorming arouhd the country saying "I think" just like the other thinkers around here. And one of the funniest things is that the newspapers, usually quite crowded for space, are carrying what he thinks from time to time. However, the newspapers cater to diversified tastes. Some people undoubtetdly like to hear what Jimmie thinks and others like Andy Gump.

Of the grass roots rally of the Republicans in Springfield, Jimmie thinks most disparagingly. He thinks a party that is dead can't be revived. He thinks also that his Did's administration is doing great things.

One thing that Jimmie thought—in this address delivered in Excelsior Spring, Mo.—was that there should be provision for the Supreme Court to say earlier whether an act of Congress is constitutional.

"I, for one," said Jimmie, "would like to propose that provision be made in the immediate future for an earlier determination of the constitutionality of the acts of the Legislature." This should discourage Jimmie from any future attempt at thinking. He is lamenting that the NRA was knocked for a cocked hat after nearly two years of bluffing people that it was alive.

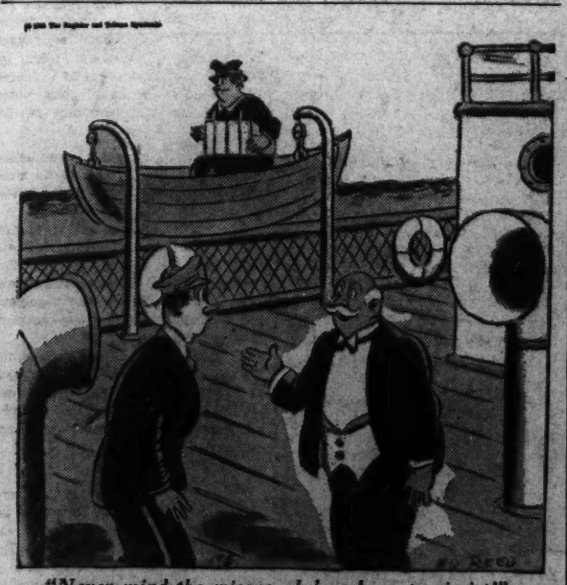
What Jimmie ought to know is that his father and the legislators are supposed to know something about the Constitution. He should also know that the reason the Court didn't give the information for so long was because his father did everything he could to keep the matter from getting to it. Had an early determination of NRA been wanted it could have been obtained within two or three months.

• • • •

Both Jimmie and his brother Elliot got to thinking at a convention of young Democrats in Texas. That is, they thought together. It might be called a brother thinking act. At this convention they thought the Constitution ought to be changed to let their father run things from Washington. The convention thought otherwise and Jimmie and Elliot got out, figuratively, by the skin of their necks. Elliot was the lobbyist here for the aviation industry but about the time Jimmie was to retire to the farm Elliot went to Texas to live.

It seems a pity that in his barnstorming tour Jimmie doesn't give the young Democrats a message which he really has and which would be most useful to them. They are young, up and coming in the game, and would be most interested in what is known as the "practical" side of the game. Jimmie knows this.

He ought to tell the youngsters how at a time when the liquor industry had every reason to keep in good with the Administration he walked into the office of the National Distillers in New York and got the fire insurance on $70,000,000 worth of liquor stock. Now, that would be telling the young boys and girls something they really ought to know if politics is to be their career.



"Never mind the missus, she's a born pessimist!"

Racket Revolution

By Vicente Albano Pacis.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Manila.

SOCIAL racketeering, motivated by vengeance and capitalizing the growing awakening of the Filipino peasant class, unfortunately occurring in the midst of the economic crisis, is mainly behind the Sakdalist movement in the Philippines, which suddenly flared up into open revolt on May 2-3 in several provinces in Central Luzon. This is the opinion among the overwhelming majority of those who have investigated the matter, including the courts of justice, prosecuting attorneys, official committees and newspapermen. The facts of the situation are being brought out in the trial of some 1,000 Sakdalists, including two members of the House of Representatives.

Sakdalism is a movement based on obviously ridiculous promises on the one hand and glaringly absurd charges against the government and public officials on the other hand. The government, the public officials attacked, and thoughtful citizens in general tacitly adopted a policy of ignoring the entire thing. Even the press considered the claims of its leaders akin to insanity, it ignored the movement and its ramifications, only to jam its front pages for months with Sakdalist activities and prosecutions following the abortive rebellion.

Sakdalism started as the attempt of a jobless man to make a living and at the same time to wreak vengeance on those whom he held guilty for his misfortune. The man is Benigno Ramos, a middle-aged vernacular newspaperman, former law student, a born orator and a poet in Tagalog, and at one time an employe of the Phillippine Senate.

• • • •

RAMOS had given up newspaper work and entered politics, making his debut as a campaign speaker. The political leaders of the majority party soon discovered that, in the dialect of central Luzon—the Tagalog—and before the semi-ignorant masses, Ramos was peerless. So they utilized him and rewarded him with a sinecure in the newspaper clipping office of the Philippine Senate. Sometime in 1923, however, he had somehow ceased to be a mere tool; he had developed his own public personality, and became often invited to make public appearances at drag-out affairs. On these occasions he began to show not only independence but a tendency to bite the hand that fed him—the party power.

It was soon thereafter that he was discharged from his position in the Legislature. Out of necessity he returned to his original modus vivendi. With borrowed money he founded a four-page weekly sheet in Tagalog called Sakdal, meaning to charge or accuse. From the start the paper lived up to its name. It reeked with extravagant charges against Manuel L. Quezon, Sergio Osmena, Manuel Roxas and all other public officials big enough to be hit. The charges were not confined to official acts; they extended into the personal lives of the editor's pet aversions.

As public officials, these men were accused as "despoilers enjoying fat salaries that the poor people pay them in the form of taxes." Referring especially to his bigger quarries, Ramos preached, "The leader who is amassing wealth should be abhorred, should be downed, for he is not a leader, but a despoiler." His attacks on their character and morality were equally sweeping, conscienceless and sensational. At one time, he printed the fictitious story to the effect that Carmen Aguinaldo Melencio, daughter of Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, had had to fire a revolver in a Washington, D. C., hotel to protect herself from the attentions of a Filipino political leader then on an official mission in Washington.

• • • •

OBSERVING the increasing circulation of his paper, which sold for a penny, Ramos next organized the Sakdalist Party, with his readers as nucleus. For the half-ignorant masses, especially the tenants in the big plantations and the workmen in the fields and the factories, found weekly entertainment and food for primitive thought in his paper. And noticing no denials of anything that Ramos printed, because the people concerned refused to dignify his charges by taking cognizance of them, these readers soon began to take everything he printed and said as gospel truth. Ramos correctly calculated that if he organized a party out of his readers, who by then numbered some 50,000, he would not only become a political power but he would also have an excuse to solicit contributions from them under the item of "campaign expenses."

No sooner said than done. His readers began to contribute religiously to his war chest so that according to to the testimony of the party's general secretary, Ramos used to receive about 5,000 pesos a month. As he published the names of contributors together with their contributions, he encouraged "party loyalty" and simulated honesty. As head of the Sakdalist Party, Ramos enunciated the following platform: (1) low salaries for public officials, (2) lower or no taxes, (3) economy in government expenditures, (4) Philippine independence within the year 1935. With delinquent taxpayers the rule, due to the economic distress augmented by the new restrictions imposed by Congress against Philippine exports, Ramos in no time rallied around him a sizable horde of ignorant peasants and disgruntled small taxpayers.

The May 2-3 uprising was immediately motivated by the Sakdalists' dislike of the independence law whose ten-year transition period they consider too long, the hatred of public officials Ramos preached, the insistence of the government to collect taxes, and the government's strict policy of issuing permits for Sakdalist public meetings and demonstrations after having observed their libelous and seditious nature.

• • • •

FOR the Sakdalists soon became so bold as to preach publicly the ousting from public office, through election or revolution, of officials in their blacklist. That they finally staged an abortive revolution which seemed to have had no further objective than the seizing of public buildings and the installing of Sakdalist officials by force is proof of the twilight stage of their comprehension of public affairs.

It is for this reason that the common diagnosis of the Sakdalist movement is that the Filipino lower masses are awakening officially and politically but are as yet in the twilight stage, and therefore as easily susceptible to democratic as to antidemocraic influences. Ramos and his henchmen exploited this awakening and veered it along antisocial lines and toward violence.

The common comment is that while Sakdalism has hanged itself with its own rope—for Ramos has absconded to Japan and all his lieutenants are likely to spend a good while in prison—the government must do something to guide the social and political awakening Sakdalism has signalized in the right direction by introducing social, political, educational and economic reforms that will allay mass despair and discontent.

Theaters Of Munich

By William Lyon Phelps.

THE City of Munich has six regular theaters that are open the year 'round except in the month of July, when the state theaters are closed, preparatory to the great festival performance of Wagner and Mozart in August.

But as all these six theaters are repertory theaters, with a constant change of bill, a visitor who stays in Munich one week can see many performances. For example: In the week from April 28 to May 5, there were given in this city 31 different plays, including operas.

The National Theater, formerly called the Court Theater (Hoftheater) is mainly used for grand opera; though occasionally a play is given. The Prince-regent Theater, which has not changed its name to conform to a different political situation, is devoted to plays, except during August, when the Wagner festival performances are given; for which exclusive purpose this beautiful theater was originally built.

• • • •

The most charming little theater in Munich, and one of the most beautiful in the world, is the Residenz Theater. This was built early in the eighteenth century, and here Mozart conducted his own operas. Here plays are given regularly during the year; except that in August this theater is used for the festival performances of Mozart. In 1913 I heard Richard Strauss conduct here his own new opera, "Ariadne auf Naxos."

The Gaertner Platz Theater is devoted to operettas and light operas. During this week they give here "The Merry Widow," "Die Fledermaus," "Don Carlos" and various light operas. The Peoples-theater (Volks-Theater) gives farces, dramas and pieces in dialect.

• • • •

But the theater that I attend most often is the Playhouse (Muenchener Schauspielhaus) an intimate theater where modern comedies and dramas are given. Here is a first-class stock company, under the direction of a very able man, Dr. Falckenberg. In past times here I have seen the plays of Ibsen, Oscar Wilde, Sudermann, Hauptmann, Schnitzler and many farces. The company, under the present direction, seems to me better even than in former years. I have already seen two charming light comedies here this week, "What a Girl" (So ein Maedel) and "The Man with the Greying Hair" (Der Mann mit den Grauen Schlaefen). The only Shakespeare play given here this week is "Much Ado About Nothing" (Viel Laerm ueber Nichts).

The Wagner operas begin at 6.30 and 6 o'clock; the plays now begin at 8 (in former times at 7:30). For every performance the exact hour of beginning is printed in the papers and the exact hour of closing; both are rigidly kept; so that one is usually out of the theater by 10:15; which applies also to grand opera. One does not waste time in the theater waiting for the curtain to rise and one gets out early enough, so that one is not fatigued and can attend many performances.

• • • •

For inhabitants of Munich or for those who are here for a number of months, subscription tickets for the whole season are sold at greatly reduced prices; so that even people in straitened circumstances are able to attend frequently. The theaters are ususally filled. The chief difference observable between here and at home is that although the theater may have been crowded to the doors, at the end of the performance you will see not more than three automobiles waiting, and there is no difficulty in getting one.

There is no place in the world where I enjoy the theater more than in Munich. The comfortable theaters, the early hours, the constant change of bill, the hearty and unrestrained enjoyment by the audience, all contribute to cheerfulness. I wish, however, there were more matinees; the only matinees are given on Sundays.

No End of Books

Paging Old Sherlock.

ANY confirmed reader of detective tales entertains a pretty fancy that, if given a chance, he could turn out to be considerable of a detective. When put to the test, however, the results are likely to be a little sad. I seem to recall that a few years ago they made Willard Huntington Wright (S. S. Van Dine to you) an honorary sheriff of the little New Jersey town in which he lived. A couple of garden-variety burglaries took place soon after and even with all the wit which had created Philo Vance and his delicate logistics Mr. Wright's contribution amounted to exactly nil. The cases were solved by some plain, unpretentious cop.

But still our optimism marches on. I myself took the bug years and years ago, on reading Ellis Parker Butler's series of humorous detective stories in the old Red Book Magazine. The hero, lank and enthusiastic, had taken a correspondence course from the "Rising Sun Detective School." That's all I remember, but if someone with a like nostalgia could tell me that character's name and a bit more about him I'd be very grateful. I hate to lose an old friend this way.

And then, a long while later, on going through a prolonged diet of mystery novels, it suddenly struck me as interesting to compile a couple of loose-leaf notebooks full of general clues and facts, postulated by the various ingenious authors, which would throw light upon the handsome world of crime. Entitled "Observational Data," these notebooks are beside me right now, filled out with an industry I find pretty astonishing. Of them, more later.

So, believe me, I was ripe meat when, the other day, I picked up "Modern Criminal Investigation" (Funk & Wagnalls, $3), by Dr. Harry Sodermann, head of the Institute of Police Science in Stockholm, and Deputy Chief Inspector John J. O'Connell, dean of the Police Academy, New York. And I've been having the time of my life.

• • • •

NOW understand that this is a serious textbook of police procedure, written for police departments. The Police Commissioner of New York calls it an "epoch-making contribution." But they couldn't keep us amateurs out with a 10-foot pole. For here, with many illustrations, diagrams, mathematical formulae, chemical tests, tables of guns and poisons, and descriptions of characteristic crimes, is precisely that mass of factual information which the true or scientific detective fan adores above all else.

Not for us the long and tedious story of how Aunt Hetty got a quirk in her brain and decided to do away with Cousin Theophrastus. We want to see the detective throw ultra-violet light on her apron stains, boil the fibers in her pocket in 5 per cent sodium hydroxid to see if they're animal or vegetable, search the bullet wound for powder tattooing (powder grains can be washed from the corneum, not from the mucosum), examine the antitragal slope of the victim's ear to see if it really is dear Cousin T, classify the tire-tracks in the front drive to learn if it was the butcher who came up during the fracas (on three Fisk Extra Heavies and an old Goodrich Safety), or perhaps the neighboring diamond-dealer (on a front set of Michelins and a rear set of Belgian Engelberts), and take micro-photographs of the emply shells to determine by the ejector marks if the offending weapon was really Uncle Ned's Swiss Chylewski .25 caliber automatic. That, let me repeat, is the real stuff.

And that is what packs this fascinating book chock-a-block. Do you want to learn how to take a corpse's finger-prints? Or how to determine if an envelope has been opened and resealed? Or exactly what to do when you arrive on the scene of a homicide? Or how a "house mob" of burglars works? Or that "oustiti" is Continental criminal slang for the long-nosed pliers which can turn a key in a lock from the outside? Or how to tell whether a length of hair is human or animal? With an infinity of such detail, "Modern Criminal Investigation" tells the facts which police can use in an actual case.

BUT somehow I miss old Sherlock. For example, the authors knock the pins from under the precious theory that analysis of tobacco ash can tell much of anything. And you can't tell how tall a man is from his stride. And all you can say by examining blood corpuscles with a microscope is that the blood was either mammalian or saurian.

And further, I miss the little subtleties of deduction which add such pith to a problem. Such—taken from above-mentioned notebooks—as the fact that "poison in a whisky decanter indicates homicide; a suicide would put poision only in his glass," that "the pipe of a garrulous talker, constantly going out and being re-lit, 'cokes up' until the cavity is nearly filled and the edge burnt badly all round," and that "a cigarette found outside a house, only a half-inch of it smoked, indicates a sudden change of purpose on the part of the smoker—probably a stranger to the house, or he would have taken it in; had not expected to enter, or he would not have lit it."

A blithe encyclopedia of little points like those ought to go great guns. If nobody else takes up the idea, I'll do it myself. I told you I had the bug.

Driver Gets Jail Term.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 12.—Convicted yesterday in peoples court on charges of operating an automobile while intoxicated and having no operator's card in his possession, Walter Spangler, of Ridgeley, W. Va., was sentenced by Judge Paul M. Fletcher to serve 31 days in the county jail, in default of fines aggregating $101. Spangler was arrested on a west side street by Patrol Driver John Smallwood.

Martinsburg Teacher Wed to Gilbert Miller

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 12.—Miss Helen Elizabeth Burns, of this city, a member of the faculty of the Paw Paw (W. Va.) High School, and Gilbert Mossett Miller, orchardist, of Paw Paw, were married at the home of the parents of the bride, L. W. Burns, assistant superintendent of Berkeley County schools, and Mrs. Burns, this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller left by motor for a week's trip. They will live at Spring Gap, Md., near Cumberland.

Mrs. Miller is a graduate of Martinsburg High School and West Virginia University, class of 1933. She has been prominent in 4-H Club work in this and other parts of the State.

Mr. Miller, associated with his father, H. W. Miller, a pioneer orchardist, in the Paw Paw section, attended West Virginia University.

Driver Gets Jail Term In Traffic Fatality

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 12.—Joe Snell, who was driving a grocery automobile for H. P. Lord here in January when the car skidded onto a sidewalk in the suburbs and hit and fatally injured John Sloan, a pedestrian, entered a plea of guilty to involuntary manslaughter in circuit court here yesterday and was sentenced to two months in jail.

A suit by the administrator of the estate for $10,000 against Mr. Lord was compromised out of court and the action withdrawn from the docket yesterday. The amount of the settlement was not made public.

THE EUROPEAN WAR DEBTS AND THEIR SETTLEMENT
by WILDON LLOYD

The world-wide interest in the European War Debts has attracted public attention time and again whenever the question of payment on the Funding Agreements was brought into discussion, and this vexing international problem has, no doubt, created plenty of ill feelings on both sides of the Atlantic during the past ten years. The subject of this controversy has been treated in a new book written by a Washington writer and journalist. Mr. Lloyd's presentation is the only one of its character to show in plain language, the fundamental facts and figures about the war loans situation.

An able piece of work. It throws light upon certain phases of a perplexing problem which have needed illumination.
W. W. Willoughby,
Emeritus Professor of Political Science,
Johns Hopkins University.

Strangers Within The Gates

WHEREVER people travel they feel the need of milk.
When people leave their home communities to "see the sights," attend a convention, or behold a great spectacle, their recreation means extra work for the milkman.
"Demand" for his product rises swiftly to a peak of consumption.
His regular customers, for the most part, continue to require their daily service.
How to take care of these mercurial ascents of the consumption "curve" is a problem in its own right.
The corporate milkman scans the horizon, and dimensions the shadows of coming events.
This convention will bring ten thousand strangers for a week.
That meeting will draw fifty thousand.
One hundred thousand visitors to his city will put a severe pressure on all his facilities.
He has to keep in close touch with his sources of supply and know just what's what at his country receiving stations.
No hardening of his transportation arteries can be permitted to slow down his sensitive circulatory system.
Whether the "demand" is for ten thousand quarts or a million quarts a day, the corporate milkman must be—and consistently is—on the job.

Venus stepped down from her pedestal at the Corcoran Art Gallery and sighed enviously. There was a wistful look in her eyes as she patted her hair back into place.

"You don't know what breaks these modern women get," she moaned. "Now, in my day, things were different."

We leaned against a glass case and listened to her plaintive tale.

"Why," she continued, "when I wanted vanishing cream or a new lipstick I had to send that flighty daughter-in-law of mine, Psyche, over to Proserpine's house across the River Styx to get it and, would you believe it, I tramped all the way from Olympus to the Parthenon without finding a single decent Beauty Shoppe! And you know how catty those Athenian newspapermen could be. That awful Aristophanes, who had that scurrilous column in the Daily Gazette, actually said that if I got another wrinkle my face would look like a prune skin.

"But these modern women have all their beauty and personality problems solved by Frances Mangum, of The Washington Post, and she knows ever so much more about beauty than I did." She smiled shyly. "But then, I had my moments. There was that dear boy, Praxiteles . . ."

Well, since Beauty is Truth, Venus was right: Miss Washington does get a break. All she has to do to keep her nose from being shiny or her chins from doubling is to follow Frances Mangum's advice in The Post. Frances knows her cosmetics, whether they're to be used to please a sweetheart, hold a husband, or make the blonde next door jealous. She tells you where to get 'em, how to apply 'em, and, when the date is over, how to peel 'em off. In short, Frances' column is the answer to a perplexed maiden's prayer.

And Handsome being what Handsome does, Frances also advises you on ways to develop your personality . . . how to acquire that charm which will make men want to shower you with attentions . . . and other women long to cut your throat. Even Madame de Stael could have profited from our Frances' column.

If you have wrinkles instead of dimples . . . circles instead of curves . . . girl-friends instead of boy-friends . . . let Miss Mangum tell you the reason why. Follow her advice and you'll have that movie-actress figure . . . that peaches-and-cream complexion . . . those come-hither eyes . . . and a lot more fun. Her column is found each Sunday on the Household Pages of Newly Formed Coalition of Producing Companies Goes to the Top in 46 Pages!

Big Things Are Expected to Be Done Next Year

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

The newly formed Fox-Twentieth Century coalition means business.

If there was ever any doubt about the determination of the newly amalgamated production companies to write their recently hyphenated name in bold letters up at the top of the list of major producers, it would be dispelled by even a cursory examination of the 46-page, Saturday Evening Post size "New Dynamo"—house organ de luxe—that is being distributed to the dramatic desks, film exchange managers, exhibitors and other interested parties throughout the length and breadth of this reasonably spacious land of ours.

I do not pretend to have read this typographical phantasmagoria from cover to cover, but I have skimmed through it sufficiently to perceive that in the personnel of the new company are enough veterans in the celluloid branch of show business to make a majority of their boasts of future preeminence in the motion picture industry come true.

Four Veteran Leaders.

Take only the four leaders as convenient examples—Joseph M. Schenck, Sidney R. Kent, Darryl Zanuck and Winfield Sheehan.

Joe Schenck has been president of United Artists for years and brought to the forefront of screen stardom Norma and Constance Talmadge, Buster Keaton and a long list of others. When Twentieth Century was organized less than two years ago, he became its president and now brings to the Fox-Twentieth Century combination the fruits of decades of executive pioneering in the most exciting of the lively arts.

Sidney R. Kent was for many years sales manager of Paramount, back in the days when Paramount was paramount. His assumption of the presidency of Fox, taking with him Jesse L. Lasky, former production chief at Paramount, and practically the entire skeleton of the Paramount executive organization, marked the beginning of the phoenix-like return to life of that company, following the spectacular dethronement of William Fox, the man who founded it.

Darryl Zanuck, once a production executive on the Warner Brothers-First National lot, when his association with the Freres Warner cracked up on the rocky shoals thrown up by the Depression, sought the backing of Joe Schenck in the formation of Twentieth Century Pictures, Inc., and in its first year placed that company in the van of progressive, far-sighted and daring producers.

A Fox Fixture.

Winfield Sheehan, "Winnie" to his intimates, has long been the keystone of Fox production. He was there with William Fox when Fox films were among the biggest money makers on the screen and paid Tom Mix a salary of $10,000 a week; he has continued as production manager under the Kent regime and will be there still as an important factor in the new set-up.

The only famous name that shows signs of early defection is Jesse L. Lasky, who, it is rumored, will sever his connection with the company after the completion of two more pictures.

Add to not too brief encomiums aimed at the superlative qualities possessed by these veteran film gentlemen, enough small-type matter to fill 46 pages, 11 by 16 inches in size, and you begin to get a vague inkling that Fox-Twentieth Century entertain an unshakable conviction that they are going places.

As the aged colored listener once said of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, during one of his more ardent campaign speeches, "Ah doan know who that gemman is, but he certainly do recommen' hisself mos' highly!"

Having given all manner of "Grand Hotel" and roast mutton previews, aperitif projections, coffee-sinkers-and-Gable sunrise screenings, and whatnot, Division Manager Carter Barron, of Loew's, Inc., now plans to cover Washington with gooseflesh and turn its hair white!

This is to say that on Thursday night, June 27, Master Barron is putting on a "spook party" on the stage of Loew's Fox Theater at the eerie hour of midnight. In addition, there will be presented on the screen that apotheosis of chills-and-fever drama, "White Zombie," an epic of the living dead.

Imagine sitting in a darkened theater—personally, I prefer not to—and seeing a ghost leave the stage and come down into the audience and maybe sit down right beside you, spirits raise tables and chant messages from the beyond and the supernatural unfold itself right there before your popping eyes! All this and more will chill your blood and rattle your teeth, it is promised.

A single performance at midnight, June 27. The regular house scale of admission charges will be assessed for this unexampled opportunity to get yourself scared to death!

Opening Is Postponed.

The National Civic Theater Society, recently organized play-producing group, which was to have given its first performance last night, announces the postponement of the opening of the Odeon at National Park Seminary, Forest Glen, Md., until after the Shrine convention. The new inaugural date will be made known in due course.

Having planned to open their first season with "Stepping Sisters," the Civic Society has been fortunate in obtaining first call on several new plays that were to have been presented by the National Theater Players, under the managership of Stephen E. Cochran, had not their season been abruptly ended last Saturday night. In view of this unexpected situation, the Civic group will offer as their first production a play not heretofore seen in the Capital.

It is being bruited about by those who should know that Dick Powell, "on location" with the Warner Brothers "Anchors Aweigh" company at Annapolis, Md., has become a member of the National Civic Theater Society—not in an acting capacity—and will be present on opening night if the film company's shooting schedule will permit.

Speaking of Panjandrum Cochran and the National Theater Players is a reminder that Mr. Cochran journeyed to New York yesterday morning to perfect plans and determine upon a route for Ethel Barrymore's country-wide tour in a revival of Somerset Maugham's "The Constant Wife," under his management next season. Thursday night, which would be tomorrow by the calendar, Mr. Cochran will squire Miss Barrymore to a ringside seat at the Baer-Braddock carnival of knuckles out in the huge Madison Square Garden punch bowl on Long Island.

"Frankie and Tony."

Another "guest star," by the way, was dropped down into the Capital Monday night to appear with "stock" support.

Tony Canzoneri came to town expecting to appear in a gory melodrama, and, instead, found himself involved in a production that resembled, successively, a seminary powder-puff tournament, a Maypole dance and a chin-tickling contest.

This irked the squat and stolid Mr. Tony no little. So, at regular intervals during the performance in Mr. Griffith's al fresco theater of the mascular arts, Mr. Tony would throw a well-aimed and generously powered right or left into Mr. Frankie Klick's soubretting and thus effectually wipe out the consequences of a few dozen or so left jabs as fast as they were feathery, propelled by Mr. Klick in the general direction of Mr. Tony's left cheek, which, a good deal of the time, was as pink as you please.

Passing Mr. Jack Dempsey, who was to referee, on his way to the stage, Mr. Klick evidently was reminded of Mr. Tunney's performance of a similar role in Philadelphia, back on a rainy night in September, 1926. Not that Mr. Klick was there. I imagine Mr. Klick that night must have been a kid of about 14 or 15 out on the Pacific Coast, 3,000 miles away.

Had His Bicycle.

Anyhow, he had Mr. Tunney's bicycle with him Monday night and thus made it possible for Mr. Canzoneri never to take a backward step through the 12 acts of the play. In fact, Mr. Canzoneri on many occasions had a very tough time indeed catching up with the back-pedalling Mr. Klick.

All those "boos" following the decision in favor of Mr. Tony probably were merely contractions of "boo'ful," the crowd's affectionate diminutive expressive of their appreciation of Mr. Klick's perfectly ladylike performance throughout the evening.

It was one of the anomalies of a cock-eyed racket at best that the world's lightweight champion, Mr. Tony, weighed 134 pounds, while the world's "junior" lightweight champion, Mr. Klick, weighed 137¼ pounds. It is a good thing Mr. Klick is not the world's "baby" lightweight champion or he might have weighed a ton!

After having watched this engaging bit of whimsy from the fourth row, ringside, three rows back of Hannah, who watched her Jack referee with proud and possessive eyes, it would be my unsolicited private opinion that Mr. Tony can knock Mr. Frankie apart and see what makes him Klick any time they get in the same ring.

If I am wrong, sue me. Then all you'll have to do is try to collect.

Incidentally, the Canzoneri-Klick fight Monday night gave further evidence that the Shriners do not attend their annual conclaves to buy entertainment. They attend either to provide it themselves or to have it given to them. The midnight shows in the local theaters have been comparative flops, just as they were 12 years ago and as this column gave warning they would be again and there were not enough fezzes in the fight crowd Monday night to make a red spot in the stands as big as Bobby Bruno made of Phil Furr's nose in the first round of the semifinal! And the fight was staged for them.

Will Do "Saint Joan."

A bulletin from the indefatigable Ray Henderson, Hotel Metropolitain, Paris, France, brings word that Katharine Cornell, enjoying a European vacation after a strenuous New York season, has arranged with George Bernard Shaw to present his play, "Saint Joan," in America next spring. A cable to the venerable playwright, then in Durban, South Africa, expressing the actress' wish to appear in his drama, brought his immediate consent.

When Shaw reaches London, later this month, Guthrie McClintic, Miss Cornell's husband, who will direct the play, will confer with him about production.

Was Guild Production.

"Saint Joan" had its first presentation on any stage when the Theater Guild produced it in the Garrick Theater, New York, on December 28, 1923, with Winifred Lenihan in the title role. Later, Julia Arthur acted "Saint Joan" on tour in America. On March 26, 1924, Sybil Thorndike was seen in the play in the New Theater in London. Mme. Piteoff played it in Paris. It is one of Elisabeth Bergner's outstanding successes in German-speaking countries.

"Saint Joan" will follow Miss Cornell's announced tour in Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," which will open in October and continue until the holidays.

Curfew-Shall-Not Note.

Director Edward Ludwig talks over a scene with Flush, canine actor extraordinary, at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studio. And if you think Flush does not know what it is all about, just watch him play an action-perfect scene sometime—he never makes a mistake. To realize the truth of this bold assertion it is only necessary to recall Flush's solo scenes at the opening of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" and, more recently, his work with Madge Evans, May Robson, et al., in "The Age of Indiscretion." This is not the same Flush, however, that appeared with Katharine Cornell in "The Barretts."

SAM GOLDWYN would like to put his feet on his desk, but doesn't . . . Josef von Sternberg's name is still on the door of the office which is no longer his at Paramount . . . Maureen O'Sullivan always seems to be rushing to meet John Farrow, even when playing a scene . . . Tom Mix has his initials on his house. He used to have his name in lights, but he got modest. . . . .

Gary Cooper can fall asleep faster than any actor I know . . . Benny Rubin has a sign in his office which reads: "Bell rings 7 a. m. Everyone in their own rooms" . . . The studio policemen at Metro try so hard to act like real cops . . . Jack Warner has orange color rugs in his office, and they are so thick that you practically sink to your knees . . . Joe E. The waitresses at the Beverly Brown Derby, with their barrel starched dresses, always seem as if they were about to take off . . . Myrna Loy never does a better job of acting than when she is being interviewed . . . Tullio Carminati always looks as if he has a handkerchief up his sleeve. . . . .

Alfred Green is the quietest of all the directors. Cecil B. DeMille is the director who puts on the best show. He practically comes in costume . . . Director Edmund Goulding prefers to wear a blue jacket with gold buttons . . . E. H. Griffith directs a scene sitting in a chair as if he were watching a show in the theater . . . Frank Capra asks his actors not to act . . . William Dieterle directs flickers in English, but can't pronounce the words . . . When George Cukor bends over while directing a scene the visitor can't see the set. . . . .

CHARLIE CHAPLIN doesn't especially favor blondes, and that is why Paulette Goddard is a brunette . . . Countess Frasso is the type of person who couldn't enjoy her luncheon unless she had a prominent table at the Vendome . . . When Jack Oakie wants to be real swank he puts on a clean sweatshirt . . . Harry Cohn has a yacht which seldom sails out of the San Diego Harbor. Because if it sailed away, Harry couldn't use the telephone on board. Harry sits there with his captain's hat on phoning practically every race track in the country, placing bets on the nags. . . . .

Kay Francis never wears high heels when playing a love scene . . . Charles Laughton regulates his weight according to the type of character he is playing in a flicker . . . Alice Faye wears practically as much make-up off the screen as she does on . . . Ketti Gallian General has a dramatic tutor on the set with her . . . Bing Crosby wears a cap on the set while waiting for the director to shout, "Ready" . . . Wallace Beery, Victor McLaglen and Hugh Herbert are the three players who have the most difficulty remembering their lines . . . Boris Karloff would like to scare people without make-up on. . . . .

EDWARD G. ROBINSON likes to be mistaken for a gangster off the screen, but seldom is . . . Merle Oberon seems most at ease when playing a love scene . . . Warners is the only studio which gives a director billing while a picture is being filmed. The director's name is placed on a shingle outside the sound stage.

Drop of June Fruit Is Unusually Large

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 12.—The June drop of both peaches and apples in Western Maryland has been unusually large, growers report. The heavy rains of the last week played havoc with ripening cherries.

The June drop of peaches and apples, however, has not as yet endangered the crops, growers stating that it is Nature's method of relieving the trees of imperfect fruit.

Concert of Latin-American music by the United States Army Band (Lieut. Thomas F. Darcy, conductor) and Luis Alvarez, Mexican tenor, in the Aztec Garden of the Pan American Union. Miscellaneous program of works by composers representative of Mexico, El Salvador, Honduras, Cuba, Venezuela, Guatemala, Bolivia, Peru, Ecuador, Colombia, Brazil, Paraguay and Argentina.

Ideal weather for enjoying music al fresco favored the first summer concert offered by the officials of the Pan American Union to their invited guests. A gibbous moon in a cloudless sky contributed its silvery tint to the usual illumination of the Aztec garden, and a balmy air barely stirred the leaves of the encircling trees. The terrace and the seats bordering the curving walks were filled with the largest audience that has attended one of these events during the last two years.

The program was one designed for relaxed enjoyment, rather than for concentrated attention, its most pretentious items being selections from Carlos Gomes' opera, "Il Guarani," a descriptive piece entitled "The Death of the Inca," by Carlos Valderrama, a clever overture, "Exotica," by M. Betancourt, and Emilio Murillo's "Capricho Colombiano," a free fantasia on Colombian national airs. Two marches, a waltz, a pasillo and several transcriptions of songs constituted the balance of the instrumental numbers.

Luis Alvarez, the assisting vocalist, was heard in two groups of songs in Spanish. He disclosed a pleasantly colored tenor of a volume ample for outdoor singing, and the crispness of his diction was most commendable. Ralph Ostrom and Charles Barnes presented cornet duo versions of Serradell's "La Golondrina" and "Hijo Mio," by N. Rodriguez, and another band soloist, Thomas Herbert, offered a violin transcription of Manuel Ponce's popular "Estrellita" and a "Pasatiempo" by Gimenez.

110 Sportsmen Attend Grantsville Meeting

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Grantsville, Md., June 12.—One hundred and ten persons attended the sportsmen meeting and banquet last night at the National Hotel. Members from the various organizations from Garrett, Allegany, Washington Counties, and Baltimore were present.

States Attorney Neil Fraley of Garrett County, presided. The speakers were E. Lee LeCompte, State game warden; Talbert Denmead, U. S. Bureau of Fisheries; Merle Towner, vice president of Maryland State Game and Fish Protective Association; J. D. Steele, president, and Myer Rosenbush, vice president of the Maryland Sportsmen Luncheon Club, all of Baltimore, and Richard Miller, Accident, and Thomas McDowell, Bloomington. A program was outlined to improve streams in western Maryland and to provide more fish for restocking.

Concert Series Starts Sunday.

Winchester Route May Get U. S. Funds

C. of C. Aid Says Pittsburgh Link May Be Built.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., June 12.—Home from a conference with H. G. Shirley, commissioner of highways, Andrew Bell, secretary of the chamber of commerce, said today there may be grounds for believing construction of Route 7 will be included in the forthcoming program for Virginia when allocations of Federal aid funds are made.

Route 7 will shorten the distance from this city to Pittsburgh by 20 miles and will open up a rich trade area for this city. If Federal aid is allocated Virginia, it will be necessary to remove convict labor from the Federal aid roads and a camp now at work on the Winchester-Washington Route 50 will be transferred to Route 7, it is said.

Meanwhile, in construction of a 12-mile gap on Route 50 from Winchester to Milwood, in Clarke County, difficulty has been encountered in securing the rights-of-way in Clarke, and it may be necessary to reroute the highway.

High School Exercises Held in Westernport

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Westernport, Md., June 12.—Forty-three were graduated tonight from Bruce High School at exercises in the school auditorium here. Lieut. Col. C. Seymour Bullock, of South Bend, Ind., a retired Army officer and former national secretary of the Izaak Walton League, gave an address.

Musical numbers were provided by the school orchestra and the girls' chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Eleanor Eichhorn Walden. The class was presented by Principal John W. Fisher and the diplomas were conferred by former State Senator William A. Gunter, president of the Allegany County board of education.

Miss Frances Lee Rawlings was valedictorian and Miss Hazel Kalbaugh salutatorian.

Mrs. Williams Feted at Lunch As 700 Attend

Mrs. Steuart, Wife of New Shrine Head, Also an Honor Guest.

A luncheon in honor of Mrs. Dana S. Williams, of Lewiston, Me., wife of the outgoing Imperial Potentate, was the high point yesterday for wives of nobles of the Mystic Shrine attending the sixty-first annual convention. Mrs. Robert P. Smith, wife of the Illustrious Potentate of Almas Temple, was official hostess for the affair, which was held at the Shoreham Hotel and attended by approximately 700 women.

Guests of honor in addition to Mrs. Williams included Mrs. Leonard P. Steuart, whose husband was elected Imperial Potentate, highest office in Shrinedom, yesterday morning; Mrs. Melvin C. Hazen, wife of the chairman of the Board of District Commissioners; and Mrs. Ella M. Foss, of Lewiston, Me., cousin of the outgoing Imperial Potentate.

Also at Mrs. Smith's flower-banked table were Ladies of the Imperial Divan. Wives of Imperial Council representatives and their Washington hostesses were seated at small round tables packed into the huge room.

White Ensemble.

In another dining-room at the Shoreham dozens of red-fezed nobles lunched with the Rotary Club. From time to time they left their own party to peep in on the colorful scene the women made in their gay spectator sports and afternoon dresses.

Mrs. Williams looked cool and summery in Nile-green georgette. Her hat was white straw. Her flowers orchids.

Mrs. Steuart wore no flowers except the white fabric carnations attached to the neckline of her white silk crepe ensemble. Her entire costume, including cart-wheel hat and net gloves, was white.

Mrs. Foss wore a dark print with a corsage of white gardenias pinned in the center of the bodice. A small black straw sailor completed the costume.

Visit Bliss Estate.

All the guests had been seated and many of them had begun eating when Mrs. Smith and others to sit at the head table arrived. They made a small procession through the dining room with Mrs. Foss, escorted by George Sullivan, of Almas Temple, leading the way. Mrs. Hazen was even later in getting to the luncheon. She came in after the head table's guests had been seated.

Later in the afternoon the entire party toured the garden at Dumbarton Oaks, the Robert Woods Bliss estate in Georgetown. Then the women went to Cedarcrest, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard P. Steuart, at 2501 Upton street northwest, where Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Steuart were hostesses at tea.

By the time the wives got back to town it was time to dress for dinner and then, after a hasty meal, they rushed over to the Pavilion of Omar to see the official parade of uniformed bodies. After the parade was the reception and grand ball at the Mayflower in honor of Imperial Potentate-elect Leonard P. Steuart. Mrs. Steuart shared honors with her husband at this brilliant event.

Today the Big Day.

Early yesterday morning Mrs. Steuart received a lot of attention also. This was at the election of her husband at the Imperial Council session in the National Theater to the highest office a Shriner can attain. Ladies of the Imperial Divan and Mrs. Robert P. Smith attended the session in compliment to Mrs. Steuart and presented her with an enormous bunch of red roses.

Today is the most important one of the entire convention as far as the visiting women are concerned. They are to be entertained by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt with a garden party at the White House. Many of the wives had never seen Mrs. Roosevelt until they glimpsed her as she reviewed the parade with the President last night. They are eager for a close-up view of her today. And they are thrilled at the prospect of going to the White House.

But before the garden party the women have another luncheon on their convention schedule. The third and final one will take place in the Washington Hotel's hall of nations. Lansburgh & Bro. department store will present a fashion show.

After the garden party will come informal dinner parties and then the big pageant which will wind things up for wives of nobles of the Mystic Shrine until they meet again next year.

Missing Man Seen On Road, Is Report

A man resembling B. W. Graves, Alexandrian missing since Monday when he cashed about $900 in pay checks for fellow employes, has been reported seen on the road to Leesburg, Va., shortly after Graves disappeared.

An unidentified man told Detective J. F. Butler, of the Alexandria police, that he sighted a man who might have been Graves in a car resembling Graves' at 9. Graves is said to have relatives in Kansas and it was suggested he might be traveling in that direction.

Graves, who worked at the Fruit Growers Express, has been getting checks cashed for fellow workers for many years. He left a wife and several children behind. Police believe he may have been robbed and kidnaped or that he may have suffered an attack of amnesia.

Shrine Ladies Lunch at Shoreham Hotel

Shriners Stage Part of March Despite Storm

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., already was seated in the reviewing stand with Mrs. Morgenthau. Women of the Imperial Divan, that is, wives of national Shrine officers, were arriving in numbers.

Downpour Resumes.

Scarcely had President Roosevelt and the First Lady filed down to their chairs at 8:25, when the downpour, which had given way temporarily to a drizzle, resumed. Several thousand spectators in uncovered stands west of the White House deserted their places and sought shelter in the pavilions.

The President, who had arrived three hours earlier from West Point, smilingly acknowledge a tumultuous greeting. On his right sat Mrs. Robert P. Smith, wife of the Almas Temple potentate, and next to her was Mrs. Roosevelt.

Leonard P. Steuart, a Washington auto dealer who fell in the bath tub and fractured two ribs a few hours before receiving Shrinedom's highest honor, was elected imperial potentate yesterday as the fraternal order's sixty-first annual convention rolled merrily into its final stages.

Despite his injuries, the new leader of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine attended the second day's session. The new imperial potentate succeeds Dana S. Williams, Lewiston, Me., attorney. Installation of officers will be held at the closing meeting today.

But elections, committee reports and other serious business were sidetracked last night in favor of a gala parade of uniformed bodies

Next Rally at Seattle.

There was only one post in the imperial council divan, which corresponds to a presidential cabinet, for which there was any contest. That was the office of imperial outer guard. Alfred G. Arvold was elected unanimously when his three opponents withdrew after one ballot was taken.

A member of El Zagal Temple, Fargo, N. Dak., Mr. Arvold is known as the founder of the little country theater movement in the United States. He is professor of public expression and dramatic arts at North Dakota State College, a member of Shrine's imperial council for the last 17 years, middle-aged and the head of a family consisting of a wife, son and daughter, all of whom accompanied him to Washington.

Due for High Honor.

The other three nominated for outer guard were Fred F. Whitcomb, of Omaha; William H. Woodfield, of San Francisco, and James N. Galbraith, jr., of Mexico City. Election of Mr. Arvold means, in accordance with the system of advancing officers up the line, that he will be chosen imperial potentate at the 1945 convention, barring deaths among members of the divan.

Hugh M. Caldwell, retiring as imperial chief rabban, was elected deputy imperial potentate succeeding Mr. Steuart. Mr. Caldwell is a member of Nile Temple, which will be host to the Shriners at their session in Seattle next year. The invitation was extended yesterday by Orvis B. Joseph, Nile potentate. The convention will be July 14-16.

Clyde I. Webster, of Detroit, becomes chief rabban; Walter S. Sugden, Sistersville, W. Va., assistant rabban; A. A. D. Rahn, Minneapolis, high priest and prophet; Walter D. Cline, of Wichita Falls, Tex., Oriental guide; George F. Olendorf, of Springfield, Mo., first ceremonial master; Thomas C. Law, Atlanta, second ceremonial master; Albert H. Fiebach, Cleveland, master; and Morley E. McKenzie, of Toronto, captain of the guard.

James H. Price and James C. Berger were re-elected imperial recorder and imperial treasurer, respectivly. Their offices, which entail a considerable amount of specialized work, are not included in the progressive advancement system. The former is lieutenant governor of Virginia and the latter is from Denver.

Just as Mr. Steuart becomes imperial potentate at the convention in Washington, his home city, Mr. Caldwell will receive the same honor when the Shrine holds its next meeting in his home city of Seattle in 1936. Not for 20 years has the imperial session been held in the Washington State metropolis.

The fall in which Mr. Steuart was hurt occurred in his suite at the Willard Hotel. Besides the rib fractures, he also suffered scalp and arm bruises. With his side bandaged, he took his place in last night's parade and afterward attended the reception and grand ball in his honor at the Mayflower Hotel.

The third day's meeting of the imperial council, a concert by massed chanters, a trip to the Marine base at Quantico, Va., an inspection tour of the Capitol, a White House garden party for Shriners' wives and the pageant which has been months in preparation will bring the convention to a close today.

Several thousand are expected to make the trip to Quantico, leaving at 10 a. m. on the steamer Potomac. Aerial maneuvers, reviews, demonstrations and concerts are among the many events which will be put on for the Shriners. They will start back for Washington at 2:30 p. m., arriving at 4:30.

Luncheon Planned.

Installation of officers will feature the resumption of the imperial council meeting at 9 a. m. Representatives will have luncheon at the Willard Hotel at 12:30. A luncheon to wives of imperial divan members and representatives will be held at the same time at the Hotel Washington.

At 2 p. m. the imperial potentate, members of his divan and council representatives are scheduled to visit the Senate and House and galleries as guests of Vice President Garner and Speaker Byrns. Mrs. Roosevelt will be hostess at the White House garden party, to begin at 5 p. m.

Temple Gets Honors Despite Its Protests

Lyle C. Ling, potentate of Moslem Temple in Detroit, is still scratching his head. So is Judge Dewitt H. Merriam, another member of the Detroit Shrine delegation.

The two were present at the Imperial Council of the Shrine in the National Theater this morning when they heard the name of their temple called from the stage as winner of a second prize trophy in the Potomac regatta last Sunday.

"There must be some mistake," said Ling, advancing to the stage. "We didn't have a boat entered in that race or any other."

"Impossible," echoed Merriam.

At this point, Cole Hutchinson, whose craft had really run second in the race, cleared matters by informing the bewildered delegates that he had been an honorary member of Moslem Temple some years ago and was so impressed with the friendly spirit shown him that he decided to enter his boat as a representative of the temple.

'Torch Murder' Suspect Submits Guilty Plea

West Plains, Mo., June 12 (AP).—Joe ("Luck") Braden pleaded guilty today to first-degree murder in connection with the insurance "torch murder" of Oscar Bushart, near Alton, Mo., last July.

Braden entered his plea as he and R. E. Edwards, step-father of Bushart and alleged instigator of the death plot, were called for trial here on a change of venue from Oregon County. Judge Mill H. D. Green deferred sentence. Selection of a jury to try Edwards was begun.

Salvationists to Train.

Roanoke, Va., June 12 (AP).—Approximately 150 workers in the Salvation Army organization in Virginia will attend a training school at Blue Ridge Springs, near here, from June 18 to 28, Adjutant Edward Laity, in charge of the local post, announced today.

Nichols to Seek Bill Permitting P.U.C. Cab Rule

Deplores Control Lack; Challenges D. C. Heads to Submit Remedy.

Decision Bans Zone Fixing.

Under present laws the commission has no control over taxi rates because of a District Supreme Court decision that any fixing of zone boundaries or rates would be discriminatory.

When Keech informed the House and Senate appropriations sub-committees of this situation early this session, a rider was attached which stated that no part of the appropriation may be used for the licensing of any taxicab unless it conforms to uniform rates to be prescribed by the commission.

The utilities body plans to give notice, after the appropriations bill becomes a law, of intention to hold a public hearing for the purpose of fixing uniform zones and rates.

Nichols, who on Tuesday took the House floor to denounce the taxi strikers, said that he was confident all drivers now are making a bare living under the low schedule of fares.

"Practically all of them are making from $4 to $6 a day net," he said. "Of course, we would all like to see them make more money, but as soon as you raise the rates, you're going to lose a proportional share of passengers, and the result will be that many of the drivers will be thrown out of jobs."

The original resolution drafted by Nichols and other House members who protested against the strike and the eviction from a cab of Representative Andrew J. May (Democrat), of Kentucky, called upon District officials to prosecute the strikers.

The House parliamentarian informed them that Congress has no authority to order such prosecution.

The Cab Drivers' Strike Committee last night declared it had renounced strikes as a measure to clear up the muddled taxi situation here. This action was taken on the promise of Rep. Jenckes, of Indiana, that the drivers' interests would be protected by investigation and legislation.

The committee pointed out that never before had there been a taxi strike settled with as little violence and without injury to any person. The committee, in announcing the end of striking, asked that Congress do something about the "exorbitant charge of $25" for a permit to operate a cab and about the "unwarranted and unreasonable charge" of $5 for identification cards.

Town Keeps Old Tax Levy.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Williamsport, Md., June 12.—This town's tax rate for 1935 will be 55 cents on the $100, the same as last year's assessment. The taxable basis is slightly in excess of $2,000,000, slightly more than the basis last year. The mayor and commissioners, who fixed the rate, reported the financial condition of the town in excellent shape, with all bills paid and a surplus on hand.

China Rejects Japan Demand; War Imminent

ance of compliance with the Japanese demands, this injecting still more uncertainity into the already acute North China crisis. It was understood Japan had specified that Gen. Ho sign in behalf of the National government.

War Threat Starts Exodus From China

By the Associated Press.

London, June 12.—A Reuters (British) News Agency dispatch from Peiping tonight quoted foreign circles there as saying Japan, in presenting new and sweeping demands to China, had warned her she must not expect help from other powers.

Earlier Reuters dispatches said an outbreak of hostilities in North China was feared at any time after midnight, and British officials were following developments with grave anxiety.

A near-panic resulted from the new Japanese demands, Reuters reported, starting an exodus of civilians, who were moving southward in great numbers. All trains were reported booked for days ahead.

The British news agency also said it was reported Japan would stage an aerial demonstration over Peiping tomorrow, but police warned the population to keep calm.

The earlier report, from Nanking, said Gen. Ho Ying-Chin, Chinese minister of war, had refused Japan's request that China's reply to Japan's North China demands be submitted in writing.

Midnight was the deadline for acceptance of the latest demand, the Reuters correspondent reported, and fighting was feared if the Japanese military authorities maintained their stand.

New Demands Rumored.

An earlier Reuters dispatch from Peiping said new and more sweeping demands had been made of China, among them the wholesale removal of government officials, their replacement by persons favorable to Japan and withdrawal of Gov. Sung Cheh-Yuan and his troops from Chahar Province.

Official circles here feared further important Chinese concessions would be made to Japan in North China, which gave rise to rumors that Britain was contemplating moving its embassy from Peiping to Nanking.

Although it was stated the British ambassador now spends half his time in Nanking, it was denied the government was planning removal of the embassy.

Denials Discounted.

Diplomatic observers, commenting on Japan's denial of intention to occupy Peiping and Tientsin, pointed out that denials were frequent before the various aggressive Japanese moves in Manchuria during the last several years.

It was understood there had been no communication between Britain and the United States on developments in the Far East, but it was believed the matter would be discussed when Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary, receives United States Ambassador Robert W. Bingham tomorrow.

Hospital Seeks More Aid.

Waynesboro, Pa., June 12.—Recommendations for nearly $3,000 additional State aid for the coming biennium have been made for the Waynesboro Hospital. The allocation, as compared with the last biennium, show the 1935-37 to be $16,445, and the 1933-35 figure at $13,900.

IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell this decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grouchy and no good for anything.

What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our bile juice can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless 2 pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and ¾ of our food decays in our 28 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every six minutes.

When our friends smell our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whipped tomcat, don't use a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice. But if "something better" is offered you, don't buy it, for it may be a calomel (mercury) pill, which loosens teeth, gripes and scalds the rectum in many people. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for—25¢. ©1934. C.M.Co.

Navy Program For Reich Due In Friday Talks

5-Year Plan Likely; Parley at London Resumes Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

London, June 12.—A five-year building program for Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's proposed new German fleet will be drawn up, naval circles indicated tonight, when Anglo-German naval talks resume here Friday.

Joaquim von Ribbentrop, Hitler's ambassador extraordinary for the conversations, will return to London from Berlin tomorrow, accompanied by his colleagues.

It was believed Gen. von Ribbentrop, who has been in consultation with Hitler at the latter's Bavarian mountain retreat, was returning with authority to negotiate an agreement to be submitted to other naval powers, including the United States.

It is now understood the British have given up hope of paring down Hitler's demand for tonnage 35 per cent of Great Britain's, but are demanding that this percentage be applied separately to each of the various categories of warships.

[Berlin dispatches Tuesday night said Hitler had yielded to the British insistence that categories as well as total tonnage be limited, and also to Britain's condition that construction be spread over several years.]

Reports that Japan had given her blessing to the Reichsfuehrer's "35 per cent" fleet caused some confusion in diplomatic quarters.

While British officials say they have been in verbal communication with the United States, Japan, France and Italy regarding the Anglo-German talks, it was understood they did not anticipate any immediate comments.

Informed quarters, however, said they understood Japan would raise no objection to the German proposals. France, on the other hand, might protest, they added.

At conclusion of the conferences, probably next week, world naval powers will be informed of the conditions under which the Reich will join some general naval arrangement, it was stated.

Military Institute Ends Its 97th Session.

By the Associated Press.

Lexington, Va., June 12.—The playing of "Auld Lang Syne" today signalized the end of the ninety-seventh session of Virginia Military Institute, as the cadet corps broke formation on the parade ground following conferring of degrees on 130 graduates in Jackson Memorial Hall.

L. J. Demeo, of New York; Carl F. Schupp, of Albany; I. G. Foster, of East Lynn, Mass., and W. Clary Holt, of Greensboro, N. C., were awarded Jackson Hope Medals for academic excellence. Cadet O. Hunter McClung, of Lexington, won the Cincinnati Medal for excellence of character.

The Dearing Award in English and Literature went to J. Reed Cranford, of Washington; the Cootes Cavalry Cup to John J. Burgess, of Fort Worth, Tex.; a prize for the best thesis on a military subject to Capt. C. F. Schupp, of Company A, the unit that won the Garnett Andrews Cup for the best company.

Alleged Narcotic Ring Leader to Face Trial

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 12.—Unable to furnish bond, George Polock, 26, unemployed, of the Columbia mining section, is being held in the Harrison County jail here, awaiting Federal Court here in October.

United States Commissioner L. T. Eddy fixed his bond at $5,000, after a hearing on a narcotic charge. Federal agents charge Polock with being the leader of a drug ring here. James Valentine, 20, employe of a hat cleaning shop where a quantity of drugs was found, is at liberty on $500 bond, and Steve Foties, 18, arrested at the same time, has been released.

Dr. Warfield to Quit As College President

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chambersburg, Pa., June 12.—Dr. Ethelbert D. Warfield, who as president of Miami University in Ohio at 27 was the youngest college president in the country, and who now as president of Wilson College at 74 is the oldest college president in active service, has requested that he be retired at the end of the next scholastic year, it was announced today.

The request was filed with the trustees yesterday and action was taken looking toward selection of a successor. Dr. Warfield has been in ill health. He came to Wilson College in 1915.

Governors Act To Save Benefit Under the NRA

Session on at Biloxi Today Also to Air Rows on U. S. Relief.

tribution of Federal relief will be prominently considered.

Relief Rows to be Aired.

Federal dictation of State affairs in connection with relief activities has brought strained feelings between Washington and State Governors in numerous instances. Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois, a Democrat, who recently was engaged in such a controversy with Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins, will speak on this subject. Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, whose disputes with the Administration have been aired spectacularly, is another scheduled speaker.

The Administration's side of the case will be presented by Aubrey Williams, assistant to Hopkins. The latter was unable to attend himself as had been planned earlier.

"The Governors Conference," said Gov. Conner, "is an institution that has splendid possibilities in view of the extension of the Federal activity into fields formerly left entirely to local government. Relations between the Federal and State governments are becoming more important daily.

Would Revise Extradition.

"In such matters as State codes regulating industry, labor contracts and other questions, treaties between the States can be very helpful. Such treaties are not prohibited by the Constitution, but on the contrary are anticipated by it.

"Take the matter of extradition. With modern roads and automobiles, crime is no longer a State matter. Treaties should be entered into between States so that officers can pursue suspects from one State to another."

Gov. Johnston said he had written other Governors regarding the desirability of interstate compacts. The only reply opposing the idea came from Gov. Talmadge of Georgia.

Gov. Johnston is especially anxious to use this method of dealing with NRA.

"The NRA," said Gov. Johnston, "has been of untold value to the country and whether constitutional or unconstitutional, perfect or imperfect, it rendered heroic service to an America that was prostrate."

Believes NRA Vital.

Gov. Johnston's views on the subject of a constitutional amendment do not concur with those of United States Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, who recently advocated a change in the Constitution of the United States in order to permit the necessary latitude to enact and enforce, from a national standpoint, such legislation as the NRA.

"One of the most vital and far-reaching problems before this conference, in my opinion," said Governor Johnston, "is the preservation of the fundamentals of the NRA, with special reference to minimum wages and maximum hours of work. I believe the vast majority of the industries of the country will follow the action already taken by many of the major enterprises and agree to this course."

"It is my hope that out of the conference we will be able to evolve a plan to have the executives of the States call for voluntary signatures, with a definite and unified course of action to be followed by the labor department of each State until such time as appropriate State legislation can be secured. It is a matter for the States to handle.

"I believe we will find there is ample patriotism in America to carry forward this program which will tend to minimize unemployment, pay living wages to labor under favorable working conditions and preserve the buying power of the masses of our citizenship, without which there can be no volume of retail business to bring about and sustain a lasting prosperity.

"I have been gratified at the fine response from a great many of the governors and I believe the sentiment will be crystalized into something beneficial for our country. In South Carolina a large number of industrialists and business men have pledged their full support in this undertaking and have signed agreements to continue the spirit of the NRA."

While opposed to any constitutional amendment, Governor Johnston was not impressed by the bid which the "Grass Roots" Republicans made for Southern Democratic support at Springfield earlier this week. He said the Republicans, while denouncing the Democratic Administration, failed to offer a single constructive criticism.

G. O. P. Creed "Meaningless."

The whole declaration strikes me as singular in that the Republicans do not propose to abandon the Democratic principles concerning agricultural assistance, necessary relief, or the policies the present Administration is following in a general way, yet they talk about balancing the national budget," he said.

"If these gentlemen were so endowed with governmental acumen and business ability that they could do this, they would have been drafted years ago to have solved all of our international economic ailments. They suggest they are capable to spend freely on one hand and balance budgets on the other, regardless of existing emergencies. It is a pretty theory, but it can not be done.

"The whole Republican creed is devoid of anything definite. It consists chiefly in a number of glittering but absolutely meaningless generalities, without a single thing the voters of this country can put their fingers on. They are content to stand off and criticize, but out of their whole camp no thoughts comparable with worthy leadership have they developed in the entire crisis through which this Nation is passing."

Mental Test Ordered For Accused Colonel

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, June 12.—Col. Robert Bowie Owens, of Harwood, today was ordered to the Spring Grove State Hospital for an examination into his mental condition by Police Magistrate Joseph M. Armstrong.

Owens was arraigned before the magistrate on charges of assaulting a Negro with a shotgun with intent to kill; resisting an officer and carrying concealed weapons. Action on the charges was held in abeyance pending a report from the superintendent of the hospital.

Robert Lanier to Wed Miss Gloria Kaufmann

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cambridge, Md., June 12.—Announcement has been made here of the engagement of Miss Gloria Whistler Kaufmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Jackson Kaufmann, of Baltimore and Long Island, to Robert S. Lanier, jr., son of Mrs. Anna Goldsborough Lanier, of this city.

Miss Kaufmann, who is the granddaughter of the late James McNeill Whistler, the artist, attended Miss Finch's School, in New York, and the Sorbonne, in Paris. She is a member of the Baltimore Museum of Art. Mr. Lanier is a grandson of the late Sidney Lanier, Southern poet. He attended Stony Brook School, and was graduated from Princeton University in 1930. He is a member of the Court Club, and the Bachelors' Cotillion, in Baltimore. The wedding will take place this month in Baltimore.

Fred Hampton Is Killed In Virginia Auto Crash

Fred Hampton, well known in local colored educational circles and to music audiences here, was killed yesterday in an automobile crash between Fredericksburg and Richmond, Va. Another man riding in the car with Hampton also was killed after their machine was hit by a truck and burned.

Hampton was first sergeant of the CCC camp at Battery Cove, Va., and was leader of the camp glee club. He was a native of Norfolk and was returning to camp from leave at home when the crash occurred. He was a graduate of Hampton Institute at Hampton, Va., and was noted for his voice and his musical directing. He had been heard on national radio hookups and had sung at camp fire meetings in Rock Creek Park.

Eagles Choose Donald G. Cook For President

Maryland Order Selects Frederick as Site of 1936 Convention.

By the Associated Press.

Frostburg, Md., June 12.—Donald G. Cook, Brunswick, Md., today was elected president of the Maryland Fraternal Order of Eagles in convention here. He succeeds Robert H. Hartman, Frederick. Frederick was selected as the 1936 convention city.

Other new officials are C. William Baer, Cumberland, vice president; J. W. Lyons, Frostburg, chaplain; Dr. Wright S. Sudler, Highlandtown, secretary; J. H. Fintrock, Hagerstown, conductor; H. C. Kline, Brunswick, inside guard; E. F. Rose, Cumberland, outside guard; Francis H. Schultz, Cumberland, and W. L. Main, Brunswick, trustees, and C. Bernard Smith, Frederick, treasurer.

Hartman also was named as State representative of the Grand Aerie this year.

The convention adopted a resolution indorsing a bill now pending in Congress which would prohibit the importation into the United States of the American flag or emblem made in any other country. It also adopted a resolution thanking Herman C. Herda, Baltimore, and John B. McFarlane, Cumberland, for their efforts in securing passage through the 1935 State Legislature of an old-age pension act.

NEWEST NEW CAR IN YEARS!

JUST ANNOUNCED
TWO WEEKS AGO Nash Motors announced the Nash "400", a new and lower-priced series of Aeroform design, as an addition to the 1935 Nash group of fine cars. Five words describe it: "Newest New Car in Years". New engineering principles. New mechanical advancements. New performance attainments. Never before has one car contributed at one time so many basic betterments. And never before has the public's dollar bought so big a dollar's worth of motor car.
$675
And Up F. O. B. Factory
MONITOR-SEALED MOTOR—First major motor improvement in years. All manifolds sealed inside the motor block. Design so simplified, so clean cut, that several hundred previously necessary parts are totally eliminated. Results: Uniform efficiency regardless of outside temperature. Gasoline saving! Oil saving! Simplified service! Longer life!
RAPID SERVICE HOOD—"400" Rapid Service Hood design eliminates hood lifting. The radiator ornament is hinged. Oil and water filler caps are directly underneath. Oil supply gauge is on the dash.
AEROFORM DESIGN—First completely streamlined car of low price.
STEEL TOP, ALL-STEEL BODY—First car to combine the safety of an All-Steel, One-Piece body with a Steel Floor and a Seamless Steel Top. The steel cross-membered steel floor reinforces the frame and the frame in turn reinforces the body.
ROOMIEST CAR AT THE PRICE—Front seat 54 inches wide, rear seat 53 inches. The most headroom. A big car of 117-inch wheelbase—191¼ inches overall length.
SYNCHRONIZED SPRINGING—First introduced on 1935 Nash and Nash-built LaFayettes, Synchronized Springing, with spring action harmonized front and rear, revolutionizes the "ride"—"Puts a new road under the wheels." Back seat ride and front seat ride identical in comfort.
BALANCED WEIGHT—Nash is one of the few manufacturers who design the car weight 50-50 front and rear! Perfect weight division is engineered into the "400."
MIDSECTION SEATING—Rear seat passengers ride ahead of rear axle, closer to center of the car. Sedans have real six-passenger capacity.
SUPER-HYDRAULIC BRAKES—Plus Duo-Servo action which needs but slight pedal pressure. The motion of the car assists the stop!
CLUTCH-PEDAL STARTING—Any car would be a more convenient, a more comfortable, a safer car to drive with Clutch-Pedal Starting. The "400" is the only car in its price field with this fine feature.
LUGGAGE COMPARTMENT IN EVERY MODEL—Large built-in space for carrying ample luggage and spare tire.
No other car has, or ever had, what the new Nash "400" has. All your past motoring experience is not enough to enable you to judge the new Nash "400" without actually seeing it and driving it. Step into a "400" and learn what's "newest of the new" in motoring enjoyment.
1935 LaFAYETTE—built by Nash—Eight different models in the lowest price field—$580 to $710 f. o. b. factory—lowest priced sedan with trunk in the industry, with only one exception!
All Nash and LaFayette Prices Subject to Change Without Notice—Special Equipment Extra

Charles Ellis' Funeral Today; Bell Associate

Co-Worker of Telephone's Inventor Was 83; Retired in 1926.

Funeral services for Charles William Henry Ellis, former associate of Alexander Graham Bell and later connected with the geophysical laboratory of Carnegie Institution, will be held today at his residence, 1939 Biltmore street.

Mr. Ellis, who retired from his post with the Carnegie in 1926, died suddenly Tuesday night at his residence. He was 83 years old.

A native of Boston, Mr. Ellis spent his youth there and in Waltham, Mass., where he worked for the Waltham Watch Co.

In 1886 Mr. Ellis came to Washington, and for some years served with the United States Fish Commission before he began his work with Bell, inventor of the telephone, in his laboratory here and at Cape Breton, Nova Scotia.

Mr. Ellis was a student of natural history, and particularly in birds. For a number of years he was associated with the American Ornithologists Union.

Surviving Mr. Ellis are a daughter, Mrs. T. S. Palmer; a son, C. Roland Ellis, and several nieces and nephews in Washintgon and California.

G. E. Schlosser To Head Lions In Alexandria

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

George E. Schlosser was elected president of the Alexandria Lions Club at its annual meeting yesterday in the George Mason Hotel. He succeeds Edgar S. Bayol, whose term expires July 1. The new officers, it is understood, will be installed in two weeks by a prominent member of the Washington Lions Club.

Other officers chosen were: Louis E. DeMoll, first vice president; John P. Strauss, second vice president; Fred S. Petti, third vice president; Marvin L. Wilson, secretary; Claude L. Hoover, treasurer; Jack Doniphan, lion tamer, and Thornton J. Goods, tail twister. Cary Blackwell and Dr. William B. Wilkins were elected trustees.

A report on the State convention at Ocean View was given by Louis E. DeMoll, who spoke of the work being done by the Lions for the blind children of the State.

The annual commencement exercises of the George Mason High School, in Alexandria, were held Tuesday night. Representative John W. Flannagan, of the Ninth Congressional District of Virginia, delivered the address to the graduates. The class, numbering 40, was the largest in the history of the school, which will be consolidated next year with the Alexandria High School in the new George Washington High School.

Miss Christine Hawkins and Miss Delma Slagle delivered the valedictory and salutatory, respectively. Clarence H. Strader, principal of the school, presided, and introduced the speakers.

Joseph Brooks, Frances Cummins, Eileen Fitzgerald, Marie Hasky, Marguerite Herbert, William Kleysteuber, Franklin McCaleb, Janice Morgan, Delma Slagle, Royal Stewart, Margaret Thorne, John Varney, Mildred Burns, Chester Dodd, Richie May Groves, Christine Hawkins, Stanley Keys, Henry Lewis, jr., Virginia McCoole, Marie Muller, Virginia Russell.

The following awards were made by Principal Strader:

The Howard M. Smith Essay Contest, Miss Roberta Hall; Sergt. Benjamin Patterson gold medals to the best marksmen on the girls' and boys' rifle teams, Miss Frances Johnson and Royal Stewart; Mount Vernon Chapter, D. A. R., medals to the boy and girl judged to be the best students of American history, Miss Barbara Weadon and Ballard Jewel; certificate of admission to Alpha Phi Sigma fraternity, Christine Hawkins and Delma Slagle; D. A. R. award by Mrs. H. Kirk, to Roberta Hall.

The Virginia State Supreme Court of Appeals has granted a writ of error in the suit of Ella R. Moore and others against George F. Downham, executor of the will of Sara L. Wilkins, according to a telegram received yesterday by Frederick L. Flynn, attorney for four contesting heirs.

In the Circuit Court of Alexandria, May 6, Judge Walter T. McCarthy, presiding, sustained the residuary clause which gave Mr. Downham power to distribute the estate to charitable institutions or to individuals as he might see fit. The estate is understood to be valued at $55,000 to $60,000.

The institutions slated to receive shares in the estate, according to Attorney Flynn, are the Alexandria Hospital, Kiwanis Summer Camp, trustees of the Second Presbyterian Church, the Alexandria United Charities, Alexandria Children's Home and Day Nursery and Ivakota Crittenden League.

The contesting heirs of Mrs. Wilkins, who was the widow of Dr. R. Lee Wilkins, are Mrs. Ellen R. Moore, Benjamin Bagot, Clarence Bagot and Mrs. Ruth Underwood.

Miss Sara Shotts has been named delegate to the biennial convention of Business and Professional Women, to be held in Seattle, Wash., in July. Miss Elizabeth Ramey, president of the Virginia Federation and past president of the Alexandria club, is also a delegate.

Col. John H. Trimyer will speak at the luncheon of the Alexandria Kiwanis Club in the George Mason Hotel today. He will speak on the origin and progress of Flag Day, since its launching, Friday being Flag Day. The speaker will be introduced by Harry F. Kennedy.

A charter has been granted by the State corporation commission to Albert M. Briggs, Inc., with principal offices in Alexandria. The purposes of the corporation provide for the erection of an abattoir for the slaughter of all kinds of cattle and live stock, to engage in the manufacture of dairy products, ice, and sale of other merchandise in its scope of business.

The officers and incorporators are Mrs. Elizabeth M. Briggs, president and treasurer; John T. Whalen, Washington, secretary and director, and Dr. Roy C. Case.

The local board of civil service examiners of Alexandria announce that the Civil Service Commission will hold the following open competitive examinations: Bindery operative (hand operations), bindery operative (machine operations), 66 cents an hour, Government Printing Office, Washington; farm loan registrar, $4,600 a year; deputy farm registrar, $3,500 a year, Farm Credit Administration. Information regarding these examinations may be obtained from Roger D. Clark, secretary of the local board, Postoffice Building, Alexandria.

A special joint meeting of the Russell Mitchell Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and its auxiliary will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at 601 King street. Millard H. Finnell, commander of the post, and Mrs. Margaret Scott, president of the auxiliary, urge a full attendance.

M. P. Churches Open Annual Maryland Meet

About 400 Attend Initial Session of Conference at Westminster.

By the Associated Press.

Westminster, Md., June 12.—With approximately 400 persons present, the 107th session of the Maryland annual conference of the Methodist Protestant churches opened today in Alumni Hall of Western Maryland College. The Rev. Dr. Edgar A. Sexsmith, conference president, opened the meeting.

The Rev. Dr. Hugh Latimer Elderdice, president-emeritus of Westminster Theological Seminary, observed the fiftieth anniversary of his church membership, having been received in 1885, at Alexandria, Va.

The Rev. Mr. Elderdice delivered the conference sermon on "The Lord's Supper in Memoriam." He warned against magnifying theology more than individual need; of splitting hairs of Christology instead of clinging close to the Christus.

The opening prayer was given by the Rev. Dr. W. H. Litsinger, of Chestertown. The secretary, the Rev. W. F. Wright, of Glenburnie, called the roll. The annual memorial service was held and the memorial roll call delivered by the Rev. N. O. Gibson, pastor of Grace Church, Baltimore. Obituaries were read for the Rev. H. B. Jester, J. L. Elderdice and Joseph H. Lynch, the latter of Lynchburg, Va.

The conference will continue through Monday. The report of the president and election of officers are scheduled.

Deadline Tax For Arlington Falls Saturday

County Trasurer Warns on Time Limit to Avoid Delinquency.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Saturday is the dead line for the payment of 1934 taxes, County Treasurer Charles T. Jesse has announced.

All 1934 taxes not paid by then will be listed as delinquent and draw 6 per cent interest, he stated. The list of delinquent taxes will be published in the local newspaper.

Jesse reported tax collections for the 11 months of the current fiscal year have exceeded the budget estimate by $11,460.

The treasurer's office at the courthouse will be open each day from 8:30 to 4:40, and on Saturday until 1 o'clock.

The Rosslyn Precinct Civic League will meet tomorrow at 8 p. m. in Woodrow Wilson School, at Fort Myer Heights. Speakers will be John W. Rust, of Fairfax, and Hugh Reid, of Arlington County, Democratic candidates for the State Senate, and Charles T. Jesse and Harry A. Fellows, Democratic candidates for country treasurer.

With the Democratic primary less than two months off, automobile stickers appeared yesterday morning on the car of County Officer John R. Burke.

Officer Burke displayed a sticker urging re-election of Sheriff Howard B. Fields. Before the day had passed all of the 18 police had stickers on their cars.

Mrs. Emma Topley was elected councilor of Cherrydale Council, No. 11, Daughters of America, at its annual meeting last night at Cherrydale.

Other officers elected are Mrs. Cornelia Wiseman, associate councilor; Miss Christine Jackson, vice councilor; Miss Ruth Hutson, associate vice councilor; Mrs. Rose Rowe, conductor; Mrs. Gladys Riely, warden; Mrs. Nettie Topley, inside sentinel; Mrs. Grace Leigh, outside sentinel.

Mrs. Lula Danton has been appointed as deputy for the Cherrydale Council by State Councilor Bessie Francis.

The officers will be installed July 9 by Mrs. Francis.

Boy Scout Troop No. 101 will meet in the Scout Hall at Ballston tonight, instead of Friday night, as in the past. Future meetings will be Thursday nights.

Pearl Buck, Husband To Speak in Virginia

Charlottesville, Va., June 12 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Walsh—Pearl Buck, prominent author, and the New York publisher whom she married at Reno yesterday immediately after both were granted divorces from their former mates—will visit Charlottesville next month to address round tables at the Institute of Public Affairs, sponsored by the University of Virginia.

Mrs. Walsh will speak July 8 on "Conflict and Cooperation Across the Pacific," a subject for which a number of years as a missionary to China qualifies her, and the next day her husband will talk on "Developing American Understanding in the Far East."

Legion to Sponsor Orthopedic Clinic

Dr. George Bennett Will Head Tuesday Exams.

Sponsored by the southern Maryland department of the American Legion, an orthopedic clinic will be held at the University of Maryland Tuesday, June 25, for the benefit of Prince Georges County residents.

Dr. George E. Bennett, noted orthopedic surgeon, will conduct the clinic in the women's field house at the university at 10 a. m. Those desiring diagnoses have been asked to be at the field house shortly before 10 a. m.

Mrs. R. G. Sheffer, 415 Calvert street, Hyattsville, a member of the women's auxiliary of the southern Maryland department, said it has been impossible to send letters to all those who might desire to take advantage of the clinic. She asked that all others interested contact her as soon as possible.

Fairfax Group Seeks to Speed Highway Work

County C. of C. Picks Trio to Protest Delay on Lee Boulevard.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 102-J.

Martin T. Webb, of Annandale, John W. Brookfield, of Springfield, and Wirt Ferguson, of Falls Church, have been appointed a special committee of the chamber of commerce of Fairfax County, Va., to cooperate with the chamber of commerce and other civic organizations of Arlington County in seeking immediate completion of the Lee boulevard.

The long delay in obtaining rights of way connecting the boulevard and the Memorial Bridge was scored by several speakers at a meeting of the Fairfax group Tuesday night.

The chamber also again assailed alleged inadequate allocations by the State for the secondary roads of the county. A resolution was adopted asking the State highway department to allocate a large portion of the additional $1,000,000 it will have for secondary roads to Fairfax County. Members of the chamber stated that because of the nearness of Fairfax County to Washington, most of its secondary roads are as heavily traveled as roads in the State primary system.

A resolution was adopted opposing the closing of the railway station at Seventh and C streets southwest, Washington, as it serves a large number of residents of the county that commute daily.

The status of the rural electrification survey that was made last winter will be discussed at the July meeting. County Agricultural Agent H. B. Derr and a representative of the Virginia Public Service Co. will explain the effort to extend the electric lines. The annual election of directors and officers will take place.

Mrs. Russell A. Lynn, of Herndon, Va., yesterday afternoon was re-elected chairman of the Fairfax County chapter, American Red Cross, for her seventeenth consecutive term. Other officers elected are Mrs. J. Hunter Mack, of McLean, vice chairman; Mrs. J. W. Cleveland, of Seminary, secretary, and Mrs. E. D. Vosbury, of Merrifield, treasurer.

The chapter voted to assist in financing a tonsil clinic for the children of Lee and Mount Vernon magisterial districts. Plans for the clinic are being arranged by Dr. A. L. Carson, county health director; Mrs. Fannie Lou Seamons, county health nurse, and Dr. William P. Caton, of Woodlawn.

Lynn Beckwith, jr., was elected president of Vienna Council, Order of Fraternal Americans, last night. Arthur Fritter was chosen vice president, Ralph Hagman, marshal; George Hummer, warden; Leonard McCauley, inner guard; Carl Allensworth, outer guard; L. B. Trammell, chaplain; George W. Darne, recording secretary; Arthur J. Smith, assistant recording secretary; C. M. Jones, financial secretary; Thomas R. Moreland, treasurer.

The council's third annual carnival will be held on the ground adjoining the Town Hall June 29 through July 6.

Mrs. Randolph Leight was re-elected president of the McLean Community Library Association yesterday afternoon. Miss May Walters was named vice president; Mrs. J. D. K. Smoot, secretary; Mrs. Stewart Terrett, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. Hunter Mack, treasurer; Mrs. Albert Mack, librarian; Mrs. Adrian Busick, program chaiman. Mrs. Leight spoke on her recent trip to Europe.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Herndon Volunteer Fire Department will hold a benefit card party at the home of its president, Mrs. Powell Summers, Friday at 8 p. m. The committee is Mrs. E. M. Armfield, Mrs. R. S. Crippen and Mrs. Powell Summers.

The Ladies Aid Societyof Herndon Baptist Church will have a food sale at the Martz Drug Store Saturday at 9 a. m. Mrs. A. E. Steele is chairman, aided by Mrs. E. E. Gillette, Mrs. William Kephart and Mrs. C. N. Florance.

Apple Producers Plan Advertising

Virginia and West Virginia Growers Meet.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., June 12.—A meeting of officers of the Virginia and West Virginia Horticultural Societies was held here today to discuss plans for a campaign to advertise apples produced in the two States.

C. Purcell McCue, of Greenwood, president of the Virginia Horticultural Society, and John Y. McDonald, of Charles Town, W. Va., president of the West Virginia Horticultural Society, attended the meeting.

Others present included W. S. Campfield, Staunton, secretary of the Virginia organization; Phil Gold, president of the Frederick County Horticultural Society, and Clay DeGrange, of Winchester, exporter and producer; Harry Miller, of Paw Paw, W. Va.; M. M. Brown, of Martinsburg, and J. T. Engle, of New York.

Mrs. Wilcox's Job Unfilled By Commission

Secretary of Welfare Unit Forced to Resign By Volume of Work.

Members of the Prince Georges County welfare board declared last night that no one has been suggested for the position as executive secretary to the board, to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Miss Charlotte Wilcox.

Miss Wilcox's resignation, which was announced earlier in the day, was accepted "with regret," said Mrs. J. Enos Ray, president of the board.

The retiring executive secretaray, under whose supervision a vast relief program has been set up in the nearby Maryland County, will leave July 1. She expects to accept a position in Washington.

Miss Wilcox came to the Hyattsville office in September, 1933, after establishing a relief set up in Garret County. She immediately called for a registration of all persons eligible for relief.

The following December, the CWA was established and many from the rolls of her helplessly-overburdened offices were transferred to the works projects. The major portion of the relief in the county, however, continued to be the responsibility of the rapidly-enlarging office.

When the CWA was discontinued in April, 1934, the Emergency Works Administration consumed some of the burden. But the bulk of the relief, in a county that boasts no industries, has continued to fall on Miss Wilsox's shoulders and to become, recently, a menace to her health, members of the welfare board said.

Montgomery Patrol Boys Conduct Outing at Park

More than 250 members of the Montgomery County Schoolboys Patrol, in association with the Montgomery County Police Department, held their annual outing at Glen Echo Park yesterday.

Prince Georges Community Group Hears NRA Chief for State.

Painting the future a rosy hue, E. W. Hungerford, NRA director for Maryland, yesterday told the Prince Georges County community council that business is "picking up rapidly" throughout the State.

"We are not going back to the old days," he said to an audience gathered in the Masonic Temple in Hyattsville. "We are not going to worship the golden calf. We are going to reach a Promised Land, where all will find joy and happiness."

He pointed out that the Government can not provide work for all persons. There are not enough jobs to go around. As a result of this, the older persons will have to drop out. This will necessitate the old-age pension, he said.

Distribution Bases.

Referring to the numerous Government relief setups, each of which feels it should be entitled to the relief projects made possible by the Government, he said there were three questions that must be the basis for distribution of the projects.

These were: "Will the agency place people on relief to work? Is this particular agency worth while (in connection with the particular project)? How much of the project can be paid for, and how much paid back?"

John White, delegate to the Maryland Legislature, another speaker on the all-day program, rapped the custom employed by Governors of Maryland for many years past, of allowing bills passed by the Legislature to lie on their desks for months before being signed.

He declared it was a "travesty on an up and going State" to allow such a thing. He suggested that all bills be dated by the Legislature for signature at a certain time, or a Legislative resolution passed, requiring signature within 10 days.

Delegation's Work.

He reviewed the work of the Prince Georges County delegation at the recent session of the State Assembly. He pointed out it had provided additional county police, restored salaries, provided installment collection of taxes, and accomplished other benefits.

He also declared that the delegation had been "unbossed" during the session, although working in harmony with the county commissioners, county treasurer and school board.

Perry Boswell, president of the county's board of commissioners, reviewed the local road program. He said the county had 234 miles of State, or hard-surfaced, roads and 466 miles of gravel and dirt roads. By an act of the recent Legislature all these have been turned over to the State for upkeep over a period of two years.

He declared that unless the approximately $100,000 received from gas tax receipts is increased in the near future, it will be necessary to supplement the road funds with additional money from bond issues or direct levies of taxes.

The council passed a resolution indorsing the $250,000 Bladensburg flood control project, which is backed by Delegate John White.

Clara Grant, Former D. C. Girl, Is Wed

Marriage on May 18 To Lieut. Ruestow Is Announced.

Bride's Father Served as Park Director In Capital.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Capital society will be interested in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Clara Frances Grant, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant 3d, of Fort du Pont, Delaware City, Del., formerly of Washington, and Lieut. Paul E. Ruestow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest W. Ruestow, of Malvern, Long Island. No announcement of the engagement had been made in Washington, and the wedding, which took place on May 18, at Hempstead, Long Island, was disclosed by Col. and Mrs. Grant at a tea Tuesday.

The bride is the great-granddaughter of the late President Grant. She attended Shipley School and was graduated from Bryn Mawr last June. She is the granddaughter of the late Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, and a great-niece of the late Ulysses S. Grant, jr., of California. The bride's mother is the former Miss Edith Root, daughter of Mr. Elihu Root, of New York. Col. Grant was formerly director of public buildings and parks in Washington, and is now in command of the First Engineers at Fort du Pont. Miss Edith Grant and Miss Julia Grant are sisters of the bride, who is a niece of Mme. Cantacuzene-Grant, of Washington.

Lieut. Ruestow was graduated from the Lynbrook High School in 1926, and received his appointment to the United States Military Academy at West Point. After leaving the Academy, he was assigned to the Army Engineer Corps, New York Area, and later to Fort du Pont, where he and his bride will make their home.

The bride has spent much of her girlhood in Washington and has many friends here.

Marsh - Spencer Wedding Held At Church Here

Members of Two Families and Friends Attend Ceremony.

Palms, ferns and early summer flowers banked the chancel of the Universalist National Memorial Church where the marriage of Miss Beatrice Hubbell Marsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Buckingham Marsh, and Mr. Charles Hart Spencer, jr., son of Mrs. Charles Hart Spencer, took place yesterday afternoon. The Rev. Frederic W. Perkins, D. D., performed the ceremony in the presence of members of the two families and friends of the young couple.

The bride wore a gown of white satin-striped mousseline de soie, fashioned with a fitted bodice and a bouffant skirt. With it she wore a veil of old rose point lace, falling in folds to the end of the train, and carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. She was given in marriage by her father. The bride's only attendant was Miss Adeline Herbert Taylor, who wore an attractive frock of delphinium blue mousseline de soie with a wide hat of natural leghorn. The accessories were of Dubonnet red and she carried a bouquet of sweet peas, delphinium and African daisies. Acting as best man for the bridegroom was Mr. Arnold I. Holmes and Mr. Bowdoin McClintock and Mr. Frederick Ely, of Pittsburgh, Pa., were the ushers.

The mothers of the bride and bridegroom assisted in receiving at the reception which followed the ceremony. Mrs. Marsh wore a frock of flowered chiffon, with a hat of black lace and a corsage of roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Spencer was gowned in gray lace with a Milan straw hat of lilac and a corsage of violets and lilies of the valley.

Out-of-town guests were Miss Lelia Thompson, of Hartford, Conn.; Miss Clara Corbusier, of Bridgeport, Conn.; Miss Madeline McClintock, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus W. Acheson, jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Y. Keeler, of Pittsburgh.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer will go to Pittsburgh July 15, where they will make their home. The bride wore a traveling suit of heather-green silk and wool with a Leghorn hat and accessories of brown.

Exercise Routine Valuable in Reducing Only When Carried on Vigorously and Regularly

It's back to babyhood for the woman who wants an effective method for reducing. Up-to-date physical instructors are recommending crawling as one of the quickest and best ways of losing poundage. The crawling should be done in nursery fashion five minutes a day. Arm and knee guards will save the beginner many a bruise.

Here's Girdle Made to Wear On Warm Days

Durable, Inexpensive Garment Designed to Allow Air to Reach Body.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

IT'S NO LONGER a case of wearing a girdle and roasting on hot summer days, thanks to the advent of a new type of girdle especially designed for hot weather.

This necessary accessory for those who go in for curve control is made of sturdy mesh lastex with just enough stretchability. It smooths down the hips and keeps the stomach in and at the same time allows air to reach the body.

Women who are indulging in the new snug-fitting organdies and clinging silks must remember that 90 per cent of the style of a dress depends on the figure. And in numbers of cases the figure depends on a girdle.

Contrary to the old ideas, girdles are not just for stout persons. They are for anyone who has a little too much avoirdupois here or there. And buying a girdle isn"t the budget breaking event it used to be. For instance, these new "keep cool" girdles cost only $1, and they're both beautifully fitting and durable.

One feature which is sure to please is the flat rubber garter. This can be depended on not to make an unsightly ridge beneath a close-fitting sheer summer dress.

For Movie-Minded Youngsters.

Every movie-minded youngster in Washington will be thrilled with the Colleen Moore doll house frocks and the "Our Gang" sun suits, which recently arrived in a local store.

The dainty little frocks come in a host of pretty styles, in light summer sheers and organdy, and in softest pastel shades. They range in sizes from 3 to 6 and in price from $1.95 to $2.95.

The "Our Gang" sun suits, 79 cents, are sure to allow for a good coat of sun tan. They are so sturdily made they are guaranteed to withstand the strain of a youngster's enthusiastic capers. These are available in color-fast cotton prints and combination, sizes 2 to 6.

Outfit for Only $7.85.

What would you say to a jaunty little outfit for only $7.85? An outfit that includes a skirt and jacket, and a hat, mind you!

They all come in shantung—cool and crisp looking for summer—in white, lilac, Dubonnet, green, yellow and numerous other delectable shades.

The skirt is made on such simple, tailored lines you can wear it with a shirtwaist or with the attractive matching jacket. This is single-breasted, with patch pockets and pointed lapels.

The hat is irresistible. It has one of those sport snap brims that may be worn down or up, Breton sailor style. It's equally fetching when turned down in front and up in back.

Any of these pieces may be bought separately. Hat, $1.95; skirt, $2.95, and jacket, $2.95.

Children's Beach Sandals.

It's usually the little miss of 6 or 7 years who wishes she could dress like grown-ups do. But now the case is reversed. Wouldn't it be nice if we could just stop off at the notions department and pick out a stunning little pair of beach sandals for only 50 cents? That's what the youngster can do! Right now this certain department in a local store is featuring these stunning sandals, with rubber soles, fishnet tops and tape ties. They're grand little play slippers, for it doesn't matter how wet they get or how many hard knocks they take, they stand the wear and tear!

Versatile Mirrors.

Shoppers are giving a hearty welcome to a cetrain new and versatile mirror. It may be used as one of those "stand-ups," which furnish such convenient close-ups, or else as a hand mirror. The handle opens out or folds back as a prop.

The mirror itself is a delightful affair. Beveled edging, gold plate, black, green and eggshell enamel, all give it that rich, luxurious look so suited to a lady's boudoir.

What TODAY Means

"Gemini."

IF JUNE 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m. and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m., from 4:30 to 6:30 p. m. and from 9:30 to 11:30 p. m.

Should you make a mistake, do not be afraid to admit it, as an admission will possibly prevent future complications. Tenacity of purpose is essential in successful accomplishment of anything undertaken on this date. Plunging headlong into social or business activities, disregarding some fixed responsibility, is likely to cause trouble.

If a woman, and June 13 is your natal day, you have a happy, pleasure loving disposition, which may incline you to take the responsibilities of life rather lightly. It will be good judgment if you will take both home or business duties more seriously, as the right discharging of them will give you a sense of satisfaction, which will be creative of a greater amount of contentment. You will probably be very lucky in money matters.

There is a possibility of your participating in some good fortune, which will probably solve an important problem. You should be very fortunate in matters involving deep affection. Marriage probably will fulfill your fondest expectations. In any line pertaining to the culinary art, painting, writing, work of an educational or social service nature, as well as clerical employment, are likely to provide congenial, as well as satisfactory means of livelihood.

The child born on June 13 may, when it passes through adolescence, display tendencies to be very sensitive, and taking to heart any harshness or injustice, so be careful in your treatment of such a youngster.

If a man, and June 13 is your birthday, you probably have a spirit of good-fellowship which makes you attractive to both men and women. You are a naturally born salesman, with a versatility that might be successfully used in writing, or the practice of law, medicine, dentistry, music, or painting.

Beauty Shops' Rush Credited To Short Hair

By the Associated Press.

THE RISE OF the beauty shop on the crest of the permanent wave was analyzed yesterday by the Women's Bureau.

Not the facial, not the manicure, not the eyebrow pluck, but the bobbed-hair craze was credited with starting American women to beauty shops in such numbers that the industry jumped from about 33,000 employes in 1920 to 125,000 in 1934.

Here's how the Women's Bureau figured it out:

"At first, as bobbed hair gained approval, there was an influx of women into men's barber shops. But as it became evident this type of coiffure required as much attention as long hair, or even more, cutting and trimming were supplemented by many different operations not available in barber shops.

"Permanent waving of both long and short hair, with its follow-up treatments, was the technological boomerang that sent the business of beauty parlors onward to profitable heights."

Finger-waving was found to be the service most in demand.

After investigating 465 beauty shops employing 1,655 persons in Philadelphia, New Orleans, St. Louis and Columbus, the Women's Bureau warned that women often were paying too little, not too much, for permanent waves.

The bureau found price-cutting to be "the generally lamented curse of the trade" on which low wages, long hours and lack of training standards were blamed. Tips had a sharp depression slump.

Mrs. Nichols Leaves Today For Sessions

3 Other University Women Here Will Attend Los Angeles Parley.

MRS. HOWARD G. NICHOLS, president of the Washington branch of the American Association of University Women, will leave today for Los Angeles, to attend the meeting of the National Board and the ninth biennial convention of the American Association of University Women.

These conventions bring together not only university women from the United States, but also members of the International Federation of University Women.

Other members of the local branch who will attend with Mrs. Nichols are Mrs. Charles A. Brown, Mrs. Edwin Nourse, and Miss Olive Hallock.

Members of the national staff attending the conference will include Dr. Kathryn McHale, general director of the association; Mrs. James B. McClintock, comptroller; Dr. Esther Caulkin Brunauer, research associate in international education and secretary to the committee on international relations; Mrs. Ruth Wilson Tryon, editor of the journal of the association; Mrs. F. C. Houdlette, research associate in adult education, and Mrs. Glenn R. Swiggett, chairman of the national legislative committee.

Miss Sanger Hails "Victory."

When the report that the General Federation of Women's Clubs at its convention in Detroit had overwhelmingly gone on record in favor of birth control was received at the headquarters of the National Committtee on Federal Legislation for Birth Control, Margaret Sanger, president of the committee, said, "It's a great victory. At last the women of the country have taken a stand on this subject which so vitally concerns them."

Temperance Union Meets.

The District of Columbia branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will hold its next quarterly meeting Friday in the Fifteenth Street Christian Church, at Fifteenth street and Kentucky avenue southeast.

Mrs. Jennie Esmond Wright will address the group at its morning session on 'Activities of Communities in Our Country," and Representative U. S. Guyer, of Kansas, will speak at the afternoon session.

In addition to business sessions, there has been arranged a varied program of entertainment music.

The Washington Alumnae Association of Alpha Delta Pi will hold a picnic in honor of the pledges of Alpha Pi Chapter of George Washington University, Saturday, at the summer home of Grace Hurd, Sherwood Forest, Md.

Miss Florence Beuchley, entertainment chairman, of the Vincent B. Costello Unit, No. 15, American Legion Auxiliary, will be in charge of the dance to be given by the unit Friday night at the Walter Reed Hospital.

Physical Culture Expert Lists Calisthenics to Lower Weight

One or Two Well Done Are Worth More Than Many Haphazard Bends and Twists, Miss Neal Says; Advises Gradual Start.

Thousands of modern women are battling the problem of weight control. They seek frantically some safe, sure way to lose their surplus pounds. How shall they proceed? This is the second in a series of articles on reducing.

By Frances Mangum.

THE AVERAGE woman who tries to reduce by doing a few arm flingings in her room each day has about as much chance as the one who diets one week and overeats the next.

Exercises to be effective must be done with vim, vigor and pep, believes Miss Ruby F. Neal, physical culture director at Marjorie Webster School.

"Of course," she said, "you can depend on exercises to help you reduce if you take them properly. The trouble is, most women don't. It's not just a question of going through with them. The main thing is how you go through them. Bending down and touching the floor with your hands is all very well, but you've got to bend in such a manner that you actually feel your muscles tug. When you get through, you've got to know that you've had a workout—or else your efforts are wasted."

Selection Is Important.

Women fail in their reducing programs not only because they do not do their exercise properly, but because they do not select the most effective ones, according to Miss Neal.

"They try four or five different exercises more or less half-heartedly," she said, "whereas it would be infinitely better if they concentrated on one or two and did those properly."

For the woman who wants quick and sure results Miss Neal recommends crawling. She says it's one of the best reducing exercises she knows. But she warns that it's strenuous.

"It's not so simple as its name," she laughed. "When you do this crawl, you really crawl."

Knee Guards Suggested.

Down on your hands and knees. (If you've any knee guards and heavy gloves, you'd better wear them.) Now fling the right arm forward, thrust the left leg back and outward, then bend it forward, resting your weight on it. Now the left arm and the right leg, progressing forward in a strenuous crawl. Make sure that you twist your trunk and push and pull with your legs and arms with all your might.

Do this for half a minute, then rest a minute on all fours. During the rest period sip some hot tea without sugar. Now begin again, and don't forget to stretch every inch you crawl. A half minute again, and a half minute of rest—and tea. Do this for five minutes a day regularly, and you're sure to see results, says Miss Neal.

Another exercise which she recommends is called the "big trunk movement." To do this lie flat on your back and twist over to the right, back to position, and twist to the left. Be sure and put real pep into those twists, she urges. Do this for five or ten minutes the first day and gradually work up to 20 or 30 minutes. It's fine for the waist line!

A third exercise suggested by Miss Neal, she termed "stride standing, and forward bending of trunk." To do this stand straight, legs apart, and bend forward as far as you can. Back to position, and down again. Work on this one gradually until you are sufficiently limber to touch the floor with your hands.

A good one for the waist and hips, she describes as "long sitting, trunk twisting from side to side." To do this sit down on the floor with your feet wide apart, and your arms out. Twist to the right, touching the floor with your left hand. Back to position, and twist to the left, touching the floor with your right hand. In order to derive full benefit from this exercise, you must do it vigorously.

For reducing the thighs, Miss Neal recommends lying flat on your back, bending your knee up to your chest, straightening it again, and then lowering your leg slowly to the floor. If the pull is too great on your muscles when you lower it, she says just let it down naturally until the muscles are stronger.

Miss Neal advises those who try these exercises to do them only a short time at first and gradually work up to 30 or 40 minutes. Above all be regular and faithful in their performance, she advises.

Trouble in Eden Is Laid to Peach Instead of Apple

It probably was a peach and not an apple that started all the trouble in the Garden of Eden, Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., nurseryman, believes, according to the Associated Press.

He points out that a small, fuzzy inedible peach which grows wild at elevations of 7,000 feet in Tibet and China is the ancestor of all modern peaches. In ancient days the Chinese believed eating a certain kind of peach would bring everlasting life. To the Chinese the peach tree was the "tree of knowledge."

"So it may have been that the apple eaten by Eve was what we know today as a peach," Stark said.

Mrs. Pollock Off For Pennsylvania

Oil Board Officer to Take Charge of Welfare.

Mrs. Lester J. Pollock, assistant personnel officer for the Petroleum Administrative Board, and widely known in political and civic affairs, has left Washington to take charge of the Pennsylvania welfare department.

Mrs. Pollock has been prominent in organizations here and in Scranton, Pa., where she maintains her voting residence. A charter member of the Community Chest organization in Scranton, she recently was a member of the speakers' bureau of the Washington Community Chest. She is active in the National Council of Jewish Women and the National League of Women Voters.

Since 1920 she has been active in politics. She was a delegate from the District of Columbia to the Democratic national conventions of 1928 and 1932. Since 1924 she has been a member of the speakers' bureau of the Democratic National committee and was a member of the Democratic finance committee for the District of Columbia from 1933 to 1934.

Crabs Provide A Tasty Feast For Seashore

Buy Shellfish Fresh, Cook and Chill Them; Have Variety of Sauces.

By Dorothea Duncan.

WHEN everything else fails to lure your friends down to your summer habitat on the shore, issue invitations for a crab feast, and sit back and watch them break their necks to get there. Your lifelong enemies will try their utmost to wangle invitations, too. If you are a newcomer to crab land and you want to delight your friends with a crab party, but don't know quite how to go about it, read on.

By all means buy live crabs and cook them yourself. Your guests, especially if they have never seen such a performance, will enjoy it thoroughly, and perhaps give it a try themselves. Have some crabs cooked ahead of time, however, because they should cool for a time in the water in which they have been cooked, and then chilled, for some of the guests will want their crab meat cold.

The live crabs should be plunged into rapidly boiling, salted and acidulated water (1 tablespoon of salt and 1 cup of vinegar to 1 gallon of water). Let them boil hard for ten minutes. Allow the crabs to cool for a while in their own water. Take them out of the water, and as soon as they are cool enough, wash them thoroughly and put on ice until needed.

Remove Unedible Portions.

To make the eating as simple as possible, for the novice at least, you might pull off the claws and remove the unedible portions; the devil's apron, the "dead man's fingers" and the spongy part. Hold the body of the crab under a faucet of cold water until it is well washed; then break it in two. Pile the cracked claws (you may let the guests crack the claws with nut crackers if you like) and the bodies on a platter and chill in the refrigerator.

If your table is one of smooth clean boards don't bother with a cloth of any kind. Serve the crab claws and the bodies on large trays and have empty trays for the debris, there will be a lot of it. Wooden or paper plates may be supplied for the guests, and a nut cracker and pick and a small sharp knife for each person. Paper napkins, the largest ones available, should be everywhere. Each guest will need several.

Everyone has his preference when it comes to a sauce for the crab meat. Serve wedges of lemon, large juicy ones, on a plate, and several cruets of vinegar. Have numerous salt and pepper shakers. Have a dish of French dressing and another of mayonnaise, and a bowl of melted butter. Here is the recipe for a sauce that is particularly enticing when served with crab meat.

Crab Sauce Recipe.

Make a dressing of 2-3 olive oil and 1-3 fresh lime juice, salt, and a dash of tobasco pepper. Put a quantity of this dressing in small bowls. As the meat is picked out of the claws and the body it should be dipped into the dressing and eaten. The fresh lime juice blends exquisitely with the flavor of the crabs.

Of course the crabs are the main dish, but a salad will add to the attractiveness of the meal. Fill large wooden bowls with a salad of fresh greens and summer vegetables, and perhaps another bowl with a good piquant cole slaw or potato salad. Make your green salad in the good French manner. Rub the bowl first with a cut clove of garlic. Peel and slice firm, ripe tomatoes, and place them in the bowl on a bed of watercress, strew with rings of green pepper, young scallions and round red radishes. Mix lightly with French dressing.

Vienna bread and hard rolls and butter may be served, as well as iced tea and beer.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

Wife Who Has Borne Five Children, Three Now Dead, Seeks Some Alternative to Living With Husband Addicted to Alcohol.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I have never before written for advice nor am I easily inspired to write about anything, but never before was I in such a state of rebellion and in such need of unprejudiced opinion.

I have been married for 11 years, the first six of which were beautiful and harmonious. Now I am sorely beset by the problem of trying to adjust myself to the unhappy situation of living with a husband whom I have gradually stopped loving and respecting. Drink is his failing.

Six years after we were married, he came home one night, later than usual, drunk for the first time. He seemed very pleased with himself. I was puzzled and dismayed but tried to be a good sport about it. I urged him not to be "that way" and hoped it wouldn't happen again. But the thing repeated itself over and over again.

• • • •

We had at that time two dear little boys, just 22 months apart. Suddenly the eldest, then 4½, was killed in an accident. Shocked and grief-stricken, I tried to comfort my family as best I could and in turn looked to my husband for support, but he became even worse. I thought perhaps another child would help our sorrow and so our daughter was born. During the months before she was born my husband did better and came home more regularly.

• • • •

I still loved him so much and hoped the worst was over. We changed towns, coming to a small town near Washington. But I found I was wrong. All this time, soon after the baby was born, he became what is known as a periodic drinker. In between times he was a perfect husband, but about every three weeks he would go off on "sprees" lasting a couple of days.

Then an unexpected pregnancy. During this time he showed practically no consideration and stayed away from home a lot. The baby was born dead. I was heartbroken, but tried to swallow my disappointment so that home would not be a place of gloom. Again he did better, and again my faith was renewed. I am not trying to paint him as a villain. He has many good qualities.

• • • •

Time passed and the memory of the dead baby failed to fade, so we decided to have another child. Then the real trouble started. Never have I been through such humiliation. In a small, gossipy town, he would appear so drunk every one would notice. If I was invited to a bridge party, he would turn up to embarrass me before all my friends.

• • • •

If we invited a couple in to play bridge at home he would either absent himself or come home "loaded to the gills." The school teacher once came to supper, and that happened. It isn't that he doesn't like friends, for he does. The fifth child was born and lived only a day. The doctor said worry was the cause. I myself almost didn't return home.

While I was in the hospital he went on one of his sprees, came to the hospital in that condition and had to be ushered out. His boss has threatened to fire him and everyone has tried to talk to him. He is so reasonable to talk to and always begs for another chance. He swears he couldn't go on without us and seems to adore our two surviving children when he's here.

• • • •

After I came home from the hospital six weeks ago he asked for another chance to prove himself. My love for him is dead but I thought if he could make good I might learn to care for him again. So I was cheerful and kind and just beginning to feel that perhaps everything was going to end happily when here he's off on another spree.

• • • •

I'm at a total loss to know what to do. I am a housekeeper, wife and mother. I went into marriage with a strong determination to be loving, kind and tolerant, but I can't face the prospect of living and rearing my children in such an atmosphere.

What, if anything, can a woman do who is absolutely untrained to make a living? My children mean more to me now than anything else in life, and I want to know which is best for them: to keep them in a household where there is no harmony? or strike out with them and try to build a new life without my husband? There is no one to help me financially, although my mother-in-law has been a very real friend. My friends have practically clothed the children and me.

Is there anything you can suggest? HOUSEWIFE.

A Tentative Solution.

DEAR HOUSEWIFE: Under the circumstances, I suggest you make a well-organized effort to help your husband overcome his addiction to drink before considering the last resort of leaving him. Dipsomania, rather generally regarded by psychiatrists and medical men as one type of "flight from reality" indulged in by persons seeking to evade adult responsibility, sometimes yields to proper nervous, mental and physical treatment in its early stages.

• • • •

If your husband is willing to be helped—and I should think he might well be, once the realization is forced upon him that his chances of keeping his home together depend upon future sobriety—I can give you the names of several persons, anyone of whom is in a position to give you competent advice and assistance in this crisis.

• • • •

First, there is Miss Beulah Smith, psychiatric social worker and director of the Washington Life Adjustment Center, 1410 Columbia road northwest. She is familiar with this type of domestic problem, and evinced a sympathetic, optimistic and understanding interest in your case when I discussed it with her today. You can make an appointment to talk with her in detail by telephoning Adams 7979, between 1:30 and 4:30 any afternoon from Monday through to Friday.

Also, there are Dr. George H. Preston, associated with the Maryland State Board of Mental Hygiene, 330 North Charles street, Baltimore, Md., and Dr. Ralph Truitt, executive secretary of the Mental Hygiene Society of Maryland, whose office and clinic (conducted in connection with the University of Maryland) are at 622 West Lombard street, Baltimore, Md. Both are psychiatrists.

Then, there is Miss Charlotte Wilcox, attached to the Hyattsville branch of the Emergency Relief Administration, who has had great experience in helping persons disentangle the snarled threads of gone awry.

• • • •

Since your husband has, by his periodic irresponsibility of conduct, forced you to take the initiative in remedying matters, I feel you would be acting fairly in taking your problem to one of the above-mentioned persons without further preamble. Moreover, the shock of discovering his wife is an individual capable of acting courageously and independently to end an intolerable situation may re-awaken your husband's ambition for self-mastery.

• • • •

Contact with one of the persons cited should serve a two-fold purpose. You can learn definitely if there is any hope of rehabilitating your husband as a responsible family head; and in the event you discover there is no such hope, you will have someone thoroughly familiar with your case to turn to for guidance in plotting a future course without him.

Don't let false pride hamper your actions in this exigency, and if there is anything further I can do for you, please don't hesitate to write me.

M. H.

Pain Alone Is Poor Guide in Diagnosis

Symptoms Pointing to Angina May Be Due to Gallstones.

By Irving S. Cutter.

MOST of us understand that it is often unsafe to identify pain in a particular area of the body with a definite disease. Sometimes this correlation is exact, as, for example, pain that is felt when pressure is applied to the region of the appendix usually means trouble in this vicinity. But pain alone is not enough. We must couple with the symptom considerable additional information in order to arrive at a correct diagnosis.

Cases Are Analyzed.

It is also true that pain in the region of the gall bladder may not indicate gall bladder disease at all. On the contrary it may mean disease of the blood vessels of the heart (coronary disease) or failing heart muscle. Furthermore, the converse is true. Pain that stimulates angina pectoris may be due to gall stones or gall bladder infection.

A few weeks ago my attention was called to a patient who was being studied for possible gall bladder disease. The symptoms seemed to indicate trouble in this area. The gall bladder and surrounding structures were found to be normal. An electrocardiogram, however, showed damage of one of the principal blood vessels supplying the heart muscle. The narrowing of this important vessel was the cause of the pain.

Another case was that of a woman aged 44 who complained of shortness of breath and pain in the region of the heart on the slightest exertion. A reasonable diagnosis was made by her physician, namely, angina pectoris. There was considerable tenderness over the gall bladder area, and an X-ray examination disclosed a greatly enlarged and infected gall bladder. With removal of this organ all the heart symptoms disappeared. Actual cases of both types could be multiplied indefinitely.

There seems to be some relation between gall tract disease and the heart, and there are many instances in which the patient will complain of palpitation, rapid heart, shortness of breath, and other heart symptoms—all of which will completely disappear upon removal of an offending gall bladder. Certain heart symptoms, therefore, must not be viewed as prohibiting surgical attack upon the gall bladder region. On the contrary, such a procedure may be the means of relieving the heart.

Disease of the Heart Seldom Originates in That Organ.

Pain Often Misleading.

An analysis of over 900 cases of gall bladder disease showed that nearly 40 per cent of the patients complained of palpitation, rapid heart, or anginalike pain. It is well known that pain from the liver region may be referred upward into the chest and typify an attack of angina. This study demonstrates also that infection in the liver area, if absorbed into the circulation, may give rise to degeneration of the heart muscle sufficiently extensive to cause symptoms of heart failure.

Job Program Begins July 1 In Maryland

Works Projects Will Replace Aid to All Able-Bodied Men.

State to Take Care of Unemployables, Aged and Minors.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, June 12.—The Works Progress Administration is expected to begin to function in Maryland about July 1, it was learned from authoritative sources today. After that time direct Federal relief will be tapered off until existing funds for the purpose brings it to a close.

The State will gradually be required to assume full responsibility for direct relief for unemployables, the aged and minors, it was said, and thereafter Federal funds will be used for works projects only.

Under the new arrangement, suitable projects will be selected and work done on a "man-year" basis, with the requirement that $1,000 of Government money keep one man working for one year and supply him with all the materials and equipment he needs. Thus a project requiring one year to complete and costing $100,000, will be a 100-man project.

Hampers Road Commission.

This plan is causing some concern in the State roads commission, it was said, where work is done under contract. The commission is preparing a definite program for Maryland to be submitted to the Federal Roads Bureau.

Road contractors invest approximately 80 per cent of the construction cost in equipment and supplies, it was said, the remaining amount going for labor. The average cost of constructing a standard 16-foot concrete road is $30,000 a mile.

Difficult for Contractors.

The contractors would find it difficult, if not impossible, to maintain the man-year basis on the required $1,000 per men for equipment, supplies and labor, it was said.

Relief officials assert they are not disturbed by possible complications for road-builders, because there is more than one source for funds for that purpose. A possible solution would be to split a project into two or more contracts, it was said.

Graduation Rites Held at Seminary

21 Given Diplomas at Historic St. Mary's.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

St. Mary's City, Md., June 12.—Graduation exercises completing a three-day program were held yesterday at historic St. Mary's Female Seminary. Judge Harris Camalier, president of the board of trustees, awarded diplomas to 21 graduates.

The program, which included several student speeches and tableaux, included a demonstration of the various departments of the school. Invocation was given by Father Charles Roach, and the Rev. Nelson Maconomy delivered the benediction.

A portrait of Mrs. Felix Wathen, founder of the seminary, and its first president, was presented to the school. Mrs. Agnes Vail, Baltimore artist, made the presentation, which was accepted by Mrs. Sydney Loker, vice president of the alumnae association.

Park Road Stretch Offers Are Opened

12-Mile Gap Is South of Carolina Line.

By the Associated Press.

Roanoke, Va., June 12.—The park highway connecting the Shenandoah and the Great Smoky Mountains advanced another step toward eventual completion today with the opening of bids by the United States Bureau of Roads here on 12.49 miles of road extending south from the North Carolina line.

Nello L. Teer, of Durham, N. C., made the lowest bid, offering to do the work for $383,837 if 4,100 feet of cast iron culvert pipe were used, and $364,862 if reinforced concrete culvert were used. The contract was for grading, draining and preliminary surfacing of the stretch.

William M. Austin, engineer for the Federal bureau, who opened the 10 bids submitted, said they would be transmitted immediately to the Washington office. Early award of the contract is expected.

Oyster Ad Fund Quota In Crisfield Area Near

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Crisfield, Md., June 12.—Nearly 90 per cent of the $100,000 allotted to this territory to raise in the campaign for funds to advertise the oyster industry has been pledged, according to Charles A. Loockerman, one of Crisfield's largest oyster packers and a director of the Oyster Dealers and Growers Association of America.

Mr. Loockerman said the association believes a national advertising campaign of this scope will create a demand that will mean better prices for oysters and take care of the increase in production that will be brought about by the planting programs now under way in several States.

Those chosen for the Algernon Sydney Sullivan awards were Isabelle Mary Allegree, of Charlottesville; Murat Willis Williams, of Richmond, and Charles Henry Kauffmann, of ahe university faculty.

The highest standing students in law who won membership in the Order of the Coif were Morton Waller Belcher, jr., of Lynchburg; Reginald Geary Conley, of Silver Spring, Md.; John A. Field, jr., of Charleston, W. Va.; Edward Dimmick Gasson, of Alexandria; Sandro Mayer, Hopewell Junction, N. Y.; William Daniel Staples, of Roanoke, and Anna Eliza Dinwiddie, of Charlottesville.

Dr. Cook of Cumberland Weds.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 12.—Dr. Albert C. Cook, of this city, son of John G. Cook, Frostburg, and Miss Mary Angeline Baum, daughter of Mrs. Addie Baum, Moline, Ill., were married today at Moline, where the bride has been a teacher in the Willard School. She is a niece of Dr. and Mrs. E. Don Taylor, of Lonaconing, Md. Dr. Cook is a graduate of the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery.

Tipsy Driving Blamed In Crash With Hearse

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Buckhannon, W. Va., June 12.—Charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, as a result of which his car crashed into a hearse returning from a funeral, Baxter Bennett, a Union district farmer, is free under $500 bond to await a hearing June 17 before Magistrate T. B. Drummond.

Mrs. Tella Paugh, of Buckhannon, housekeeper for Bennett, suffered a fractured collar bone and other injuries. Morris White and G. W. Phillips, occupants of the hearse, escaped injury.

Shake-up Due For Maryland's Setup on Roads

Reorganization Slated in July Aims to Check 'Waste' of Funds.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, June 12.—A reorganization of the State roads system probably will begin in July, a spokesman of the commission said today.

Its purpose was set forth as being for the elimination of "excessive waste of roads funds." The plan recently tried in Washington County, where five persons were discharged and only two were replaced, is to be applied with modifications in all counties, it was asserted.

"Each county is being studied," the spokesman said. "The commission is of the opinion the people of Maryland want the gasoline tax money spent for building and maintaining roads, rather than to pay salaries of unnecessary employes."

The spokesman said one county has four maintenance supervisors, the lowest paid receiving $2,100 a year. One man can do the entire job, and the other three will be dropped from the payroll, it was said.

The commission was in session today studying means of bringing about the economies it plans.

Hagerstown Proposes Work on Highway

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 12.—That section of the Shenandoah Trail in the southern section of the corporate limits would be rebuilt under the Federal works-relief program and the city is planning to submit application along with two other local projects. This is the only entrance to the city on a main highway that is in need of repairs. The other projects here which will be submitted to the Works Relief Administration for approval is a storm drainage system for the northwest section and the completion of the sewerage system in the northeast section of the city.

Suicide Attempt Is Charged In Warrant Taken for Girl

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, June 12.—Sheriff Joseph W. Alton today had a warrant issued for Miss Helen Knowles, 21, of Foley, N. C., charging her with attempting suicide.

The girl is in Emergency Hospital with a wound in her left breast. She was found shot in a berth of the cabin cruiser Drone tied up at the foot of Shipwright street here.

After investigating the case, Sheriff Alton said the girl had been living on the cruiser with Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Huntington, her sister and brother-in-law, for a number of weeks. The Huntingtons today went on a trip to the Eastern Shore and requested Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ogle, of Annapolis, to board the boat and stay with Miss Knowles, who had been despondent.

Ogle left the boat to get his automobile, the sheriff said, and Mrs. Ogle was on deck when a shot was heard. Mrs. Ogle found the wounded girl in a berth, a small caliber pistol under her. Her condition is serious.

Virginia Towns Name Officials In Heavy Ballot

Foltz Chosen Shenandoah Mayor; Bradfield Wins at Leesburg.

By the Associated Press.

Voters in a number of Virginia communities cast their ballots in record numbers Tuesday to name new officials and, in at least one case, to express their views on the matter of a local bond issue.

In Washington County residents of the Abingdon and Glade Springs magisterial districts voted strongly in favor of a bond issue for the construction of a water system. An application for $428,000 PWA loan-grant for the project has been obtained.

At henandoah, Va., James L. Foltz, merchant, was elected mayor, defeating Dr. J. E. Hatfield by more than 2 to 1. A new city council also was named.

Councilmen Reelected.

Bristol reelected Col. Carroll L. Kidd and T. L. Hayworth to the City Council for four years. They will serve with Mayor W. R. Rogers, C. J. Harkrader and W. R. Mumpower, whose terms do not expire for another two years.

Leesburgh voters elected E. N. Bradfield, young banker, mayor of that community. He defeated Charles R. Lowenbach 226 to 103. In the same election Hurst Lefferts was named city recorder and five councilmen were reelected. A new member of the council named yesterday is John H. Turley.

At Gate City A. W. Johnson was reelected mayor for his third term defeating J. H. Dixon, city attorney, 170 to 94. Five new councilmen also were elected.

Mayor Acree Defeated.

Mayor L. M. Acree, of Gordonsville, running for reelection, was defeated by J. H Stratton. Five councilmen were chosen.

At Scottsville, a blank-ballot election returned Mayor T. E. Bruce and all members of the council. Because several candidates failed to file, no names were printed on the ballots and the poll was conducted as a write-in election.

F. B. Berry, 20 times mayor of Orange, was kept in office defeating Keesee Brooking, county surveyor, 134 to 85. Four councilmen were named.

At Big Stone Gap W. S. Beverly polled 275 votes to win against Gordon Gilly and Mrs. Cora Benedict, first woman candidate for mayor in the history of the community.

Mr. Middour served as assistant headmaster of the Mercersburg school for eight years. He was head of the history department of that school.

Businessmen File Test Suit On Aid Tax

Testimony in Maryland Court Contest to Be Ended Today.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, June 12.—Maryland business men today offered testimony in circuit court here attacking the validity of the new 1 per cent State gross receipts tax, the State's only means of providing funds for relief needs.

Judge J. Frank Supplee, jr., heard the two cases attacking the tax at the same time so that appeals in both will be filed, regardless of the decision of the court, it has been indicated.

Testimony of complainants was not completed today and probably will require all of tomorrow's sessions.

George S. Jackson, president of a dairy company, testified that his company was absorbing the tax at a cost of about $60,000 a year. For two days, he said, the company attempted to pass the tax on to the consumer, but heavy losses of business forced it to absorb the levy.

Credit Sales Cited.

William H. George, official of a book company, testified that his concern had paid taxes for April and May on many sales which had been made on credit and for which it had not yet been paid. He added, he doubted if many of them "ever would be paid."

The law exempts sales of automobiles and of gas, natural gas, electricity and steam from operation of the tax. A titling tax of 1 per cent, which is paid by the owner of the automobile and not the dealer, is levied, however.

The complainants offered evidence today attacking the tax on ground that it was discriminatory in allowing exemptions of those articles.

Many Objections.

Attorneys for both sides entered frequent objections during the course of the day's testimony. Most of the obections were technical in nature.

The two actions named State Comptroller William S. Gordy, jr., as defendant and asked that the law be held invalid and that Gordy be enjoined from collecting the tax.

Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor is representing the State.

Step to Eliminate Ward Lines Taken

Fredericksburg Ignores Section in Naming Police.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 12.—The first definite steps toward eradication of ward lines in Fredericksburg were taken by the city council Tuesday night when it elected Harry Fleming as a policeman without regard to his place of residence.

Fleming, who was recommended by Capt. G. M. Harrison, police commissioner, is a resident of the lower ward. He was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of E. Cleveland Musselman, policeman from the upper ward.

Several members of the council have expressed themselves in favor of abolishing the line which divides the lower wards and upper wards of the city, pointing out that it no longer served any useful purpose, as all officials are representative of the city as a whole. Members of the city council, the school board and police officers are the only persons affected by ward lines, all other city officials being chosen at large.

Free Bridge Advocates Call HagerstownMeeting

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 12.—The Mayor and City Council have been invited to a meeting here Monday night by a group of business men interested in acquisition of the Potomac River bridge at Williamsport by Maryland and West Virginia, or the erection of a free bridge near that point with Government funds.

At a meeting last night, attended by representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, American Automobile Association and service clubs, the opinion was expressed that a free bridge would be of great benefit to Martinsburg, Williamsport and Hagerstown. Much tourist traffic over Route 11 between the North and South is detoured because of this bridge, it was stated.

Named Welfare Worker.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., June 12.—Miss Eulalia Nalley has been employed by the Frederick County Board of Supervisors as a full-time county welfare worker, it was announced today. As a result the board will discontinue appropriations formerly made to the Red Cross Chapter and the District Nurse Association, which heretofore have assisted in Frederick County relief work.

Possessions Of W. B. & A. To Go On Sale

Railroad Company to Be Offered at Public Auction Friday.

Bus Service Held Likely if Train Accommodations Are Dropped.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., June 12.—The properties of the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Electric Railroad Co. will be offered at public auction Friday on the door of the local courthouse.

The sale will be held by Louis J. Burger, of Baltimore, special master appointed by a decree of the Federal District Court of Maryland, and will constitute a complete selling of all railroad properties affecting Annapolis and Anne Arundel County. The property will be offered in 13 parcels.

While it is considered doubtful that the rail service on the South Shore Line and into the District of Columbia will be salvaged at the sale and thereafter continued as a going concern, it is understood that the bondholders of the old Annapolis Short Line Railroad have been considering rehabilitating the service from Annapolis to Baltimore, and establishing modern equipment with high-class service.

Negotiations and conferences toward this end have been held in the past few weeks with Federal, State and county officials, and it is understood an announcement as to future plans may be forthcoming shortly after the sale.

In the event that rail service on the South Shore Line is not continued, the transportation problem from Annapolis to Washington and along the line to Naval Academy Junction probably will be solved by bus service.

One bus application already has been filed with the public service commission, and it is considered likely that several others will be filed after the sale. The public service commission has announced that the W. B & A. would be permitted to continue its service until September 15, 1935, but it is considered likely that toward the end of July some official action will be taken which will mean abandonment of the entire service.

Auto Crash Fatal To Woodstock Girl

Elizabeth Haun, 27, Meets Death in Tennessee.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Woodstock, Va., June 12.—G. Harry Haun, former clerk of the Circuit Court of Shenandoah County, received a message today informing him of the death of his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Haun, in a Knoxville, Tenn., hospital as a result of an automobile accident. She was a graduate of Woodstock High School, Ashland College, Ashland, Ohio, and the Chicago Conservatory of Music.

Prior to her death she was conducting a music studio at Norris Tenn. Besides her parents she is survived by two brothers, Dr. Charles Haun, of Pleasant Hill, Tenn., a member of the interdenominational mission board, and Dr. Ray Haun, professor of physics at Ashland College, and one sister, Mrs. E. J. McShane, wife of a faculty member of the University of Virginia.

Burial will be in Woodstock.

Cruising Middies Pay Visit to Shipyards

Newport News, Va., June 12 (AP).—Future officers of the Navy will get an insight into how the ships on which they will sail are built when 100 midshipmen, members of the second class at Annapolis, inspect the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Company's yard tomorrow morning.

They will interrupt a cruise they are making on two destroyers by docking at the company's yard about 9 a. m. and coming ashore to examine the airplane carriers Yorktown and Enterprise and the cruiser Boise, now being built.

Miss Alvis Appointed County Health Nurse

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Berryville, Va., June 12.—Miss Noretta Alvis, formerly of Richmond, a public health nurse for the last 20 years, has been appointed health nurse for Clarke County, Mrs. Graham Dougherty, chairman of the Clarke County Visiting Nurse Association, announced today.

The county board of supervisors has turned over to the association one of the new rooms in the addition recently built to the courthouse as an office for the nurse.

Governor Will Talk In Old Home Vicinity

Winchester, Va., June 12 (AP).—Old friends and acquaintances of Gov. H. G. Kump of West Virginia, who spent his boyhood in the neighborhood of Timber Ridge Christian Church, are looking forward to his address before the Rockbridge County congregation at its annual memorial service Sunday. His talk is scheduled at 2:30 p. m.

Judge G. K. Kump, of Romney, W. Va., will also speak, the Rev. Ivan R. Smith, the pastor, has been informed.

Courthouse Officials In Rockingham Robbed

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 12.—Four offices on the second and third floors of the Rockingham County Courthouse were broken into last week and $10 in change and $17 in stamps taken.

The money and stamps were taken from the offices of John C. Myers, school superintendent, and P. O. Bailey, State highway engineer. Rooms of the Rockingham Red Cross Chapter and Turner Ashby Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, were entered but nothing was taken.

Yesterday a thief entered the office of Police Justice W. W. Wharton and took $99.07 in cash and $120 in checks from an unlocked safe. The police office was only a few doors away.

Food Shunned By SuspectHeld In Death Quiz

Physician Called as Prisoner Says He Is Unable to Eat.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 12—As authorities announced today that a warrant charging John F. Burke, Philadelphia race follower, with the murder of David L. Buchanan, 79, rooming house proprietor, had been prepared and would be served upon Burke tomorrow, it became known that the suspect had not partaken of food for two days.

"Your food is all right, but I just can not eat," Sheriff Max Malott, in whose charge Burke has been since taken into custody last week at the Charles Town race track, said Burke told him.

Sheriff Malott said that he was concerned over Burke's condition, and that he had called in a physician. Burke has been questioned for three nights, but steadfastly denies that he murdered Buchanan or knows anything about the case.

He also denies that a blood-stained shirt, bearing a laundry mark, the last letter of which is "E," and found in a room adjacent to the one he occupied in a Martinsburg rooming house, is his.

The police, however, revealed some of the evidence upon which the murder warrant is based.

A leather jacket Burke was wearing when arrested, and which police say Burke admitted he picked up in Buchanan's office bedroom the night the aged man was murdered, along with a suitcase which Buchanan had been holding for an unpaid room bill, bore the imprint of fingers that were stained a dark red. The shirt, from which all buttons had been cut except one that had been torn off, had a cut across a shoulder, corresponding to a slit in the undershirt which Burke was wearing.

Burke admits having gone to Buchanan's room the Saturday night of the murder to get his suitcase, but said he did not see Buchanan.

He went that night to Martinsburg, where he obtained a room. It was the rooming-house proprietor there who found the blood-stained shirt in the room adjoining that occupied by Burke.

Police Capt. Clarence G. Emmert and County Investigator Baker were out of the city today checking Burke's statements regarding clothing found in his possession.

Anthracite Coal Rate Reduction in Effect

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 12.—The first reduction in freight rates on anthracite coal shipped into Hagerstown since the World War will become effective tomorrow. The new rate is $2.85 a gross ton, a reduction of 60 cents a ton.

The consumption of anthracite coal here in recent years has been greatly reduced, due to the heavy freight charges, say dealers. Coal men expect increased consumption of anthracite coal as a result of the rate reduction.

Mrs. Catherine Daniels, Miss Thelma Dunlap Die at Elkton.

Probe Launched Into Explosion

Tragedy Is Second Such in 8 Days; Heroism of Girl Saves 2.

By the Associated Press.

Elkton, Md., June 12.—Two women died and five other persons were injured today as flames swept through an improvised packing room of a fireworks factory here following an explosion.

It was Elkton's second fireworks factory explosion within eight days. The first cost the life of one woman and resulted in injuries to 12 persons.

The explosion occurred on the second floor of a garage building where fireworks were being packed for the "rush" season in preparation for July 4 sales. The garage was being used as an emergency plant by the Triumph Fusee & Fireworks Co. and other buildings of the company were not damaged.

One of the victims, Miss Thelma Dunlap, 21, of North East, Md., died in flames in the building. Her body was found after firemen had extinguished the flames.

Dies in Hospital.

The other, Miss Catherine Daniels, 27, Townsend, Md., died in the hospital here several hours after the early morning explosion. Her body was covered with burns when fellow employes managed to extinguish her flaming clothing after she had run from the building.

Deputy Sheriff J. E. Racine said a thorough investigation would be launched into the explosion. Members of the sheriff's office conferred with State's Attorney E. D. E. Rollins.

Rollins has been conducting an investigation into the June 4 explosion, which cost the life of one woman, but no result has been announced.

Persons injured today were Mrs. Madeline Stewart, 26, Elk Mills, fracture of the leg and first and second degree burns on the leg and face; Mrs. Edith Harvey, 39, of North East, burns on the leg and arm; J. Howard Ash, jr., 26, Iron Mill, Md., burns on the arms; Mrs. Reba Cline, 33, North East, cuts on the knee, and Eugene Futty, 20, Elkton, cut on the foot.

Expected to Recover.

The injured are in the hospital here. Mrs. Harvey is the worst injured, but is expected to recover.

Ten women and two men were seated around a table packing the fireworks—"spitters," which explode with a crackling noise when rubbed against a rough surface—when there was a puff of smoke. Within a few seconds, it was said, flames swept through the room.

Four men and one man managed to dash down the steps before the fire reached them. Miss Daniels was the last to reach the steps and when she reached the ground floor most of her clothing had been burned away.

Girl, 18, Saves Two.

Two of htose who escaped credited Miss Bertha Reid, 18, with having saved their lives. The three employes crawled through a window to the roof of the garage. Two of them hesitated to jump, but when shoved by Miss Reid, did so as smoke and flames threatened to overcome them.

One of those who jumped was Mrs. Stewart, who broke her leg in doing so.

Small Crowd Is Expected At Bout

Champ's Manager Still is Determined Donovan Will Not Referee.

Challenger Has Chance to Gain Verdict if Duel Goes Route.

By Bill McCormick.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Mirthful Maxie Baer, suddenly turned serious, will defend his heavyweight championship here tomorrow night against an even more serious—perhaps sullen is the better word—pug by the name of James Jay Braddock. The champion is the favorite at odds of 5 to 1.

The slaughter will take place in comparative privacy unless a sharp upturn is noticed in advance sales tomorrow. At present, all indications create the impression that not more than $200,000 worth of cash customers will be on hand to see the champion batter the Irish lad, who only a year ago was lucky to get a bout in a Garden preliminary. Even Garden officials, who are promoting the generally considered lop-sided contest at the Long Island bowl, now reluctantly admit they "expect a gate of about $250,000—if the weather stays good."

Braddock has broken his training camp and no wis in New York. Baer arrived late tonight. The challenger is still calmly confident he will emerge from the ring as the winner and new champion. The confidence, superb physical condition and the will to win are the only effective weapons he possesses for the battle.

Referee Under Fire.

A regular Hornet's nest of dissension has been provoked by the squabble between Baer and the New York Boxing Commission as to who will referee the bout. Ancil Hoffman, manager of Baer, objected to any New York referee, particularly Arthur Donovan who worked the bout in which Max knocked Primo Carnera out from under the heavyweight crown. Hoffman offered a list of out-of-town referees who would be acceptable to him.

The commission flatly refused to accede to Hoffman's request for an arbiter not employed by the New York ring governing board, whereupon Ancil just as flatly refused to allow Baer to fight if Donovan were chosen. Baer seconded the motion and there matters stand at this writing.

If Baer really means what he says about not fighting if Donovan works the bout, there probably won't be any heavyweight championship match tomorrow night. The writer was informed by a source very close to the commission that Donovan would be chosen, just to show Hoffman and Baer they can not dominate the boxing governing board. The New York procedure in naming a referee is to notify three licensed arbiters at 4 o'clock the day of the bout to be on hand at the ringside. One of the three is told just before the fight starts that he is to work.

Bear e Join Opposition.

Baer's greatest danger in the forthcoming encounter seems to lie in losing on a foul or unwarranted decision. Braddock is the only "ace in the hole" left to Madison Square Garden. The Twentieth Century Club, with powerful financial and practically every available outstanding heavyweight, Baer himself, who is fighting this one bout to fill a contract he signed when the Garden tossed Carnera in his path, will join forces with the opposition after tomorrow.

The champion feels that every possible effort will be made to have judges and referees prejudiced against him officiating tomorrow. That is his main worry—not Braddock nor the so-called injured hand which is receiving so much last minute publicity. Maxie's hand is injured, but not enough to require the application of novocaine, which, it is reported, will be injected before the fight, and which may be injected just for effect.

Baer fears Braddock will enter the ring for the express purpose of staying the distance, knowing he will get every break in the judging. The injured hand is an alibi—already cut and dried. Even if Maxie stops Braddock in short order, the injured hand won't do him any harm.

Braddock Seeks Durability.

What Braddock's intentions are will not be known until he steps into the ring. It is significant to note that he has trained for a long fight—a slow fight. Possessing more natural speed than the champion, James of the Double Jay has sacrificed much of it for greater strength and durability.

If Braddock elects to seek a knockout or really to win the title without the help of the officials, he will rely mainly on a smart left jab and hook and a sizzling right-hand "sneak punch" delivered as a punch is broken. These are practically the only blows Jim has been using in his training camp boxing, on which he has concentrated on defense for a looping right to the head and a left hook to the body.

Baer will be determined to score a knockout, feeling that is the only way he can win. He will attempt to score as early as possible, but failing in that will switch to a body attack until he has the challenger softened up for the final wallop. The champion has perfected a nice left jab and he now can ram his right to the head in a straight line instead of via Brooklyn.

Baer's timing is perfect, his physical condition better than when he won the title from Carnera and he is prepared to go the distance, if necessary.

Yale Is Shutout By Virginia, 9 to 0

Rogers Allows but 7 Hits; 17 Strike-Outs Made by Pitchers.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 12.—In defeating Yale, 9 to 0, the University of Virginia administered the worst defeat of the season and the second whitewash in a fortnight to the Elis. Capt. Orlin Rogers fanned ten and held Yale to seven scattered singles. Rogers was aided by brilliant fielding by Curtis Bouldin, Asa Hall and Frank Carter. The game furnished 17 strike-outs, the highest total of several seasons here. Yale used four pitchers.

Carter opened the Virginia scoring in the second on a pass by Dillingham, an out and Joe Cowgill's single to center.

Cardwell was safe in the third on Tommy Curtin's fumble and scored on Hall's triple to deep left. Singles by Rogers and Bouldin and Hooff's sacrifice brought two more runs across the plate. Rankin entered the box with one batsman retired. Singles by Don Fitzhugh, Evan, Male and Hall and a poor throw to the plate by Klimczak netted three runs more in the fourth. Bouldin's homer into the left-field stands registered another run in the seventh.

Passes by Cummins in the ninth to Bouldin and Carter and Fitzhugh's single to deep short accounted for the final run. Cowgill, after singling in the second, fanned the remaining four times at bat.

Lots of Trouble Is in Front Of Braddock, Thinks Gallico

By Paul Gallico.

A Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Tomorrow, in the checkered career of James J. Braddock, the Irishman from New Jersey, is Der Tag. He is enjoying the incredible good fortune tomorrow evening of having his brains addled by the head punches of Max Baer, the heavyweight champion of the world. For this he will receive several tens of thousands of dollars, and should he win he will earn himself a sizeable fortune before he is overtaken by time or fate and deprived of the title.

On the other hand, the price of these monies may come high. One man has died in the ring at the hands of the champion, and another received injuries from which, it is largely suspected, he succumbed later. It is considered a debatable question as to just how lucky you are to find yourself matched with Max Baer. If you are broke, hungry, in debt, overworked and down on your luck in general, I suppose it is rather a wonderful thing. There is a lot of money coming to you—if you survive.

Nor is Baer's position particularly enviable tomorrow evening. When he enters the ring he is going to be booed and cat-called as he never Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, June 12.—James J. Braddock, in the eyes of the common people and experts alike the weakest challenger in all the history of heavyweight championship prize fighting, gets his Cinderella chance, small as it is, against brilliant, savage Max Baer in Madison Square Garden's big bowl on Long Island tomorrow night.

Rarely since James J. Corbett, Irish as Jersey Jim, won the title from John L. Sullivan in 1892 in the first heavyweight championship duel ever fought under the Marquis of Queensberry rules, has a challenger been rated close to the Braddock low as indicated by betting odds.

Baer is a 5-to-1 choice tonight, where Sullivan, all those years ago in the highest previous championship odds, was only 4 to 1. But long shots have a habit of coming in on such pugilistic occasions, for Corbett dethroned the mighty John L. and in more modern times Jess Willard beat Jack Johnson, Gene Tunney, whipped Jack Dempsey, and Primo Carnera knocked out Jack Sharkey with the beaten man each time a 3-to-1 favorite.

The champion, at his peak at 26, a magnificant figure of a brawny, perfectly trained athlete, boasted every visual and factual advantage over the dogged veteran who has been whipped 22 times in nine years spent chiefly among the light heavyweights. Jimmy is 29 years old—middle age in the prize ring—and only a set of the most fortuitous circumstances in heavyweight history dragged him, much to his own surprise, into his title chance.

Early Rounds Crucial.

Despite the mass of evidence against him, this writer believes that Braddock can win Baer's championship in the bowl tomorrow night, but to do it he must weather the most savage first and second round assault the ring has seen since Jack Dempsey was in his prime. If Braddock gets by the first five rounds, he may plod methodically along to a 15-round decision victory, and to the hysterical cheers of a 30,000 crowd that will be heart and soul with him.

Yankees Split Pair With Browns

By the Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, June 12.—The league-leading New York Yankees divided a double-header with the Browns here today, winning the opener, 11 to 4, and dropping the nightcap, 7 to 6.

Two home runs by Julius Solters spoiled a shutout for Lefty Gomez, who hurled seven-hit ball in the first game.

Boston is Held to 3 Hits as Box Ace Celebrates Parenthood.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, June 12.—Lynwood Rowe, making his first appearance as a full-fledged father, bottled up the Boston Red Sox with three hits today while his Detroit Tiger teammates joined in the celebration by banging out a 4-1 victory.

Rowe was touched for a walk and two hits in the first inning which Boston converted into its only run. Starting in the second inning, however, the schoolboy settled down and retired the next 19 batsmen.

Whitehill Is Wild as Lyons Yields Nats Only Five Hits.

By Lewis F. Archison.

A Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, June 12.—Washington's second attempt to improve its social rating in the American League at the expense of Chicago's rejuvenated White Sox produced a negative reaction this afternoon as the said Sox pounded Earl Whitehill for 13 juicy hits and a 7-2 decision.

But that wasn't the worst of it. Far more deplorable was the loss of Manager Bucky Harris and his prize shortstop, Ossie Bluege, who were thumbed off the field in the fourth inning for remarks concerning the eyesight and ability of one Clarence (Blind Brick) Owens, an alleged umpire.

Blind Brick rendered another of his inimitable decisions just in the nick of time to halt a promising Nat rally, and Bluege, usually a tight-lipped individual, poured a barrage of uncomplimentary remarks upon Owens' bald head and was unceremoniously ordered from the game. Bluege said plenty, but not enough to satisfy the embittered soul of Harris, who supplied whatever Ossie had overlooked and also drew his walking papers. It was all very discouraging.

Umpire Starts Trouble.

Washington had scored the runs that tied it up at 2-all when Owens stepped in with his upraised thumb and quashed the proceedings. Powell and Stone had walked with one down. Bolton flied out to left, but Bluege cracked a single to the same sector, scoring Powell and putting Stone on third. That put it up to Whitehill, who disposed of it with a hard drive down the right-field line for a double.

Stone scored on the hit and Bluege was rounding third when Zeke Bonura reached up for Mule Haas' peg from right field. Bluege hesitated as the ball bounded in and out of Bonura's glove, but regained his stride and set out for home. From the press box he seemed to have made it, but Owens ruled otherwise, and then came the somewhat heated discussion between Messrs. Harris, Bluege and Owen.

Of course, Owen's decision was not entirely responsible for Washington's downfall. You might look to that masterful five-hit pitching Ted Lyons supplied for the home team, the timely hitting of his mates, and what the boys like to refer to as airtight support for the real reason. Put them all together and it's a rather solid obstacle to the ambitions of any ball club.

Lyons was in trouble only once—in the fourth when the Nationals

THE opinion of this department is valued at only 3 cents, home delivered or at any news stand, so there is no great obligation on the part of my indulgent readers, or reader, as the case may be, to hock the family heirlooms and rush to the bookmakers to back my judgment, but I can't resist the temptation to raise my batting average as a prophet.

POVICH.

I'm hauling off right now and picking Max Baer to stretch Jimmy Braddock as horizontal as a steam-rolled pancake on the canvas at the Madison Square Garden's Long Island City Bowl this evening. And I'm picking Baer to do it with great haste. It can even happen in the first round.

Braddock is not to be mentioned in the same inhalation with Baer as a fighter. How the promoters ever arrived at this match will always be one of this department's pet mysteries. The records of the pair plainly indicate that a Baer-Braddock bout is just another name for a slaughter.

Jimmy is a nice lad, but he has no right in the same ring with Baer. The guys who have beaten him are a dime-a-dozen in the heavyweight class and the folks who have held him to draws were currently quoted at a nickel a gross. Twice he was held to a draw by a guy named Joe—Joe Monte. In some magical manner he outpointed a fair fighter, one Art Lasky, and by some unholy stretch of the Garden promoters' imagination was deemed to have qualified himself for a bout with Baer.

I saw Jimmy on the canvas a year ago in a preliminary to the Carnera-Baer fight. A guy named Corn Griffin, who couldn't lick an ice cream cone if it came in at even weights, had Braddock on the floor that night. I know Jimmy came back to stop Griffin in the third round, but if Griffin could put him on the floor, well, Baer figures to drape him over the subway entrance three blocks away.

Here's one fight Baer doesn't have to be in top condition for. I know that last sentence ends with a preposition against all the rules of grammar, but according to all the rules of match making, Braddock shouldn't be in there against Baer, which makes us even, I guess. Anyway, as I was saying, Baer hardly needs to be in condition for a 15-round fight. If it goes beyond four rounds, why, I'm as wet as the Shriners who paraded last night.

In all his ring experience, Braddock has never learned to duck with anything resembling cleverness. He has always been easy to hit, even by palookas, and I make so bold as to say that Baer, in or out of condition, will make Braddock stay hit for keeps. If I'm wrong, 'scuse, please, and just leave my name out of it.

Charles Town Double Pays $696 as 30-to-1 Shot Wins Third

3 Horses Pay High Odds At Track

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., June 12.—This race track broke out in another rash of long shots today, featured by a daily double that shook the customers down to the soles of their shoes. The popular twin wager returned a mutuel of $696, the second highest in the history of the track. The lucky individuals were three men, in fact three very fortunate but very retiring men. They were satisfied to pocket the small fortunes and let it go at that. Would they give their names? No, no, a thousand times no. Each had a pet reason. One was a young man, one an old man and one a middle-aged man. In the stands were some 3,500 sick men and women—sick because another big bank-roll slipped away in front of their eyes.

Of course, that $696 didn't compare with the $1,873.80 mutuel paid young Joe Reid last week, but it will do until another big one comes along, which probably will be tomorrow.

The horses that figured in the "doubles today" were Noajoyce at a $7.20 mutuel and Gold Streak at a $61.20 payoff. However, it was in the second race that the chief upset of the afternoon occurred. Eddie Ambrose, former contract rider for E. B. McLean, rode his first winner of the meeting. It was a daughter of Amberjack named Twenty Three. She did some skiddooing too at a $90.40 mutuel. The ancient Ambrose come through with a fine ride. He hustled his mount up on the outside going to the first turn, went to the front and then held his charge together to stave off the closing rush of Most Always.

Once Cost $25.

Just to keep in step, Follow On, a horse that once sold for $25 at Havre de Grace, came through with a stretch drive that defeated the odds-on Stool Pigeon to pay off at $64.40 for $2. J. Feltner put up a nice saddle exhibition on the 7-year-old gelding.

The prices returned to normal in the fifth race, the day's feature. This time Star Queen stole the show under good handling by Eddie Smith, who had lost a couple of heart-breakers early on the program. He made no mistakes and had daylight to spare over Nay Nay and Sunny Susan. Star Queen, owned by Mrs. T. J. Donohue, trained by T. J. Donohue and ridden by Smith, all of Washington, paid $5.60 in the role of favorite.

The Bonds scored their daily victory in the sixth with Pencader, the choice at a $4.20 mutuel. Sammy Palumbo brought the gelding from last to the top by going through a narrow opening approaching the far turn.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIATUS, $3.60, $2.80, $2.50; PRETTY PATRICIA, $3.70, $3.30; WISE WILL, $5.30.

HIATUS went to the front in first sixteenth, drew away into a good lead and, hard ridden at the end, just lasted. PRETTY PATRICIA, unable to keep pace early, dropped back leaving the back stretch, came to the outside for racing room at the stretch turn and, closing with a brilliant burst of speed, just missed getting up in time. WISE WILL, prominently placed from the start, held on with good energy to the drive. SPEAR, an closest contendance of the early pace, was hard ridden. UNCLE JULY moved up on the inside at the stretch. SANTA ANITA made up some ground.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 2:50. Off at 2:51. Winner, H. N. Kane's b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DE VALERA, $6.20, $3.70, $3.00; CABOUSE, $4.80, $4.10; UPPERCUT, $6.70.

DE VALERA gained a prominent position in the run through the back stretch, moved up on the outside of the leaders, took command at the stretch and, hard ridden, drew out and kept in front remainder of the way. CABOUSE away slowly and in close quarters repeatedly during the first quarter-mile, made his way up gradually thereafter and closed willingly in the drive. UPPERCUT, away fast, was unable to keep pace, was steadied along in pursuit of the leaders, moved up fast nearing the stretch and, coming to the outside of the leaders for the closing test, held on with good energy. QUEEN VIC showed good speed though much used in racing with FRISCO. TIGHT WAD, slow to begin, moved up steadily though hemmed in on the stretch.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won handily; place, same. Went to post at 3:19. Off at 3:21. Winner, W. H. Gallagher's blk. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MIXED PARTY, $18.10, $7.90, $5.10; MORDEN, $28.80, $12.50; WINGED FLIGHT, $6.00.

MIXED PARTY went to the front at once, fought it out for the lead with CHIMNEY TOP, disposed of the latter, opened up a good lead and, hard ridden through the stretch, held away to the end. MORDEN, under urging all the way moved up on the outside in the last eighth-mile and finished with good courage. WINGED FLIGHT made his way up steadily and closed with good energy. CHIMNEY TOP, hustled along from the start, was much used in racing with the winner and weakened in the last three-sixteenths. SANTERNO, slow to begin, closed a big gap.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. The Salem Handicap. Purse, $2,000 added. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:51. Off at 3:53. Winner, A. G. Vanderbilt's ch. f. (4), by Trojan—Blazing Embers. Trained by J. H. Stotler. Value to winner, $1,910; second, $300; third, $250; fourth $100. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:46 4-5, 1:12 1-5.

†A. G. Vanderbilt entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DREEL, $6.50, $2.70, out; GENTLE KNIGHT, $2.90, out; SPIXI, out.

DREEL, avoiding the fast early pace, was brought up on the outside in the stretch, closed willingly and, wearing down SPIXI, had enough in reserve to hold GENTLE KNIGHT safe. The latter, well placed and in close quarters through the opening three furlongs, came stoutly in the stretch run, getting up right at the end to stave off SPIXI. SPIXI displayed good speed in getting to the lead in willingness but was unable to cope with the closing bid of the first two. BACHELOR DINNER had good speed, but faltered in the drive. STAR PORTER, well placed for the first half-mile, faltered.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:21. Off at 4:23. Winner, Mrs. W. C. Weant's b. f. (4), by Sickle—Be Fair. Trained by W. C. Weant. Value to winner, $850; second, $300; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:39 1-5, 1:45 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAIRSICKLE, $27.70, $9.00, $4.50; LEGENDER, $6.90, $3.30; CHARTRES, $4.70.

FAIRSICKLE assumed a slight lead straightening out on the back stretch, drew clear before reaching the half-mile ground and, steadied along in front, held away to the end. LEGENDER, reserved in close pursuit of the pace, responded gamely when called upon and finished stoutly though unable to reach the winner. CHARTRES in closest pursuit of the pace from the start, was hard ridden and was unable to reach the leader, weakening slightly in the drive. SLIPPER KING, on the outside and within striking distance of the pace in the run down the back stretch, was unable to improve his position. NOCTURNLABE was never prominent. BRUSTIGERT faltered badly.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:54. Off at 4:55. Winner, Mrs. N. Ray's ch. m. (4), by Cudzel—Bally Gal. Trained by N. Ray. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:48, 1:13 1-5, 1:39 4-5, 1:49 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLAXEN, $24.00, $7.20, $3.90; MOUNTAIN ELK, $4.10, $3.00; PRIMUTE, $3.40.

FLAXEN, far back for the first five furlongs, began moving up after rounding the far turn, moved up with a rush nearing the stretch, wore down MOUNTAIN ELK inside the last sixteenth, and continued gamely to the end. MOUNTAIN ELK displayed speed from the start, disposed of FLOWERY LADY and despite bidding on gamely was unable to withstand the winner's bid. PRIMUTE, reserved early, closed willingly when called upon, but was unable to reach the first two. ADAMITE faltered after going the first half-mile. FLOWERY LADY weakened in the last five-sixteenths after showing good speed. REVONAH tired.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:27. Off at once. Winner, W. H. Gallagher's b. c. (3), by Zev—Daunt. Trained by J. L. Donovan. Value to winner $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 1-5, 1:14 3-5, 1:40 3-5, 1:54 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PROSECUTOR, $7.10, $3.30, $2.50; ST. OMER, $3.80, $2.60; GENERAL LEJEUNE, $2.40.

PROSECUTOR took command at once, was raced along under slight restraint, withstood determined opposition from ST. OMER, surrendered the command in stretch, but coming again under generous urging was up in the concluding strides. ST. OMER showed good speed, followed the winner closely, assumed a slight lead in the stretch, despite which, was unable to maintain his advantage. GENERAL LEJEUNE saved ground throughout, though unable to reach the leading pair. PLUMAGE was unable to enter into serious contention.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:58. Off at 6:02½. Winner, A. G. Vanderbilt's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAYWARD SON, $6.00, $4.10, $3.00; BETTY GIBSON, $13.30, $5.80; BEFITTING, $3.20.

WAYWARD SON, slow to begin and outrun for the first half-mile, moved up gradually thereafter and, coming through on the inside at the stretch turn took command with a rush and was going away all the last furlong. BETTY GIBSON, unruly at the post, was slow to settle into her stride, came to the outside and closed with a rush through the stretch run. BEFITTING had good speed, disposed of JOE MAC, and was unable to keep pace in the drive. EDDIE WRACK showed improved form, racing well up all the way. CAPPOQUIN closed with a belated rush. JOE MAC forced the pace for the first six furlongs, faltering badly in the last three-sixteenths.

Eddie J. Takes Michigan Purse

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, June 12.—Eddie J., Detroit-owned colt, won a furious battle in the stretch with Fast Stride today to finish a length ahead in the $1,500 University of Michigan Handicap at the Detroit track. St. Moritz, early pace-setter in the mile race for 3-year-olds, was third by a nose.

Eddie J. was well up from the start, responded fast after the half, and took command nearing the final quarter. He paid $30.40 for $2 in the mutuels. The time was 1:41 4-5.

Double B., the favorite, ran into a jam at the first turn and went to the outside where his jockey pulled him up fearing he had been injured.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIATUS, $3.60, $2.80, $2.50; PRETTY PATRICIA, $3.70, $3.30; WISE WILL, $5.30.

HIATUS went to the front in first sixteenth, drew away into a good lead and, hard ridden at the end, just lasted. PRETTY PATRICIA, unable to keep pace early, dropped back leaving the back stretch, came to the outside for racing room at the stretch turn and, closing with a brilliant burst of speed, just missed getting up in time. WISE WILL, prominently placed from the start, held on with good energy to the drive. SPEAR, an closest contendance of the early pace, was hard ridden. UNCLE JULY moved up on the inside at the stretch. SANTA ANITA made up some ground.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:50. Off at 2:51. Winner, H. N. Kane's b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DE VALERA, $6.20, $3.70, $3.00; CABOUSE, $4.80, $4.10; UPPERCUT, $6.70.

DE VALERA gained a prominent position in the run through the back stretch, moved up on the outside of the leaders, took command at the stretch and, hard ridden, drew out and kept in front remainder of the way. CABOUSE away slowly and in close quarters repeatedly during the first quarter-mile, made his way up gradually thereafter and closed willingly in the drive. UPPERCUT, away fast, was unable to keep pace, was steadied along in pursuit of the leaders, moved up fast nearing the stretch and, coming to the outside of the leaders for the closing test, held on with good energy. QUEEN VIC showed good speed though much used in racing with FRISCO. TIGHT WAD, slow to begin, moved up steadily though hemmed in on the stretch.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won handily; place, same. Went to post at 3:19. Off at 3:21. Winner, W. H. Gallagher's blk. f. O'Tell, Caldwell, Sutton Pace Middle Atlantic Golf Qualifiers

Totals of 73 Top Opening Day's Play

Riegel, 1934 Champion, Is in Danger After Carding an 80.

By the Associated Press.

VIRGINIA BEACH, VA., June 12.—A Washington X-ray expert, a former champion and a Richmond schoolboy ended in a three-way tie today in the first day's medal play in the Middle Atlantic Golf Tournament and posted 73's for the rest of the qualifying field to shoot at tomorrow.

Fallen by the wayside, the victim of erratic shots at the start and finish of a grotesque qualifying round, Bobby Riegel, defending champion, had hardly a remote chance to place among the 16 in the championship flight when match play starts Friday.

Sutton Home in 34.

Young Sutton, whose medal possibilities had been overlooked in the fast field, gave the grandest competitive exhibition in his brief golfing career when he romped home in 34, two under par, after an outgoing 39 marked by two three-putt greens and a couple of wasted strokes when he found a trap on the short third.

The 73's of Caldwell and Dr. O'Tell were less sensational, but put together in highly workmanship manner, 37-36—73, each of them slipping two over par on the outgoing nine but staying within regulation figures coming back.

O'Tell, with a chance to lead the field, topped his second shot at the par 4 eighteenth, needed 3 to get on, and two-putted for a 5.

Billy Howell, twice champion, and trying for a comeback after several years of discouragement, registered 74, to follow close on the heels of the pace-setters, while Morton McCarthy and Dick Payne, both of Norfolk, had 75.

Tied at 76 were L. Yoder, of Washington; Joe Blake, of Norfolk; Douglas Brashear, of Richmond, and Walter MacCallum, of Washington. H. S. Covington, of Norfolk; Ed Semmler, of Baltimore, and Tommy Howell, of Richmond, grouped at 77.

It looked to most observers as if it would require 77, and possibly a 76, to land within the qualifying 16 for the championship division. Bobby Riegel's chances seemed practically nil.

Burke, Vellines Fail.

Other pre-tournament favorites who failed to make the qualifying grade included Aulick Burke, runner-up in the State amateur last year, who carded an 83, and Wilson Vellines, of Norfolk, who needed 89 strokes, including 10 on the first hole.

With 13 scores of 77 or better already carded, tomorrow's qualifiers have work cut out for them, although a half-dozen or more of them were conceded a chance of landing in the first division.

Chesapeake Whips Alexandria Eagles

West Point, Va., June 12.—John Coffee's single to right field scoring Tyler Phenix from second won a 3-to-2 game for Chesapeake here today. Two were out when Phenix went to bat. He singled, stole second and came home on Coffee's smack to beat the Alexandria Eagles.

It was one of the most exciting games played here this year, the Birdmen getting ten hits to Chesapeake's eight. Shute Taylor was on the mound for the Eagles, while Greene and Proctor divided mound duties for Bill Gwathmey's nine. Chesapeake scored in the first on an error by the third baseman. The visitors tallied in the third when Shute Taylor tripled and scored on Butler's single to center.

The Eagles went ahead in the sixth when McMermin singled, went to second on a passed ball and came home on Joe Hamilton's hit to right. In the seventh Chesapeake tied things up 2-all when Taylor walked Phenix to force in Sutton. Batting honors for Chesapeake went to Tom Wolfe, who got a triple and double out of four trips to the plate.

Valley Loop Signs Winchester Stars

Virginia Team Riddled as Players Turn Professional.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., June 12.—Clubs in the Valley League, casting about for likely material, may break up a winning combination for the Winchester Park Association if the present trend continues. Already two of the best players have yielded to overtures and it is reported another contract is ready for a third player.

Burch, who plays short for the locals, has accepted the same role on the Rockingham squad and his teammate, Lefty Duvall, promising local pitcher, also has decided to make his professional debut with the Harrisonburgers.

The Park, with but one defeat in the last 11 starts, is slated to meet the Woodmen, of Hagerstown, Saturday, and the Fredericksburg White Oaks, Saturday. Games with Purcellville and Meridian A. C., of Washington, were rained out last week-end.

Heurich Loses Seven Inning Game, 3-2

Special Dispatch to The Post.

WAYNESBORO, Va., June 12. Waynesboro won a 3-to-2 decision over Heurich Brewers, of Washington, in an abbreviated Valley league game called at close of seventh inning today and scored on Russels' long sacrifice fly.

The local team scored two in the sixth as a result of an error, a triple by Steele and a single by Crawford. Waynesboro scored again in the seventh inning when Connell and Moyers each contributed to the epidemic of three-baggers. The Brewers also counted in that inning as a result of consecutive hits by Stahl, Bennie and Freas.

Lefty Brown was very effective until the sixth, striking out eight Waynesboro batters. Hulvey and Joseph turned in the fielding thrills of the game.

Woodstock Beats Edinburg Nine, 9-8

Team Avenges FormerLoss in Slugfest.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Woodstock, Va., June 12.—Woodstock downed the Edinburg nine at Edinburg today in a hotly contested game, 9 to 8. Ford Irwin, Edinburg's iron man, was battered from the hill after being heavily clubbed for 11 hits in the five innings that he hurled. Dinges, portside flipper of the Edinburg team, who relieved Irwin, held the Shamrocks in check for the remainder of the game by allowing but one hit and fanning five batters.

Woodstock avenged a 14-to-2 trouncing received at the hands of the Edinburg nine here last Sunday. The last inning was played in a downpour of rain.

Jake Sheetz, pitching for the local team, was heavily hit throughout the game. Edinburg threatened in a last-inning rally, but Sheetz fanned the last Edinburg man with two on bases, to win the game.

Mount Jackson will be host to the Strasburg team in the next league encounter at the Mount Jackson lot tomorrow.

Mrs. Moody Wins 8th In Row

Former Tennis Champion Proves That Old Power Is Back.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 12.—Helen Wills Moody chalked up the eighth successive victory of her comeback campaign today and served due notice on the world of women's tennis that all the old potent magic gradually is returning to her racquet.

Displaying the finest tennis she has shown since she arrived in England, the former world's champion crushed Nancy Lyle, ranked No. 6 in Great Britain, 6—1, 6—2, to enter the semifinal round of the Kent championships.

On Friday she will meet either Katherine Stammers, the British No. 3, or Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, ranked No. 8, for the right to enter the finals. Dorothy Round, England's top-ranking star, is favored to reach the finals in the other half.

One Match Close.

In the process of running her streak to eight victories in a row, Mrs. Moody has lost only one set and 33 games, while winning 16 sets and 101 games. Her only really close match was with Mary Hardwick, rising young British player, who is ranked eleventh in her own country, in the quarter-finals of the St. George's Hill tournament last week. The Californian was within 2 points of defeat in the second, but pulled out the match, 4—6, 7—5, 6—3, and then went on to defeat Elsie Goldsack Pittman in the finals.

Mrs. Moody will wind up her preparations for Wimbledon in the Kent tournament. Neither she nor any of the other leading women players will compete in the Queen's Club tournament next week, preferring to rest before the big test at Wimbledon.

Manners Man in Front In Roessler Handicap

Latonia, June 12 (AP).—Under a hustling ride by Glenn Fowler, the B. & M. Stable's Manners Man won the Roessler Handicap, feature race, here this afternoon from a field of six horses. Black Miss was second and Marynell finished third. The winner was the favorite in the mutuel wagering and won by a length and a half.

Fowler had the son of Lovely Manners and Bit o' Regret away winging and kept him out in front all the way. Lillian Uhl, after setting the pace, curled up when the real running began and finished a badly beaten fifth.

Mrs. Vare Gets Title.

Orange Team Bows To Charlottesville

Nine Scores 5-4 Victory in Short Game.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 12.—Defeating Orange, 5 to 4, this afternoon in a seven-inning contest abbreviated by an electrical storm, the Charlottesville team, member of the Valley League, registered its second successive victory.

The contest, a light-hitting affair, was witnessed by a small crowd, despite a half-holiday.

Mundy's circuit smash at the opening of the sixth inning gave Orange a 1-run margin, but the locals came back in their half to register 3 runs on a double and single, coupled with two errors by Utz.

The fielding feature was Tanner's catch of Haney's long drive near the right field fence. Reitz and Tanner led with the stick.

Vanderbilt Gelding Comes From Behind to Win Handicap Race.

By the Associated Press.

SALEM, N. H., June 12.—Master Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, the leading money-winner at Rockingham Park, increased his earnings this afternoon when his 4-year-old chestnut gelding Dreel, with Leo ("Skinny") Fallon up, won the Salem Handicap.

Dreel was one of a field of five sprinting starters in the 6-furlong event, and after trailing for half a mile behind the rest of the field, cut loose with a tremendous burst of speed, loping down on the outside of the home stretch to beat Gentle Knight by a head and Spixi by another nose.

Bachelor Dinner, stablemate of the winner, was fourth, and Star Porter, Maryland sensation, which has failed to win a race here in four starts, finished last.

Brunswick Sets Pace, Beats Jefferson

Special Dispatch to The Post.

FREDERICK, Md., June 11.—Brunswick continued to set the pace in the Tri-county League, embracing Frederick, Carroll and Montgomery counties, by defeating Jefferson in easy fashion, 11 to 0; Middletown, runner-up, set back Wakefield, 7 to 0; Damascus downed Mount Airy, 11 to 6; Frederick took the measure of New Market, 5 to 1, and Walkersville had easy sailing with Point of Rocks, 17 to 1. The Church Hill-Cedar Grove fray was postponed on account of rain.

Although Garrett, of New Market, struck out 19 and allowed but 7 hits he lost to Frederick, due to costly errors, walks and several timely blows. The locals won in the third inning when a double by Tobery and singles by James and Chesley accounted for two runs.

Lefty Warrenfeltz, Walkersville, held Point of Rocks to one hit and fanned 15. Ohler, Middletown, limited Wakefield to six scattered hits, three of which were made by Bauest, while Huffer, Brunswick, allowed Jefferson but seven hits and made three singles out of five times at the bat. Mount Airy's crippled team pulled a surprise by defeating Damascus, a pennant contender.

With Brunswick leading the pennant race, Middletown retained second place, Church Hill and Damascus are tied for third place, Frederick, Mount Airy and Walkersville, even for fourth position; Point of Rocks and Jefferson, fifth; New Market, sixth, and Wakefield and Cedar Grove in the cellar.

First Six Seeded Players Win in City of Washington Net Play

Willis Defeats Staubly After Battle

Second Round Matches Are to Be Played This Afternoon.

By George Considine.

THE City of Washington tennis tournament, now in progress at the Rock Creek courts, whittled itself down to the quarter-finals yesterday with the first six seeded players still livery much in the running.

Youthful Allen Blade removed Pat Deck from the inner circle, polishnig off the eighth seeded netman, 6—4 6—3. In today's test he will face Bud Markey who swept through the other dark horse, husky Stan McCaskey, with consummate ease.

In the day's outstanding exhibition, Ricky Willis, University of North Carolina tennis captain, defeated Al Staubly, former G. W. star. Time and again the clean-hitting youngsters brought the ample gallery to its feet with their delicate tactics on the one hand and their out-and-out socking on the other. The score, 6—4 6—3, gives no indication of the closeness of the play.

Lanky Frank Shore definitely established himself as a serious threat by romping impressively through the veteran Pubic Parker Muscoe Garnett, while Latona, Mitchell and McElvenny all worked under wraps.

Play At 5 Today.

With the chaff finally separated from the wheat, the first real tennis of the tournament is in prospect today as Dooley Mitchell, defending champion, faces Ricky Willis, Ralph McElvenny opposes Frank Shore, Tony Latona plays Hugh Lynch, and Bud Markey squares off with Allen Blade for berths in the semi-finals. All these matches will get under way at 5 o'clock.

Included in the doubles, most of which were rained out, is Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, who incidentally need doff his hat to none of the local stars. His partner, Bob Breese, and he are slated to play their first-round match against Shore and Willis at Columbia Country Club this morning at 10 o'clock.

Yesterday's Results.

Third-round singles—Mitchell defeated Lesum, 6—3, 6—2; Willis defeated Staubly, 6—3, 6—4; Shore defeated Garnett, 6—2, 6—3; Latona defeated Bent, 6—1, 6—1; Markey defeated McCaskey, 6—1, 6—3.

First-round doubles—Yeomans and Adair defeated Tomelden and Glassmire, 1—6, 6—1, 6—4; Neale and Anderson defeated Shoemaker and Burwell, 6—4, 6—4; Gould and Johnson defeated Sherfy and Sherfy, 6—3, 7—5.

Juniors.

Second-round singles—March defeated Turner, 6—3, 2—6, 6—0; Spanton defeated Adair, 6—3, 2—6, 6—4; A. Ritzenberg defeated Minis, 6—2, 6—4; Litchfeldter defeated Speare, 7—5, 6—3.

Third round—Channing defeated Litchfeldter, 6—3, 6—3; N. Ritzenberg defeated Owens, 6—2, 6—3.

Today's Schedule.

Quarter-final singles—5 o'clock, Mitchell vs. Willis; McElvenny vs. Shore; Latona vs. Lynch; Markey vs. Blade.

First-round doubles—10 a. m. (Columbia Country Club)—Fish and Breese vs. Shore and Willis; 3 o'clock, Simon and Kay vs. Legum and Nate Ritzenberg; 5 o'clock, Baker and Goldbaum vs. Rice and Bennett; 5 o'clock, Pollock and Rulloda vs. Bourne and Woodward; Buchanan and Garber vs. Niemeyer and Roach; Bent and Latimer vs. Scriggs; 6 o'clock, Deck and Ritzenberg vs. Kennedy and Hardy; Phillips and Blake vs. Wyeth and Ellis; 6 o'clock, McElvenny and Latona vs. winner of Baker-Goldbaum match; Mitchell and Markey vs. Neale and Anderson; winner of Fish-Breese and Shore-Willis match vs. winner of Bent-Latimer and Scriggs-Stockmal match; McCaskey and Baker vs. Alling and Kennedy.

Navy Crews Arrive For Hudson Regatta

All 15 Entrants Now at Poughkeepsie.

By the Associated Press.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 13.—The intercollegiate navy on the Hudson River was completed today when the United States Naval Academy's three crews arrived, bring the total here for the annual regatta to 15.

Charles "Buck" Walsh and his 50 oarsmen reached their boathouse just as the remainder of the flotilla were staging their final workouts of the day. Walsh said he expected to start hard work immediately with the possibility the Middies would be sent against the clock Friday in time trials.

"The boys are all in good shape," the Navy coach said, "but they're a little out of practice. We're going to lose no time in straightening that mtter out."

Joe Humphries Counted Out by Doctor's Orders

New York, June 12 (AP).—After more than 43 years of announcing the champions and near champions, Joe Humphries will be missing from the ring tomorrow night when Champion Max Baer and Challenger Jimmy Baaddock square off in Madison Square Garden Bowl for their 15-round title fight.

The veteran announcer was forced to turn over his job to another today when his doctor ordered him to remain at his home due to illness. Either Harry Balough or Al Frazin will take Humphries' place.

Legion Juniors Reporting for Practice

Special Dispatch to The Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., June 12.—Coach Langford, of the American Legion Juniors, is very much enthused with the showing of his men today at practice session on Baggett's Field. Thirty-five men reported for practice and this number will be cut Monday. The team will hold practice sessions every day at 2 p. m. from now on.

Coach Langford reports that the following candidates hold promise of making this year's record more successful than that of any local legion showing to date: Scott, Wright, Boswell, Robinson, Lyons, Lusby, Moore and Anderson, boys who performed with Washington and Lee.

The Volley Ball League at the Old Dominion Boat Club is in full swing. Mac McCallum's team is leading the league. Elmer Davis is making arrangements to have a team composed of the best players in the league oppose the Washington Y. M. C. A. volley ball team in a series of games. Plans are also being formulated to arrange matches with teams in this vicinity.

Twenty members have entered the Old Dominion Boat Club Ping Pong Tournament. It is hoped that this number will be increased to 50 for match play.

Titcomb, lanky pitcher with the St. Mary's Celtics, has drawn the mound assignment for the Eagles-Celtics game on Sunday. "Shute" Taylor has drawn the pitching assignment for the Eagles; Taylor was a former Celtics star.

Commander McFarland today won over Tom Sebrell in the match play for the Belle HMaven Bowl at Bell Haven Golf Club. McFarland made an even 80 in winning from Sebrell. In the remaining semifinals match Dr. Moore faces Tom Rollins, and the winner of that match will meet McFarland on Saturday or Sunday for the club championship.

This year's matches have aroused more interest in local tournament than has any in previous years. Many upsets have attended the going since the qualifying rounds.

Grimm Denies Offering Klein

Ban Put on Poker Games By Chicago Manager.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, June 12.—Charley Grimm, Chicago Cubs manager, tonight denied published reports he had offered Chuck Klein back to the Phillies "as a gift" and had been turned down.

He said, however, that he had placed a complete ban on poker games among members of his club, in a general "bawling out" delivered before the start of the double-header with the Phils today.

College-Bred Golfers Hold Major Titles

British Open Crown Only Honor Out of Grasp at Moment.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 12.—For the time being, at least, American college-bred players have a stranglehold on the world's golfing honors.

The only major title not in their grasp for the moment, and it is in imminent danger of going the way of the others, is the British Open crown. Otherwise the British and American Amateur title and the American Open belong to products of college courses.

You have to go back almost to the turn of the century to find the first collegian to command national prominence. He was H. Chandler Egan, now an Oregon apple rancher.

While an undergraduate at Harvard Egan annexed the National Amateur championship in 1904 and retained it his first year as a graduate. He's belonged to the top-flight fraternity ever since. Last year, despite the fact he had passed his fiftieth birthday anniversary, he was a member of the United States Walker Cup team.

Robert A. (Bob) Gardner, of Yale, equally famous for his pole-vaulting exploits, won the title four years later and again in 1915. Jess Sweester, another Son of Eli, won the Amateur in 1922 and the British Open in 1926.

Little Is Collegian.

After that, until 1933, there was a period dominated largely by the great Robert Trye Jones, jr., George Terry Dunlap, jr., of New York, winner of the Intercollegiate title in 1930 and 1931, came through to capture the Amateur crown in '33 and since then all major championships in this country and abroad have been either threatened or dominated by collegians or former collegians.

Dunlap started the ball rolling again. William Lawson Little, jr., of Stanford University gave it a prodigious push last year when he captured both American and British Amateur crowns and this year when he retained the British title.

Out of the welter of Oakmont's freak greens and fairways fraught with treacherous traps there came last week Samuel McLaughlin Parks, jr., four years out of Pittsburgh University, to capture the National Open championship.

That accounts for the world's four major titles. The British Open this year will find a stout challenger in the burly Little, whose foremost conquests have been made at match play although his stock as a stroke competitor was considerably boosted by his showing at Augusta in the Masters Tournament last year.

Indians Downed By Athletics, 7-5

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, June 12.—Despite their three home runs, the Cleveland Indians lost a free-hitting game to Philadelphia today, 7 to 5. It was the Tribe's fourth straight defeat.

The Athletics came from behind to tie the score and drove Mel Harder from the box in the seventh, taking the lead. George Caster, who replaced Al Benton in the second inning, received credit for the victory, although he himself was chased from the mound in the seventh.

League-Leading Kann Sons Team Loses First Baseman

THE hopes of the league-leading Kann's Sons team in The Post Association race of the Department Store loop suffered another jolt by the loss of Harry Bassin, its flashy first baseman, who has left to play in the Carolina League during the summer. Bassin was one of the team's leading hitters, and has been a prominent factor in the Kannsmen supremacy in the store league. Bassin joins his teammate, Jack Wallach, a pitcher, who left a week ago.

Cardinals Down Braves, 8-6, 5-4

By the Associated Press.

Boston, June 12.—The world champion St. Louis Cardinals climbed a step nearer the top of the National League ladder today, taking both ends of a double-header from the Boston Braves, 8-6 and 5-4.

"Dizzy" Dean was rushed to the rescue of Ed Heusser in the eighth inning of the first game, after the Braves had made three hits and scored two runs to tie the score at 6-6. Dean pitched to only six men, whom he retired in order, and received credit for his eighth win of the season.

Manager Frankie Frisch, fiery Cards' leader and second baseman, was banished in the sixth inning of the first game after protesting too vigorously a decision by Umpire Sears at first base.

Pirates Nip Dodgers With 5-Run Attack

Brooklyn, June 12 (AP).—After trailing most of the way, the Pirates launched a five-run attack upon Emil (Dutch) Leonard in the seventh inning to gain a 7-to-3 victory over the Dodgers today.

Leonard, who had pitched five-hit ball while Brooklyn was building up a 3-2 lead in the first six frames, was nicked for three straight hits and Johnny Babick granted three more. Ralph Birkofer did some nice relief pitching for the Bucs to gain the victory.

produced their only runs—but with Owens star-gazing behind the plate he extracted himself with little difficulty. Over the rest of the route it was comparatively simple. The Washington batters might just as well have left their bats behind.

The Sox scored one in the first when Whitehill developed a streak of wildness and passed four of the seven batters that faced him. An infield out brought Radcliff over with the run. Singles by Luke Sewell and Hopkins, with an infield out and sacrifice sandwiched in between, produced the second in the following inning.

Sewell's second hit of the afternoon, a triple to the centerfield bleachers and Radcliff's single, accounted for Chicago's third run, and the Sox sewed up the decision with three more in the fifth. Tony Piet's home run into the left-field stands featured the inning.

Phillies and Cubs Split Doubleheader

34 Runs Made in Two Wild Games.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 12.—The Cubs and Phillies divided a doubleheader today. Chicago won the first game, 15 to 0, behind the five-hit pitching of Larry French, while O'Dea, Klein and Cavarretta hit home runs in the 16-hit attack off three Phil hurlers.

In the second fray, the Phillies outlasted the Bruins to hang up a 11 to 8 conquest, despite the fact that Klein hit two more home runs to raise his total to three for the day.

Power Stocks Sustain Losses Under Pressure

Selling of Utilities Is Renewed After Earlier Rally.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 12.—Traders and investors appeared in an uncertain frame of mind today while the stock market see-sawed and finally tilted downward.

Yesterday's passage by the Senate of the Wheeler-Rayburn bill for the abolition of certain types of utility holding companies came after the close, but was promptly greeted in early trading today with a sharp dip in power issues.

A morning rally, however, offset the major portion of the losses in this division and other sections of the list got ahead substantially before renewed selling in utilities took the heart out of the buying sentiment toward the finish. Rails held better than the balance of the list but were mostly little better than even the finish.

Turnover accelerated as traders plumped first to one side of the market and then the other. Volume in the stock exchange was 1,293,120 shares. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was 0.3 of a point off at 43.3. The 15 utilities used in the calculation, however, lost a full point at 30.3.

Wheat Pitches To a New Low

Reports of Harvesting in Kansas Start Selling Wave.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 12.—All deliveries of wheat tumbled downward in price today to a new record low level for the season.

Reports that wheat harvesting had started at some points in Kansas led to suddenly augmented selling, with values suffering a maximum drop of 3 cents a bushel, although the bulk of the Kansas crop of new wheat is not expected to be moving to market for several weeks yet. In the collapse of quotations, nearby deliveries of wheat and corn sold today at identical figures, an event seldom witnessed.

Wheat closed weak, 2½@2⅞ under yesterday's finish. July, 80¾@80⅞; corn, 1 cent to 1⅜ off; July, 80¾@80⅞; oats, ¾@⅞ down, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents decline.

Ideal crop weather throughout the entire domestic grain belt, together with uncertainty over disposal of the Canadian wheat surplus, did much to precipitate the action of wheat prices here. Bottom prices for the day were reached just before trading ended, with the market showing 21 cents decline since the middle of April.

Corn and oats gave way with wheat, notwithstanding that the corn market showed stubbornness owing to persistent reports of delayed planting. Provisions responded to weakness both of hog values and of grains

Department Stores Show Gain in Sales

The Federal Reserve Board's index of department store sales was 76 in May, on the basis of the 1923-25 average as 100, compared with 73 in April and 82 in March. Dollar volume in May was 1 per cent less than a year ago and 2 per cent more for the first five months of this year.

Dollar Volume Lifts Earnings Of Retailers

By the Associated Press.

Cambridge, Mass., June 12.—The bureau of business research of the Harvard Business School today reported earnings of both department stores and specialty stores were larger in 1934 than in 1933, primarily because of improvement in dollar sales volume. The report also showed that in 1934 the large stores exhibited practically no advantage over small stores in earnings rates.

The study was based on figures submitteid by 544 firms with an aggregate sales volume of $1,311,980,000, about 35 per cent, the report said, of the total department and specialty store volume in this country.

It was the fifteenth of a series of annual studies and was made with the cooperation of the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

"The improvement in earnings," the report stated, "was due almost entirely to the increase in sales volume, averaging roughly 11 per cent, which characterized the 1934 operations of the department and specialty stores reporting to the bureau.

"Percentage rates of gross margin were slightly lower in 1934 than in 1933; but with the increased dollar sales volume the aggregate dollar margins were higher. Percentage rates of expense likewise were lower in 1934; but dollar expenses exhibited an appreciable increase, both in the aggregate and in cents per transaction."

Southern Coal Mines and Railroads Serving Them to Benefit from Coal Code's End Unless Guffey Bill's Passage Revives Restrictions.

By a Special Correspondent

New York, June 12.—A reversal of the tendency of the Northern coal fields to recapture some of the markets which they had lost to Southern mines during the postwar decade is one of the effects of the abandonment of the bituminous coal code. Unless the Guffey bill is passed, a considerable shift of tonnage back to the Southern mines is indicated, with consequent benefits to the railroads serving these mines exclusively—the Chesapeake & Ohio, Norfolk & Western and Virginian.

The Southern mines have enjoyed two major advantages over their Northern competitors in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, who are located nearer the major consuming markets. First, their output averages higher in quality, especially for a number of industrial uses. Secondly, and more important, their unit labor costs are smaller because of lower wage scales, as well as the fact that the character of the mines makes necessary about 20 per cent less labor, on the average, to produce a ton of coal.

Northern Mines Gained Under the Code.

Under the bituminous coal code, the labor cost advantage was eliminated in large part. Whereas early in 1933, before the coal code was put into effect, wage scales in the Southern fields were as much as 46 per cent below those in the North, the code established a fixed differential averaging 8 per cent. Hence, the chief advantage remaining with the Southern mines, apart from better qualities of certain of their coals, has been the smaller number of man-hours required to produce a given quantity of coal. Since this was offset by the fact that the Northern mines were located nearer the consuming markets, the result has been a vigorous competitive battle for markets which the Southern mines had gained since the war.

The national market for bituminous coal has been steadily contracted by the competition of other fuels, notably oil and natural gas, and by improved methods of burning coal which have permitted important economies in its use. The record year for coal consumption was 1918, when 579,000,000 tons were consumed. The 1929 consumption was 534,000,000 tons. By 1932, a drop of 42 per cent had occurred, the output in that year being 309,000,000 tons. Recovery has been quite moderate in consumption of coal, so that for 1934 the national production of soft coal was only 358,000,000 tons, a rise of only 15 per cent from the depression low point of 1932.

While the national production has thus dwindled, the Southern coal fields, especially those located in West Virginia, have gained relatively at the expense of other States. Thus, in the five years, 1921-1925, Pennsylvania produced 38 per cent more coal than West Virginia. By 1931, West Virginia surpassed Pennsylvania, and in 1933 it produced 14 per cent more coal than the latter State.

When the coal code went into effect, this trend was gradually reversed. With labor costs more nearly equalized, the Northern fields regained some of their lost tonnage. When price stabilization under the codes collapsed early this year, operators were able for a time to benefit to the full from changes in their relative costs.

Guffey Bill Would Protect Mines in North.

Now that the codes are ended, however, Southern coal operators are free once again to work toward a higher wage differential which would improve their competitive ability. Northern operators, cognizant of this renewed threat to their markets, have enthusiastically supported the Guffey coal conservation bill, which would divide the country into 21 producing areas, each of which would have its own minimum price schedule, while wages and working conditions would be standardized even more than was the case under the NRA code. The Guffey bill compels enforcement by imposing a 25 per cent tax on all coal produced, 99 per cent of which impost is rebated to each operator if the code provided for in the measure is adopted by him.

Northern coal operators thus feel that the Guffey bill, with its rigid regulation of the industry under a national bituminous coal commission, will safeguard them against a renewed outbreak of vigorous competition from Southern mines. Furthermore, the bill provides that a national coal reserve shall be purchased with $300,000,000 of Government bonds. This would permit them to sell to the Government some of their surplus coal lands, the carrying of which has been a severe financial drain. Southern operators, on the other hand, feel that the Guffey bill would place them in a straight-jacket, and that they would lose the benefit of their natural competitive advantages under it.

The coal strike called for next Monday is recognized as designed chiefly to frighten Congress into passing the Guffey bill, designated as a "small NRA" for the particular benefit of the coal industry. Southern operators, on the other hand, would like to reach an agreement with the United Mine Workers extending the present wage scale for a time, to end the threat of the Guffey bill, and then to renew their efforts by aggressive marketing and low prices to gain additional markets for their coal, at least some of which would hvae to be won at the expense of their Northern competitors.

D. C. Building Increase Tops Nation's Cities

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

The Washington building industry during May showed the greatest increase of any city in the United States over the same month a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet reported yesterday.

It also contributed the major portion of a gain of 47 per cent in construction permits during May by the group of South Atlantic States, which made the most favorable record in the country.

The West Central and Mountain sections also turned in fairly good increases. Declines in the other groups ranged from 6.1 per cent in the Middle Atlantic to 23.2 per cent in the Pacific group.

Country Less Active.

Building operations for the United States as a whole during May were only slightly less active during the month than during the month preceding. The estimated cost of contemplated building operations during the month was the highest, with the exception of April, since November, 1931.

The total value of permits taken out in May for the 215 cities regularly reporting to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was $49,322,110, compared with $51,717,570 in April. This was a decrease of 4.6 per cent, whereas the usual change for the period is a decline of about 6.5 per cent. Comparison with May, 1934, however, when permits totaled $43,825,268, shows a rise of 12.5 per cent. Although not as high as the gains reported in recently preceding months, this marks the fifth consecutive monthly increase over the corresponding period of last year.

The continued improvement in building activity since January of this year is reflected in an aggregate estimated cost of permits for the first five months of this year of $200,566,167, against $138,762,958 last year, and $106,322,129 in the same period two years ago. The respective increases over the two years mentioned is 44.5 and 88.6 per cent. Following is the comparison for May and the first five months of the past nine years:

	May.	Five months.	Change, pct.

C. & O. Seeks Private Funds.

The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway's new equipment program to involve expenditure of about $13,000,000 will be handled through equipment trust certificates to be sold through banking channels rather than through aid of the RFC or the PWA, it was learned yesterday

It is believed that the necessary funds if obtained from private sources will cost from 3¼ to 3½ per cent. The interest rate the PWA would charge to handle the equipment is 4 per cent.

Bids on the new equipment for the road have been opened by Vice President W. G. Black in Cleveland. They will include five high-speed modern steam locomotives, with extra large fire boxes to increase speed and pulling power. Streamlining is not included in the specifications. Included also are substantial orders for steel hopper coal cars, live stock cars and flat cars.

Refund to B. & O. Workers.

Employes of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad have been returned $856,590 as a result of the Supreme Court's decision that the railroad employes pension act is unconstitutional, it was announced yesterday.

The refund was applied to all employes who have been subject to the pension act deduction from company pay rolls beginning August 1, 1934.

Cost of Living Registers Drop, Except in Rents

Decline in Major Groups Is First Recorded Since November.

New York, June 12.—For the first time since last November the cost of living of wage earners declined, falling 0.4 per cent from April to May, according to the monthly survey of the National Industrial Conference Board issued today. Decreases occurred in all the major groups of the budget except rents, which continued their rising trend. The cost of living in May was 5.5 per cent higher than a year ago, 15 per cent higher than in May, 1933, but 16.2 per cent lower than in May, 1929.

FOOD PRICES declined 0.4 per cent from April to May, contrary to the usual seasonal movements at this time of the year. They were 14.8 per cent above the level of May, 1934, 32.8 per cent above that of May, 1933, but 18.9 per cent below that of May, 1929.

RENTS advanced 1.3 per cent over the April average, 8.4 per cent over that of May, 1934, and 9.6 per cent over that of May, 1933, but they were still 24.4 per cent below the May, 1929, level.

CLOTHING prices were 0.5 per cent lower than in April, 3.6 per cent lower than a year ago, 23.6 per cent higher than in May, 1933, and 23.6 per cent lower than in May, 1929.

COAL PRICES declined 3.8 per cent, more than seasonally, from April to May. In May they were 2.2 per cent lower than a year ago, 4.4 per cent higher than two years ago, and 9.2 per cent lower than in May, 1929.

SUNDRIES fell 0.5 per cent from April to May, largely because of declines in the prices of smoking material. The cost of sundries in May was practically the same as a year ago, 3.5 per cent higher than in May, 1933, and 5.9 per cent lower than in May, 1929.

THE DOLLAR PURCHASING VALUE was 120.6 cents in May as compared with 120.2 cents in April, 101.1 cents in May, 1929, and 100 cents in 1923.

Retail Price-Cutting Drug War Is Predicted

New York, June 12 (AP).—Evidence that a price-cutting war on Nation-wide proportions is already well under way in the retail drug field as a result of invalidation of NRA codes is given in reports coming to Drug Trade News, the trade paper for druggists in its current issues.

Particularly serious situations were reported to exist in Cleveland, San Francisco, Portland, Oreg.; Syracuse and Cincinnati.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

Leading currencies were quiet and showed only slight change in most foreign exchange centers yesterday.

In New York the British pound sterling was ½ cent higher at $4.94, and French francs yielded .00⅝ of a cent to 6.59½ cents.

Earlier in London the dollar has closed at 4.93.11 to the pound, against an overnight New York rate of 4.94⅜ and in Paris the dollar ended at an equivalent of 6.588 cents to the franc against an overnight New York rate of 6.60 cents.

Steel Quotations.

American Stores Co. Sales.

New York, June 12 (AP).—American Stores Co. reports sales of $11,349,389 for the five weeks ended June 1, compared with $11,231,864 for the same period in 1934.

Addressograph Pays Dividend.

The Addressograph-Multigraph Corporation declared a dividend of 15 cents on the common stock payable July 10 to stock of record June 21. This is the first dividend announced by the company since April 11, 1932, when 25 cents was paid.

Rails Advance, Utilities Drop In Bond Market

Carriers Up 1 to 2 Points While Power Issues Lose 2 to 5.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 12.—The corporate bond market was buffeted around by strong crosswinds today with railroad and utility issues working in opposite directions and industrials caught in a jam between the two groups. United States Governments displayed uniform steadiness.

Passage by the Senate late yesterday of the Wheeler-Rayburn holding company bill was responsible for a substantial accumulation of overnight selling orders in utilities which clogged trading machinery at the begininng and an equally heavy demand for secondary rail bonds during the first two hours contributed to the confusion. Before the movement in each group had run its course many power and light company obligations had declined 2 to 5 points and recent favorites among the carriers had worked 1 to 2 or more higher.

From this point there was a leveling off in both divisions and during late trading utilities came back from their lows of the day and rails lost some of their pep.

Transfers aggregated $14,481,000, par value, but the turnover in Governments was only around $1,500,000.

Crop Advance Eases Cotton

Market Registers Net Losses of From 8 to 12 Points.

New York, June 12 (AP).—Cotton futures today had an easier undertone owing to rather more favorable crop progress during the past week and in sympathy with weakness in wheat. The market closed at net losses of 8 to 12 points.

Initial moderate declines reflected the influence of relatively easier Liverpool cables, commission and spot house selling. Partial rallies followed on trade buying and moderate demand credited to Government agencies in the forward positions. Interest continued restricted, however, pending further developments at Washington on the AAA amendments and the question of a cotton loan on the new crop.

The weekly weather report said there had been less rainfall, and although temperatures were somewhat sub-normal, the week in general was rather more favorable than the preceding one. However, showery conditions again developed in western and north central positions of the belt.

Record Auto Revenue Expected by Virginia

Richmond, Va., June 12 (AP).—Substantial increases in passenger-car registration and gasoline tax receipts were forecast for 1935 today by the State division of motor vehicles.

A car registration of between 325,000 and 330,000 was predicted. All records are expected to be broken this year in these receipts.

AUCTION SALES

WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1935—
THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers.
1431 Eye Street Northwest.

Trustee's Sale of the Valuable Eight-Story and Basement Brick and Stucco Apartment House Known as "Corcoran Courts Apartments," Located at the Northeast Corner of 23rd and D Streets Northwest.

Because of default in the terms and conditions of, and by virtue of a certain deed of trust executed by Corcoran Courts Corporation, a Delaware corporation, dated July 1, 1925, recorded among the land records of the District of Columbia in Liber 3572, folio 63 et seq., and by leave of court in Equity Causes Nos. 50,717 and 53,025 in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, the undersigned substituted Trustee, by Appointment of said court in said Equity Cause No. 53,025, will offer for sale at public auction in front of the premises on WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1935, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia: Lots numbered two (2) to ten (10), inclusive, in Emily Fuller's subdivision of lots in square numbered sixty (60), as per plat recorded in the office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber H. D. C. at folio 40, being known as premises situate at the northeast corner of Twenty-third and D streets northwest, Washington, D. C. Together with all and singular the screens, curtains, fixtures, window shades, ice boxes, ranges, stoves, furnaces, boilers, engines, dynamos, machinery, elevators and electric equipment, vacuum cleaners, mail chutes, refrigerating, heating, ventilating, telephone, gas and electric fixtures and fittings, and other fittings, fixtures and personal property thereon which said trustee is authorized by said deed of trust to sell and convey.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase price to be paid in cash on or before the 10th day of August, 1935, balance in two equal installments, payable on or before one and two years from date of sale, respectively, with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from day of sale, said interest payable semiannually, and to be secured by first deed of trust on the property sold; or all cash at the option of the purchaser. The said trustee will receive no bid from any one offering to bid who shall not at or before the hour of sale, or any adjournment thereof, deposit with said trustee, as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, a deposit of $15,000, either in cash or certified check on a local bank or trust company, made or indorsed payable to the undersigned trustee, or in lieu thereof bonds of the par value of $30,000, in form transferable by delivery, secured by said deed of trust, said bonds to have all unpaid coupons attached thereto. The deposit of any unsuccessful bidder will be returned to him immediately after the sale. In case any successful bidder shall fail to complete his purchase by August 10, 1935, in accordance with the said terms of sale, said deposit may be forfeited at the option of the said trustee, or without forfeiting the deposit said trustee may avail itself of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser. The said trustee reserves the right to reject any and all bids and withdraw the property from sale. Adjustments with respect to taxes, assessments, insurance, rentals, income from operation of property, interest, and all other adjustments shall be made as of the date of sale. Said property is now in possession of and is being operated by Morris Cafritz, as receiver, appointed in said Equity Cause No. 50,717, but by order of court entered in said cause on or about June 10, 1935, said receiver has been directed to deliver possession of said property to the purchaser at said sale upon transfer of title from said trustee to said purchaser, and from date of sale to date of transfer, said receiver will manage and operate said property as agent of the purchaser. The trustee will not be responsible for any bills or expenses incurred in the management or operation of said property. All expense of conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., is to be at the cost of the purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with on or before August 10, 1935, otherwise said trustee reserves the right to forfeit said deposit or to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser upon the foregoing terms, after seven days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

AUCTION SALES

WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1935—
THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers.
1431 Eye Street Northwest.

Trustee's Sale of the Valuable Eight-Story and Basement Brick and Stucco Apartment House Known as "Corcoran Courts Apartments," Located at the Northeast Corner of 23rd and D Streets Northwest.

Because of default in the terms and conditions of, and by virtue of a certain deed of trust executed by Corcoran Courts Corporation, a Delaware corporation, dated July 1, 1928, recorded among the land records of the District of Columbia in Liber 5572, folio 63 et seq., and by leave of court in Equity Causes Nos. 50,717 and 53,025 in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, the undersigned substituted Trustee, by appointment of said court in said Equity Cause No. 53,025, will offer for sale at public auction in front of the premises on WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1935, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia: Lots numbered two (2) to ten (10), inclusive, in Emily Fuller's subdivision of lots in square numbered sixty (60), as per plat recorded in the office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber H. D. C. at folio 40, being known as premises situate at the northeast corner of Twenty-third and D streets northwest, Washington, D. C., Together with all and singular the screens, curtains, fixtures, window shades, ice boxes, ranges, stoves, furnaces, boilers, engines, dynamos, machinery, elevators and electric equipment, vacuum cleaners, mail chutes, refrigerating, heating, ventilating, telephone, gas and electric fixtures and fittings, and other fittings, fixtures and personal property thereon which said trustee is authorized by said deed of trust to sell and convey.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase price to be paid in cash on or before the 10th day of August, 1935, balance in two equal installments, payable on or before one and two years from date of sale, respectively, with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from day of sale, said interest payable semiannually, and to be secured by first deed of trust on the property sold; or all cash at the option of the purchaser. The said trustee will receive no bid from anyone offering to bid who shall not at or before the hour of sale, or any adjournment thereof, deposit with said trustee, as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, a deposit of $15,000, either in cash or certified check on a local bank or trust company, made or indorsed payable to the undersigned trustee, or in lieu thereof bonds of the par value of $30,000, in form transferable by delivery, secured by said deed of trust, said bonds to have all unpaid coupons attached thereto. The deposit of any unsuccessful bidder will be returned to him immediately after the sale. In case any successful bidder shall fail to complete his purchase by August 10, 1935, in accordance with the said terms of sale, said deposit may be forfeited at the option of the said trustee, or without forfeiting the deposit said trustee may avail itself of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser. The said trustee reserves the right to reject any and all bids and withdraw the property from sale. Adjustments with respect to taxes, assessments, insurance, rentals, income from operation of property, interest and all other adjustments shall be made as of the date of sale. Said property is now in possession of and is being operated by Morris Cafritz, as receiver appointed in said Equity Cause No. 50,717, but by order of court entered in said cause on or about June 10, 1935, said receiver has been directed to deliver possession of said property to the purchaser at said sale upon transfer of title from said trustee to said purchaser, and from date of sale to date of transfer, said receiver will manage and operate said property as agent of the purchaser. The trustee will not be responsible for any bills or expenses incurred in the management or operation of said property. All expense of conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., is to be at the cost of the purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with on or before August 10, 1935; otherwise at the said trustee reserves the right to forfeit said deposit or to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser upon the foregoing terms, after seven days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

Daniel McGrath To Be Ordained As Priest Today

Former Government Employe to Take Holy Orders in Baltimore.

A career story that follows a Government employe from desk to pulpit will come to a climax this morning when the Rev. Daniel M. McGrath, 4109 Fourth street northwest, is ordained into the priesthood in Baltimore.

The ceremony will take place in the Cathedral of the Assumption, and the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore, will ordain the young Washington priest.

Father McGrath started out on a business career. Having graduated from Business High School, he obtained employment in governmental offices. While a student at George Washington University and at the Capuchin House of Studies, he was connected with the Department of Labor.

In July, 1929, Father McGrath resigned his position as chief of the correspondence and appeals section, Bureau of Immigration, to begin ecclesiastical studies at St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore.

Father McGrath was once a member of the St. Patrick Players and of St. Gabriel's Dramatic Club. He was also widely known as a singer.

The newly ordained priest will sing his first solemn mass at 11 o'clock Sunday morning in St. Gabriel's Church, Grant Circle.

Flag Day Program Here Tomorrow

University Group to Hold Patriotic Exercises.

Patriotic exercises to be attended by representatives of nearly every college and university in Washington will be a high light of the District of Columbia's Flag Day observance tomorrow.

The ceremony, to be conducted in the Raleigh Hotel, is being arranged by the Intercollegiate Organizations of America, a Nation-wide alliance of students.

Among the speakers will be Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts; Representative Jennings Randolph, West Virginia, and Representative James L. Quinn, Pennsylvania. For the student organization, Harold L. Moskovit, New York, national president, will speak.

The United States Marine Reserve Band, directed by Lieut. Leon Brusilloff, will play. Leon Selawy, co-chairman of the District of Columbia Division, will preside.

On the Air Today

By Katherine Smith.

Here and there: H. V. Kaltenborn will tour Europe this summer and plans three July broadcasts from London to be carried through CBS. The Titles, "What Next in England?" "What Next in Germany?" and "What Next in Italy?" . . . John F. Royal, NBC vice president in charge of programs, will sail Saturday for a tour of European broadcast centers. His object is to discover how and why foreign broadcasting is better, or worse, than our own.

According to the latest leaflet from the national committee on education by radio, the Norwegian Broadcasting Board, appointed by the government, has developed a seven-year plan to reorganize the national system, formerly in private hands . . . Also, Bulgaria is making its broadcasting a government monopoly.

High spots:

Baer-Braddock fight from Madison Square Garden Bowl is heard on combined NBC network at 9 p. m., WMAL and WRC. Graham McNamee and Ford Bond provide blow-by-blow descriptions. Paul Whiteman will yield his time for the event.

Buddy Baer, Maxie's younger brother, croons his best wishes on Rudy Vallee's spot, WRC, 7 p. m.

The Aldershot Tattoo, another Silver Jubilee, is short waved from England and carried on WMAL at 3:30 p. m. Massed bands, playing and singing of hymns and descriptions of the events are featured.

Ten minutes of Kate Smith's show is broadcast from the Wallkill State Penitentiary, when its glee club and band will perform.

Weather conditions permitting, WOL will pick up light classic music from Berlin, Germany, at 8:30 p. m. These short-wave broadcasas are heard on WOL several nights a week when no commercials occur at this time. Recommended for fans whose radio sets can not get short wave stations.

Shrine stuff:

Description of pageant from Pavilion of Dmar, WMAL, 10:15 p. m.

Auld Lang Syne to the Shrine from the Pavilion, WMAL, 11:30 p. m.

Shrine massed chanters, WJSV, 1:30 p. m.

The Federal Diary

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

By Loren Hall.

ANOTHER blow is being directed at the merit system in the Gore amendment attached to the NRA bill, according to E. Claude Babcock, president, A. F. G. E. The amendment provides that no Government employe who receives a salary of more than $4,000 may serve unless he has been confirmed by the Senate.

In an address yesterday, Mr. Babcock said:

"This is not a new thing. The same plan was proposed in the Senate last year and actually passed the Senate, but then it went on to the House, and there was killed. Stop a minute and consider what this means. It means that any Government employe who seeks to rise in the service must at all times keep an eye on the Hill. He must make it his first aim to please Senators; he will know that he can not hope to advance beyond a certain point on merit alone, and that any further promotion must come from the interest and support of some Senator.

"I do not believe that the people of the United States want their scientists in charge of important work for the national welfare to gain these directional positions simply because they know more Senators than some of their colleagues. I think the people want scientific work administered by men who know their work.

"The Gore amendment is something that every Government employe and every citizen interested in the preservation of the merit system should oppose."

Convention Delegates.

Delegates to the national convention, N. F. F. E. have been elected by the Women's Union, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Federal Employes' Union, Local No. 105.

Those named are:

Miss Belle A. Trouland, Miss Gertrude McNally, Mrs. Gertrude Schellhorn, Mrs. Minnie D. Stevens and Miss Nora B. James. First alternate, Miss Anna Davison; second alternate, Mrs. Leo D. Williams.

Milton Falkoff has been transferred from the Bureau of Agricultural Engineering to the Division of Designs, Bureau of Public Roads, Agriculture.

Farley to Speak.

Postmaster General James A. Farley will be the principal speaker at the inauguration of officers of the District division, Young Democrats of America, at the Willard Hotel Friday at 8:30 p. m.

Raymond J. Walter, retiring president, will officially turn over the duties of the office to Paul A. Best, FHA, the new president, in ceremonies that will be witnessed by these prominent in Democratic circles.

Among those slated to be present are Ambrose O'Connell, executive assistant to Mr. Farley; Lawrence Robert, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; Jesse Jones, RFC administrator; Stewart McDonald, acting administrator, FHA; Bill Flanders, head of Field Division, FHA; Senator Tom Connelly, Texas, and Emil Hurja, Democratic national committeeman.

Leon D. Frigillana (P), Contract Examining Section, General Accounting Office, was awarded the Charles F. Carusi Prize for Scholarship at the sixty-sixth annual convocation of the National University. He received the degree of master of arts.

Justice Postettes.

An additional allotment of $5,000 from old PWA funds to the Department of Justice for improvements in the boiler house of the National Training School for Boys, Washington, has been announced by Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes. The money supplants an original allotment of $21,050 to the school.

There was a young typist who stated,
She could "get" any boss ever created.
So she vamped the big chief,
And much to her grief

Dentists Oppose Health Fund Cut

Washington dentists, through the District of Columbia Dental Society, yesterday were on record as opponents of any effort to reduce drastically health appropriations for this community.

A resolution outlining the dentists' position was passed unanimously at a meeting Tuesday night, and yesterday copies were forwarded to President Roosevelt, the Senate and House District Committees, and the Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

The dentists specifically indorsed Dr. George C. Ruhland, District of Columbia health officer, as an "outstanding health official," and agreed to support him in his recommendations to Congress that health appropriations for the District be increased.

Dr. Stephen C. Hopkins, who had been president-elect, was advanced to the office of president at the meeting, and Dr. George Albert Smith was elevated to president-elect.

Two Colored Men Get $29 in Armed Holdup

Two colored men stopped Charles Colbert, of the 1700 block of Ninth street northwest, near North Capitol and H streets yesterday and at gun-point robbed him of $29, he told police.

Colbert described the men to police. He said they drove up to the curb in an automobile, alighted and approached him. One of them held a gun, while the other rifled his pockets, Colbert said.
